We spent eight days at Athens, a modern city of a million souls. Missionary work here is confined to fostering education and in ministering to the refugees among the Armenians and Greeks from Asia Minor. We have four churches among the Armenians and two among the Greeks. These are known as evangelical churches in contrast with the churches maintained by the Greek Orthodox and Armenian Gregorian Churches for their own people. In connection with each church a week-day school is conducted, covering the same subjects as the public schools, but with a Protestant emphasis. There is also a social centre for the Greeks and a hospital under the able superintendency of Dr. Parmlee, sponsored by the American Woman's Hospital Association. Two institutions of higher learning are maintained—the Woman's College, of Junior College grade, and the School of Religion for training religious leaders for the Greek and Moslem worlds. Both of them are doing fine work. Athens College for men is not connected with our work, but is sponsored by the Near East College Association, a New York corporation. Unfortunately, Athens College is not positively concerned with the Christian life. It is dominated by high intellectual standards and an attitude of scientific positivism.

Dr. and Mrs. Jesse K. Marden are true representatives of the Cross in Athens, and have associated with them an able and devoted group of missionaries, teachers, native pastors, Bible women and college professors. One cannot speak too highly of the refugee doctor and his wife, who were driven out of Turkey in 1922, with those to whom they ministered, and who now in Greece serve the same people and the same Lord through the gospel message as well as through healing remedies for broken and diseased bodies. Never have we seen finer consecration.

Both institutions of higher learning are housed in rented quarters and are without endowment. The Women's College is erecting a new plant, largely in faith. Two buildings are nearing completion and a third one is to have its foundation constructed right away. It will take $500,000 adequately to house and endow the School of Religion, and an equal amount for the Woman's College in addition to what they now have.

We got a new sense of the power of the Gospel in Athens. Ruins everywhere, revealed by the excavator's pick, suggest the beauty and the glory of the ancient Greeks. The works of art in their museums bewilder by their number and charm by their loveliness. I have never seen anything so beautiful as the statue of the smiling baby boy in the National Museum. Others are more celebrated, but this one touched my heart. It seemed to me that the little fellow was going to speak to me. He smiled his way into my soul. But these beautiful works of art, the expression of a nation's sense of beauty and intellectual aspiration, lay buried for centuries under the rubbish heaps over which a new civilization had erected the places of its habitation and its marts of trade in utter forgetfulness of what loveliness lay underneath. Why? Because spiritual vi-talinity was lacking. Greek intellect and Greek art have never been surpassed, but Greek religion did not keep pace, and so Greek glory vanished. Civilization is not a race between education and catastrophe, as F. G. Wells has said, but rather a race between spiritual religion and catastrophe. Greece lacked the former, and Greece reaped catastrophe. The Greek Orthodox Church is lacking in spirituality today. Protestant America must spiritualize the Greek Church through a crusade of good will and sharing. We must show them the more excellent way of religious education and the social gospel. The Greek Orthodox Church membership is formally instructed, but it is spiritually illiterate. We need the brevity of their inspiring worship services. They need the busy activity of our programs of service as well as the intellectual clarification of our philosophical interpretation of the Gospel in its adjustment to an age of machinery and science.

Paul made what appeared to be a meagre impression on the Greeks. With the great Acropolis to his back and with the Great temple of Zeus to his right, with the Agora and the temple of Theseus directly in front of him, standing on Mars Hill, the little Jew proclaimed the futility of idols and the reality and permanency of the spiritual life. What inspiration to stand where this great spirit stood, to read his challenging words, and to follow with a prayer of gratitude! The Greeks, except Dionysius, Damaris, and a few nameless ones, mocked him. But today Paganism, with its grandeur of decorative art and sculpture, is gone.

Paul went from Athens to Corinth by way of Eleusis, where stood the great Temple of Demeter, representing through its celebrated Elysion mysteries the high-water mark of pagan mysticism. Today its ruins attest its grandeur and suggest its spell over the common mind and heart. The great Cicero hid him hither for initiation, and declared afterwards that he was better prepared to live and also better fitted to die. Paul passed this majestic pile of beauty and grandeur on his way to Corinth, a most profligate city. Whether he was initiated we know not, but his references to the mysteries of God are suggestive. At Corinth he preached eighteen months, and to his converts there, after he had gone away, he addressed three letters—two of which we have, and perhaps also the third has been incorporated in the record we have. His paean on love and his resurrection ode would never have been written, had he not gone to this centre of Greek materialism.

The beautiful temple of Appolo is glorious in its ruins today. What must it have been in Paul's day, in front view of the Acropolis of Corinth, overlooking that arm of the Adriatic Sea known as the Bay of Corinth, surrounded by the Odeon, the theatre, the stadium wherein were celebrated the Isthmian games, second only in importance to the Olympic games at Athens, the great Agora, and the famous Fountain of Pirene, now unhappily revealed as an imposter so far as its oracle is concerned. A hollow column has been unearthed through which the priest entering by a secret passage imposed upon the credulous people who worshipped his voice as an oracle of God. It is possible that a similar explanation may be found for the oracle at Delphi, on Mt. Parnassus, across the bay and in full view of Corinth.

This city of wealth and prosperity has scant notice in the contemporary literature of its day. Paul's visit redeemed the city and gave it distinction. The gospel always does that for the individual man and for the social order. It is a miserable city today—a sorry relic of earthquakes and political vicissitudes. As we returned from the site of the old city to the town of new Corinth, rebuilt since the earthquake of three years ago, our hearts were touched by the sight of two wretched men tied together, with policemen, one in front and one behind, marching them to prison or to court. Two friends accompanied them. How like the description of the ancient world!

This richly endowed land speaks also of the horror of war, not only through the sufferings of the refugees and the destruction of ancient temples of beauty and grandeur, but through the lack of development everywhere present. There is a woeful lack of capital. The wealth of the people has been consumed in warfare. Industry is that of a tenth rate American city. The depreciated currency also speaks eloquently of war's devastating ruin.

We are now on the good ship Helonan, sailing through the Dardanelles, with Asia on our right and Europe on our left, headed for Constantinople (modern Istanbul) where we will see the Mohammedan religion in one of the lands over which for hundreds of years it has exercised complete ecclesiastical control. What awaits us we do not know, but of this we are certain—our heavenly Father is in full command, and where He is we have no fear. W. A. HARPER.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The cool October days are here. The children all have cold feet and want shoes. The body must be kept warm with comfortable clothes. The boys must have sweaters, pants, socks and shoes. The girls must have oxfords, sweaters and wraps. Then, too, a number of the girls must have coats. We hand down garments, as they are outgrown by the larger girls, to smaller girls, but have to buy for the larger ones. Then we do the same with school books. The books are given to the grades as they advance; but when we advance a large class to a higher grade in which we have had no former students, that means new books for the entire grade. We have five seniors this year.

We know that lots of our people have good dresses outgrown, good coats outgrown, good shoes no longer of service to them, yet in good condition. Why not pack them in a box and send them to us. Of course we mean clothing in good condition that will be of service to us. It will be so much help to us in this time of depression. We will thank you.

A good girl—a school teacher—brought us a dozen dresses some time ago—nice dresses and practically new. She did not want to wear them longer and kindly donated them to the orphanage. Our girls were glad to get them and happy to wear them. Don't forget your children at your Christian Orphanage.

How about the Thanksgiving offering in your church and Sunday School? Are you beginning to think about it. This is one year we want you to do your best.

WORKING WITH GRACE.

LESSON: Philemon 1:6-11.

"And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and in all judgment; that ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere without offence till the day of Christ." Verses 9 and 10.

As long as the devil is loose, there is danger that we will fall from grace and away from God. Jesus teaches us to pray continually "lest we enter into temptation"; and Paul urges that we "pray without ceasing." To be sure, Paul is "confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it unto the day of Jesus Christ." God does not half finish things which he has begun. But his finishing depends upon our establishment in Him and the "earnest of the spirit in our hearts." It is our lookout to "resist the devil steadfastly in the faith," and thus we fight.

Prayer.—Dear Lord, keep us that we fall not from Thee; hold us fast to Thee. Teach us more and more to know our own weakness, and to trust in Thy strength alone. Give us the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Thee. Work in us the fruits of righteousness; and let us be filled with them until the day of our Lord. Amen.

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x ¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its unique quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3½x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

ELON was founded to train Christian leaders for the New South.

ELON has done its task well—one graduate in seven being in the Christian ministry. The other six express Christian leadership in the various professions and vocations. Experience teaches that spiritual leadership must be indigenous.

The South is now a New South ready for an inclusive Church, the type of Church for which Elon has stood for forty years and for which she is prepared to produce capable leadership.

With no Church in the community, save the College Auditorium, ELON has practiced Christian Union for faculty, students, and community for four decades.

Its contribution to Christian Education is nationally known and approved.

Its Christian Education Building, providing laboratory facilities for religious leadership training, is unique and is the first college building of its type in the world.

ELON confines itself to undergraduate liberal arts work with that religious emphasis which befits the Christian College.

In ELON the Congregational-Christian Church has an asset of marvelous hopefulness.

The South needs her Yale, her Oberlin, her Carleton, her Pomona for the intellectual leadership of the United Church. Many regard ELON as strategically located and spiritually endowed to become such a center of illumination and leadership training.

OBITUARIES.

McHENRY.

Whereas, it pleased God in His infinite love and wisdom to call from our midst to His eternal home a beloved young friend, Mrs. Thelma Rawles McHenry, on July 13, 1931, who early in life gave her heart to Christ and became an active member of Liberty Spring Christian Church to which she remained faithful;

Therefore, be it resolved, First, that we humbly submit to God's will knowing that He doeth all things well; and that we seek to emulate all that was good, faithful and true in the life of our friend, knowing that separation is only for a brief space for those who look to God.

Second, that we extend to the husband, parents, sister and brother, our deepest sympathy and point them to the One who said to His followers: "I will not leave you comfortless."

Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband, to her parents, to The Christian Sun for publication, and one put on record at Liberty Spring Church.

MRS. O. L. BAKER,
Chairman of Committee.

KING.

George Lucian King departed this life October 9, 1931, aged 57 years, 4 months and 15 days. He had not been well for some time. He leaves a wife and two sons and a host of friends and relatives. He was a member of Long's Chapel Christian Church and a deacon thereof for a number of years. He was a member of the Junior Order.

A devoted husband, fond father, good neighbor and highly esteemed citizen has passed from this land to the land beyond. He will be missed in the home, the church and the community.

Funeral services were conducted from Long's Chapel Church by the writer assisted by Dr. G. O. Lankford. The attendance at the funeral was very large. May He who is all wise and good, comfort the bereaved.

ELON COLLEGE ELECTS NEW PRESIDENT.—

The election of Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., of Norfolk, Virginia, as president of Elon College has already sent a thrill to the heart of the entire church with the earnest hope that he will accept the position with the same enthusiasm with which it was tendered. The Board of Trustees cast a unanimous vote for his election. The entire church will endorse the action of the Board, and await with abated breath the acceptance of the position offered.

PAUL VIETH AT YALE.—

Paul H. Vieth, for the past six years director of research and service with the International council of religious education, has been appointed director of field work and associate professor of religious education at Yale divinity school, succeeding Shelton Smith, who becomes head of the department of religious education at Duke university. Dr. Vieth received his B. D. cum laude from Yale in 1924, and his Ph. D. in 1928. It is expected he will measure up well as the successor of Dr. Shelton Smith who is beginning well in his new field at Duke. Students and faculty are speaking well of his work among them.

WOMEN WILL PETITION FOR PEACE.—

Eleven women's organizations connected with the National committee on the cause and cure of war are planning to send to the Geneva disarmament conference petitions bearing at least 1,000,000 signatures to show that there is here a great body of peace sympathizers who desire the conference to "gratify the expectations and hopes of the world by putting into immediate and unhesitating effect the pledges already made for the reduction of national armaments." The petition closes with these words: "The assurance of peace will become invincible when the reduction of armaments for which we plead has been secured. Wars will cease when governments so resolve." It is strange that Christian nations continue to use pagan methods to settle their difficulties. May war perish from the earth.

NOTED PREACHERS AT YALE.—

Among the leading preachers who have accepted invitations from Yale to deliver addresses at the university public services on Sunday mornings during this year are: Henry Sloan Coffin, Willard L. Sperry, Charles R. Brown, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Henry K. Sherrill, Hugh Black, Morgan Phelps Noyes, John Howard Mellish, Robert Russell Wicks, Charles W. Gilkey, William J. Hutchins, Anson Phelps Stokes and Andrew Mutch. President Angell delivered the matriculation sermon Oct. 4th; other faculty members who will deliver addresses during the year are such men as William Lyon Phelps, Halford E. Luccock, Luther A. Weigle and Henry H. Tweedy. There are rich things in store for those who are so fortunate as to be students or visitors at this great institution this year.

PLANNING FOR GENEVA CONFERENCE.—

Two great peace meetings are booked. One for October 26th, under the auspices of the World Tomorrow, will be backed by about 26 organizations and is being held in the vast Soldiers' memorial hall, Pittsburgh, Pa. The other is under the auspices of the Carnegie Peace foundation on Armistice day. It may be said truly that our nation is waking up to the coming disarmament conference in Geneva with commendable intelligence and heart. The Women's International League for Peace staged a large meeting in Trinity Parish Hall on Monday, Oct. 5th. The report of this Albert hall meeting for peace was enthusiastically received. When the churches take a solid stand for peace all over the country and are true to the teaching of Christ on this question, peace will reign from the rivers to the ends of the earth.

NEW DIRECTOR, VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL.—

Paul D. Eddy has been elected executive director of the International Association of Daily Vacation Bible Schools, with headquarters in New York. Dr. Eddy is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and of Crozier seminary. He was for five years associate general director of the Christian association of the University of Pennsylvania, and has also held several pastorates. Recently he has been engaged as a special staff member of foreign missions of the Methodist Church. He is only 36 years old and the vigor of his life will be given unstintingly to this new task. Information about the work in which he is engaged may be had by addressing him at his home office. There is a great field of service in the work of the Daily Vacation Bible School for the churches of America and those who line up in this work, if they are well prepared, will render a great service to the religious life of our nation.

GANDHI TALKS.—

An Associated press dispatch from London refers to John Hayes Holmes' advice to Gandhi urging him not to come to America for the reason that he would be made a laughing-stock and quotes Gandhi on the proposed visit. He said that although he placed great reliance in Dr. Holmes' judgment, he had received invitations to come from many leading Americans. "If these latter," he said, "can convince Dr. Holmes that I ought to go to America I shall be glad to consider my decision. I have a great affection for the American people and feel sure that I have a great many friends across the Atlantic, and I don't want to sacrifice that friendship. He has received invitations from such distinguished persons as John Dewey, Jane Addams, Adolph S. Ochs, Stephen S. Wise and Mary E. Wooley. There are many more distinguished Americans that would welcome Gandhi to America if he has any message for the American people that would quicken their spiritual, religious, or educational life.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE INCREASES.—

What is the effect of the depression on church attendance? What influence does it have on interest in religion? While, on the one side, people are staying away because they cannot afford what they consider proper clothes or because they cannot pay their usual dues, on the other side the depression is driving people to fresh consideration of foundation philosophies. Churches report attendance much improved. There is a strong demand for deep and true religion, with new emphasis upon such things as prayer, faith in God and undergirding divinity. This is an interesting phenomenon and our facts seem to justify the foregoing conclusion. When church members are passing through a period of depression, it is time to attend church more for it is a great loss to lose both members' Christian influence, attendance, and financial support at the same time. If you cannot give financial support, give double the amount of attendance, service and loyalty to the church in these trying times of depression. It needs you more than it needs your money. Go to Church!

CONGREGATIONALISTS' CHALLENGE.—

"We cannot go farther until we go deeper." This is the thought behind the meeting of the Midwest regional committee of the commission on missions of the general council of the Congregational and Christian churches, being held at the Central Congregational church, Topeka, Kansas, October 20-22. The topics for discussion indicate that this will be no mere routine missionary gathering, but one looking toward missionary reconstruction. Among the topics scheduled are: "Personal Christian Living as the Basis for World Christian Expansion;" "Spiritual Foundations for a New World;" "Making America Christian;" "Christian Education for the Underprivileged;" "The Philosophy of Educational Missions;" and "Irreducible Minimums in America." Among the speakers are Edward A. Steiner, Albert Buckner Coe, Catherine Waugh McCulloch, Charles M. Sheldon, Albert W. Palmer, Fred B. Smith, D. Brewer Eddy and Arthur E. Holt. This will be a great meeting and will inspire the church to greater missionary activity. Watch the Missionary for a report of the meeting and you will be well repaid for your trouble.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. E. B. White, of our Windsor parish, was in Richmond several days of last week on account of the serious illness of his mother. He expressed deep regret at being unable to attend the Convention at Burlington.

Rev. J. Cleveland Barrett, recently pastor at Hopewell, Va., has accepted a call to the Kensington Congregational Church, Philadelphia, Pa. After November 1st, his address will be 508 Al-legheny Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. We certainly wish Brother Barrett great success in his new field of labor. He is a consecrated man and throws his entire heart and soul into his work.

The extraordinary session of the Southern Christian Convention in Burlington, October 20th, was largely attended, there being between 200 and 250 delegates, representatives and interested visitors present. Elon College and its welfare was the one topic of interest and discussion. At the extraordinary session of the same body in 1888, that founded the College, fourteen delegates were present.

Mrs. D. P. Barrett, who has been in the States sometime health seeking, was a most welcome visitor at the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference and also at the North Carolina Woman's Conference, and delighted the women of both conferences with personal messages and greetings from Porto Rico. Mrs. Barrett is very much improved in health and is to sail in a few days to rejoin her husband in the work as missionary in Porto Rico. The work in Porto Rico has taken on new life and activity, where not two, but three denominations have united—Christian, Congregational and United Brethren, under the name of the Evangelical Church of Porto Rico. Our missionaries, Rev. and Mrs. Barrett, have seen the work grow in Porto Rico from the beginning, thirty years ago, with no membership until the present with several thousand members throughout the island.

Dr. C. H. Rowland and our Greensboro congregation, as well as we ourselves and hundreds of others, lament the heart-sickening tragedy occurring at Pittsboro, N. C., about midday, Tuesday, October 20th, resulting in the instant death of Mrs. C. C. Johnson and the fatal wounding and death a few hours later in a Raleigh hospital of her husband, Brother C. C. Johnson, both of Greensboro. They were on their way to the funeral of Mrs. Johnson's sister, Mrs. Charles Johnson, at New Elam Church, when the car in which they were travelling turned over with the tragic and fatal results already mentioned. These were two of the most faithful and devout members of First Church, Greensboro, from which the funeral was conducted by the pastor, Thursday, the 22nd. Mrs. Johnson, formerly Miss Una Davis, was a graduate of Elon College, and Brother Johnson was a prominent and successful merchant of Greensboro. Their only daughter, married and residing elsewhere, is the surviving member of the family.

That is no mean showing for Elon College, on the part of our Sunday Schools in their fifth Sunday offerings, which we print elsewhere, revealing the fact that the schools that did take the fifth Sunday offerings contributed to the College through these offerings since March 1, 1931, a total of $768.59. If this matter is continually kept before the schools and the benefits of such offerings are fully realized, far larger returns may be expected. This offering is valuable not merely for the amount of money it represents, but for its educational value in bringing to the attention of the pupils in the Sunday School, information about their College. It is noted that of the $768.00 given through these fifth Sunday offerings, the Eastern Virginia Sunday Schools gave considerably over half the amount, and that of the schools in Eastern Virginia, Christian Temple gave considerably over half the amount given by all the schools of that conference. Mr. Cannon furnished the figures of donations by the three quarters, but space did not allow it itemized, and we give the total for the three quarters, and this total tells its own story, which is indeed quite gratifying.

THE ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

Since checking over the reports of the various churches of our conference, I thought that SUN readers might be interested to know something of what we are doing. We held our conference at Pisgah, about 160 miles from the heart of the body, but in spite of the distance, we had a fair representation. Only three churches made no report either by delegate or letter. The financial showing was pitiful, but the spiritual side of most of our churches is encouraging.

All of our officers were re-elected. The reports from the various committees were encouraging, and discussions very helpful. We met at 2:30 p. m. and organized, adjourned till 7:00. Rev. G. D. Hunt delivered the annual sermon, which was greatly appreciated. We met again the second day at 8:30 a. m., and resumed business. Among the outstanding addresses was one by Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, president of Southern Union College, on the report on education, and also the sermon at 11:30 by Dr. Franke E. Henry, editorial and field secretary of the Congregational Church extension boards of New York.

Three churches have made no report yet, but we find that we have suffered a loss of 20 members by death. Still we find a net gain of 25. The other churches that have not yet sent in their reports will not change the results very much.

The next session of conference will meet with Antioch Church. I feel that our ministers are more determined to press forward in the kingdom's service than ever before. I have never seen a time in my eleven years of ministerial work when the youth of our country was more anxious to do something for the church.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

REV. A. NIGHTINGALE, Crossville, Tenn., is a promoter of the Exchange Club of Crossville, which is the only luncheon club of the county seat, and has done much to promote community interest.

FRANK E. HENRY, Editorial and Field Secretary of the Congregational Church Extension Boards of New York, was a welcome visitor in Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama, recently. He is a versatile and agreeable speaker.

DR. and MRS. JASON NOBLE PIERCE, together with their family, are settled at Collegeside House in Nashville. Their daughter, Margaret, attends Ward-Belmont College, and their son is in the Peabody Demonstration High School.

REV. GEO. N. EDWARDS, pastor of the Circular Church, Charleston, S. C., recently read a paper before the Charleston Ministerial Union on the subject, "Current Problems of World Evangelization." The paper was received with cordial expression of approval.

REV. EDWIN E. WHITE and the local president of the Hi Y Club, led in the initiation of eleven new members in a formal service at the Pleasant Hill, Tennessee, Community House recently. A number of the students were received into the Community Church.

REV. J. H. DOLLAR has accepted a unanimous call to United Congregational and Christian Church at LaGrange, and began his pastorate on October 25th. This is a notable addition to the United work of Georgia and without doubt will aid in bringing other churches together.

PRINCIPAL and MRS. F. L. FOGLE, who came from Lincoln Memorial University, in Tennessee, are doing fine work at Pleasant Hill Academy. Mr. Fogle has had considerable experience at public school as well as college work. Mrs. Fogle is one of the teachers in the Academy.

REV. CLEVELAND R. DIERLAMM, Parkers Glen, Penn., will begin his work as pastor of United Church at Chapel Hill November 1st. Mr. Cleveland comes highly recommended and will meet a responsive people, who are waiting for him with expectant joy. He will be a very welcome addition to the Carolina Conference.

REV. ARTHUR G. LYON formerly pastor of the Arlington Heights church in Massachusetts has begun his pastorate at Lake Helena, Florida, and with Mrs. Lyon is settled in the comfortable parsonage of the church. Dr. Lyon was pastor of the church for one season about six years ago, going from there to West Palm Beach where he was pastor for several years.

REV. WM. T. McELVEEN, pastor at Central Church, Atlanta, Georgia, is the author of an inspiring sermon which was printed in the October issue of The Christian Century Pulpit. The topic was "A Better Hope," and the text, "There is introduced a better hope."—Hebrews 7:19. The sermon ends with a strong note of optimism and faith, on the theme "God is not Defeated."

REV. ALMON O. STEVENS was again elected moderator of the Kentucky Conference, which met at Evarts, October 2nd to 4th. Mrs. Stevens conducted the Woman's League meeting of the conference. Secretary Charles L. Fisk, of Cleveland, brought practical messages in religious education, while Dr. and Mrs. William H. Walker of Berea, made valuable contributions to the program. Miss Davison also assisted.

TAMPA CHURCH NEWS, is the name of a weekly paper printed in Tampa, devoted to the welfare of all the churches and religious organizations. The issue of October 2nd carried a picture of the Congregational Church with an article concerning the church and its pastor, Rev. Walter Metcalf. Mr. Metcalf is contributing regularly a series of articles for the paper. At present they are in the form of sermons on "A Faith for Today." Previously he contributed a series on "Human Interest in the Bible."

SECRETARY A. W. SPARKS of the Church Extension Board, formerly Secretary of Home Missions of the General Christian Convention, rendered valued service in bringing Congregationalists and Christians of the Kentucky Christian and Kentucky State Conferences together, at Muses Mills and Ashland, Kentucky, and New Boston, Ohio. Rev. C. F. Pierce of the Kentucky Christian Conference then went with a party to the Kentucky Congregational Conference at Evarts, where Secretary Sparks made excellent contributions to the meeting and fellowship.

REV. O. T. ANDERSON, pastor of the Community Congregational Church of Fort Myers, delivered the eulogy at a community service held in memory of Thomas A. Edison. Mrs. Edison is a regular attendant of Mr. Anderson's church and has taken a great interest in the new building and has contributed generously for it. The building is in Edison Park, facing the Edison home. Mrs. Edison first came to Fort Myers as a bride with her illustrious husband. Mr. Edison has always been fond of his home in Fort Myers, and the city has always loved and honored him and his wife.

SARGEANT ALVIN YORK lives at Pall Mall, Tennessee, which is not far from Pleasant Hill, Crossville, and Robbins. He is interested in our effort for the Cumberland Plateau and is doing all that he can for his people. He is the president, without salary, of his own school, and recently refused a large salary as financial agent for another school. He has received financial offers for a talk of his own choosing for a Cigarette company and for appearing in a movie, having principles which forbade the acceptance of the latter offers. He impresses the visitor as a man of courage and conviction. Through his efforts, largely, the Tennessee Chapter of the American Legion declared for prohibition.

HENRY W. MOWBRAY, Moderator of the Georgia State Conference, with the Pastor-at-Large, took a 1394 mile tour through the region of the Georgia churches, October 12th to 19th, inclusive. He preached eight times and talked a good deal at informal meetings, visited fourteen churches, and learned much of the life of the people. He was well received everywhere, and feels well satisfied with the trip. Much good was done and many blessings left behind. One of the expected results will be the grouping of four more churches, which, it is now expected, will unite to call a pastor who will begin work January 1st. New vigor, new life, and greater determination were manifested in each of these churches. In Mr. Mowbray's absence from his own pulpit, Prof. Percy took his place. The last church visited was Dawsonville, Holly Creek, back to which Mr. Mowbray is going with a group of college students to hold an all-day service on Sunday, November 8th.

REV. ALAN JONES, Pittstown, N. J., a highly trained minister in the colleges and schools of this country, with the addition of a year's study in Germany, comes to South Georgia November 1st. He asked for a rural field where he could share in the life of the community freely and feel and see the work grow like the fields of grain in a harvest. Four churches were ready to give him this chance. These four, unanimously and with thankfulness for having the opportunity to do so, called Mr. Jones. This is the fourth larger parish in Georgia to adopt the grouping system. Since Friendship Church, near Baxley, is one of these churches, the parish will probably be called the "Friendship Parish." The other churches are: Whitehall, near Waycross; Antioch, near Bristol, and Union Hill, near Pearson. These churches have been making telling strides forward this last year with our extension worker, Miss Annie Campbell leading. Remarkably fine work was done here during the past summer by Mr. David W. Shepherd and Rev. Floyd M. Price, both of Vanderbilt University.

METHODS CORNER

BY REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

I should like to make a correction. In my Corner for October 8th the typesetter left out a line which happened to be one of the most important. What I intended to say was, "You can purchase a stereopticon through The Congregational-Christian Headquarters, 287 Fourth Ave., N. Y., at a discount." I think the price of a Spencer Lens Company's instrument is $45.00 or something like that.

The other correction is in Corner for October 15th. In speaking of sending a message of some kind to parents of new-born babies I said I wanted to send a Christian message, not a "Christmas" message as the type-setter made me say!

We shall soon be celebrating Thanksgiving Day. It is not a great day in the South of course, or, at least, not so generally and elaborately observed as in New England. But it can be made a splendid day in any church anywhere.

It may be called "Harvest Home Day" and the church can be decorated with fruits and vegetables and flowers of the season. The sermon for the day (morning or evening) may be devoted to some thanksgiving theme and the music and scripture all give voice to thanks. There might be a Harvest Home Festival Concert in the evening with music and recitations. An evangelistic talk might be given. And the day may be made significant by a Thanksgiving Offering. Hermitage Art Company, 3960 N. Hermitage Ave., Chicago, print a very attractive program folder that you could use in sending out invitations or printing the programs. It is numbered 252 if you want to order it. They have an envelope for the offering also. The use of such devices will increase the offering and increase interest. The Duplex Envelope Company, of Richmond, Va., will also help you.

Some day I am going to write at length about Hymn Books, but now all I care to say is that "The Hymnal for American Youth" edited by Augustine Smith is a splendid book for the religious training of young people. The poetry to which music is set means something real in character building and the programs in the back of the book, if followed, would make a great many schools more helpful to youth in worship. We have used the book for several years and can testify to its value. It is published by The Century Company, N. Y. I am sure they would send you a returnable copy for you to examine if you are interested.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

DR. LEON EDGAR SMITH.

The Southern Christian Convention, the founder, and owner of Elon College, had already shown its esteem and confidence in Dr. L. E. Smith by making him its president, and keeping him in that high position through all the sessions since his election at Suffolk, Va., in 1922. And now that Elon College, the greatest, and most fundamental and essential asset and institution of the Convention, needed a man at its helm in this time of stress and strain, it was but natural and logical for all minds and hearts to turn to him as the next president of the College, and as the natural leader of our Christian educational forces. The people of the whole Convention have come to know Dr. Smith well, to love and to esteem him not only for his brilliant intellect, and his gripping power, as a public speaker, and preacher, but for his good judgment in business and his wise leadership in financial and economic matters. But even more than this, Dr. Smith is recognized as a man of vision and of faith, a man of humility and devotion of heart and life to his Lord and Master. Starting with a very humble beginning in Norfolk, with a planked-up building, which on the outside, at least, had hardly the semblance of a church, he with a loyal following has built one of the largest and best equipped houses of worship in all our denomination, and, despite the stress and strain of financial reverses and depression, has managed its finances wisely, and has kept up the most liberal contribution to Missions and to benevolence of any church in the Convention. The people of his own congregation and of the church at large had learned to trust him and to esteem him for his candor, for his singleness of purpose, for his absolute, unquestioned honesty and integrity, for his simple, deep and abiding faith in his Lord as guide and leader of his life.

Should Dr. Smith accept the presidency of Elon College, which is now unanimously offered him by a grateful people and an anxious constituency, he will bring to the College unparalleled advantages of discipline and of training for such a position. He is a graduate of Elon College, and while at Elon served churches in nearby rural districts with such acceptance and success that the salary received more than paid his college expense, and the day he graduated he had more money as the result of his own work than he had the day he entered college, and every church that he had served was anxious to retain him as pastor and, in every instance, showed growth and activity and all were far better when he left them than when he took them. That we call an achievement worth while for a ministerial student struggling through college. After serving successfully our First Church, Greensboro, as pastor after leaving Elon, he went to Princeton University, and after three years of study his graduation there showed results and returns from his labors similar to, if not surpassing those at the time of his graduation from Elon. Beginning as a poor farmer lad on a small Georgia farm, single handed and without outside help he worked and paid his own way through high school, college and university.

Three essentials made Dr. Smith acceptable and fit now for Elon's presidency: First, because of his candor and enthusiasm to win to the work he undertakes the admiration and the support of the people with whom he comes in contact and has to deal.

Second, his business ability and insight in handling and directing finances.

Third, He is a great preacher and so an educator in the best service of that work. His whole life has been dedicated to the service of the ministry. This has peculiarly trained, qualified him for the presidency of Elon College at the present time. Elon is a Church College. Here it is young ministers are educated. They need the impact and the impress of a great preacher. In Dr. Smith they will have this. Then the young people who come up to the College, come for the most part from Christian homes and certainly from homes that desire that their children shall have Christian training. The College will offer to Dr. Smith the opportunities of an unlimited pastorate and a field for service among the brightest and most promising youths of his day. Dr. Smith loves youth and understands young people, and has the power to create in them a desire to do and to be the best of which they are capable.

It is not known that Dr. Smith's church will release him; it is not known that he will accept, but there are hearts that are praying that God will bring this good thing to pass, and that both Christian Temple and Dr. Smith will make this great offering to the common good of the Church, and to the call and the need of our own Elon in this hour of her crisis. Should he accept, no one can doubt but that he will prove a most worthy successor to the four presidents of the past who have poured out their lives, and did their best for our Elon—Long, Staley, Moffitt, Harper—and that he will carry on to greater success and achievement, because the day is greater and the opportunities are larger, the work that these men so well began and carried on with such zeal and devotion.

J. O. A.

NORTH CAROLINA WOMEN'S CONFERENCE.

The good women of the Church are showing the rest of us how to do religious work, and how to put on a conference. The writer has no doubt but that the eighteen ministers and dozen or more laymen who attended the thirteenth annual session of the North Carolina Women's Conference at Elon College, Friday, October 23rd, will all agree to that statement. There is a seriousness and a singleness of purpose in the work of our women that gets results and registers achievement. If there is any conference, or group meeting, held amongst us, in which more information is gathered and more inspiration given than in our annual Women's Missionary Conferences, we do not know where they are. All in these Women's Conferences seem to have a common interest and to be working, not for any individual promotion or preferment, but for the good of the whole and the coming of the kingdom.

The theme of the Elon session last Friday was, "The Kingdom Cometh"; and every address delivered and every report made, declared that fact—"The Kingdom Cometh." It was apparent from the opening word to the closing moment that the women had in mind just one thought: that of doing their part in hastening the coming of the kingdom on earth.

The attendance from the societies and churches was unexpectedly large. One hundred and ninety-four registered delegates and representatives, who, with visitors not registered, carried the assembly easily to 250 or more, it was estimated. Rev. A. W. Hurst, pastor of the College Church, opened the conference at 10:30 A. M., with a very impressive worship period. Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, is president and presented to the Conference, at the beginning of the session, the four district superintendents who were present, also the fifteen pastors and many visitors. Mrs. Rowland's greetings to the Conference were appropriate and impressive, pointing out, as she did, the need of more loyal service and determined activity in a time like this, if results are to be achieved.

While economic depression is upon us, we have the finest opportunity for spiritual impression and progress. And in such a time loyal hearts and willing hands are needed in the service of the Church and for our Lord. "The Kingdom has come" in many, many places, localities and homes, because of the work the women are doing and have done through Missions.

Mrs. R. M. Rothgeb of Raleigh, Cradle Roll Superintendent, made a splendid report for her department, showing the work done the past year, and impressed the audience with the beautiful fact that the "Kingdom Cometh Through Child Life." Her report recommended that the Cradle Roll activities be carried to the Sunday School, and that not an annual, but a monthly service and offering from the Cradle Roll be had.

Mrs. W. T. Scott, unable to be present, presented her report as Superintendent of Literature, calling attention to the necessity of using Mission Study Books and the splendid books that have been chosen this year for use in the Societies. She further pointed out that there was an abundance of literature for any missionary group needing and desiring it now, which groups could and should avail themselves of the same through their denominational offices, or through the office of the Missionary Education Movement.

The climax of the morning session was reached in the report of the Treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Sellars, "The Kingdom Cometh Through Gifts." This report carried anxiety and a thrill to the Conference. Two good friends had promised $500.00 on condition that the women, through their societies raise $4,500.00, thus enabling the women of this Conference for the first time to reach their goal of $5,000.00. Mrs. Sellars report showed that she lacked $89.00 of having this amount. The report was held up, and individual gifts and a public offering were taken, which resulted in $9.00 above the required amount. The women felt that they had done their best in many societies, and to reach their goal in a year of depression like this brought increased faith and courage and a new zeal for great tasks in the Conference. If the men of the churches had denied themselves the past year as the women have, and worked as faithfully for Missions as the Women have, our missionaries would not be begging, and our Mission work would not be suffering for want of funds and friends.

The luncheon hour was one of delightful fellowship. The women of Elon College certainly know how to serve a beautiful and a bountiful luncheon. They had organized their forces perfectly and, seemingly, every person of the Society had her part and acted as if the success of the whole depended upon each. The luncheon was served in the Y. W. C. A. hall of the College, and the many well-loaded tables with inviting appointment, indicated a real spirit of hospitality, royal greeting, and good fellowship on the part of the women of the College and the community.

The chief feature of the afternoon service was a very impressive address by Miss Priscilla Chase, "A Program of Missionary Education for the Local Church." Miss Chase brought to the attention of the body some of the care, pains and expense of producing our literature, especially the Mission Study Books, and incidentally showed why these books were of such worth and merit. Her address revealed the fact that one missionary group in a church is by no means ideal; that it should be the object of this group to produce the ideal church in getting the whole program of the church permeated with missionary education. If a church now does not put on a missionary education program, it is certainly not from lack of literature or available programs and information. It was well worth the assembling of this Conference to hear the address of Miss Chase and to get the information that her address carried. She insisted that all societies use the Guest Book, the Mission Study Book, the Envelope Series, and that Sunday Schools be encouraged to become World Service Schools.

The Mission Secretary was permitted to speak briefly on "The Kingdom Cometh Through Self-Denial," in which address it was stated that the entire missionary movement from beginning till now, and from Paul's day to the present, had been sustained by and through self-denial.

Under Reports of Committees, it was recommended that the goal for next year be $5,000.00. The officers for the coming year are: Mrs. C. H. Rowland, president; Mrs. R. J. Kernodle, vice-president; Mrs. J. P. Barrett, secretary; Mrs. W. R. Sellars, treasurer; Mrs. W. H. Carroll, superintendent of Spiritual Life; Mrs. W. T. Scott, superintendent of Literature; Mrs. J. R. Foster, superintendent of Cradle Roll; Mrs. Helen Mitchell, superintendent of Young People's Work. The place of the next annual session was left in the hands of the committee.

The weather was perfect, the fellowship was delightful, the whole day was inspiring, and the women returned to their homes feeling that truly "The Kingdom Cometh Through Service," and that it is a joy to have a part in that service.

PULPIT QUALIFICATIONS.

The preacher has many functions to fill, but the chief of these is his pulpit deliveries. The pulpit is the heart of his ministry. Much depends upon his pastoral relations with the people but the pulpit embraces his relations to the Bible and the congregation. What are the main points of his obligations for Sunday and the sermon.

I. Prayer. The better one is the greater the necessity for prayer, and, in the study of the Bible, prayer is essential, because it brings him in touch with spiritual revelation because, "holy men of God spoke as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" 2 Peter 1:21. As the word of God was inspired by the Holy Ghost, prayer is necessary in the study of the word in order to get the preacher in a spiritual frame of mind. In prayer God will impart to the preacher the text he should use.

II. Prepare. That is the second step. To read and study to get the meaning of the text and its application to every day life. Study follows prayer. The context of the text, commentaries on the text, and all related literature, as history, poetry, philosophy, anything that opens the field for application of the subject to the members of the congregation. And the congregation embraces all conditions of homelife, associations, education, and character. It requires more skill to preach successfully than other public speaking or teaching.

III. Practice. The successful preacher must practice what he teaches others. In common language he must "practice what he preaches." This is no easy part of his preparation for the pulpit. Jesus put into practice all that He taught. His preaching was simple and plain, and His life was simple and plain. He should keep in mind that he is not preaching to human heads, but to human hearts. "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." Prov. 4:23. There is danger in this age of education of preaching to heads instead of hearts.

IV. Preach. "Preach the Word." II Tim. 4:2. That is the obligation that rests upon the man called of God to preach. Great preachers stick to the Scriptures and they have faith in (a) God, (b) the Bible, (c) the Church, (d) the People. With preparation by prayer, study, and practice, and faith as above, the preacher is ready to enter the pulpit and preach to the congregation.

ELON'S FUTURE.

The human mind can judge the future only by the history of the past. Whenever the Divine power intervenes, then an individual or a group of individuals may see into the future and speak as the prophets of old. They will be come forth tellers. When we are sure that there is the best of human endeavors intermingled with the guidance of the divine hand, then we can hope to predict what the future will hold in store for us. But before we look into the future, let us look at the past.

Those who were present at the Extra Session of the Southern Christian Convention at Burlington, on October 20th, heard the fact brought out as to the session of the Convention just a little over forty years ago which founded Elon College. There were present at Old Providence Church only seven preachers and seven lay delegates. They had no money with which to build a college. They had no place for building such an institution. But they had faith, seriousness of purpose, and determination. Fourteen men with only ten thousand people to look to for help, with nothing but the above-mentioned assets, built an institution that has grown to be what Elon is today.

In the special session which was called on October 20th, there were present about three hundred representatives and delegates. It seemed from the interest, that there was faith, seriousness of purpose, and determination, that characterized this convention that would make the members of the Christian Church believe that within the next forty years, there is to be a great improvement as there has been in the past.

Elon is what she is because some have given of self and means. Many of the loyal members of the Christian Church have sacrificed from her beginning until now. Her future is to be as great in proportion as the members of the Christian Church give of themselves and of their means. The Christian Church is approximately one hundred and forty years old. She has grown three times as fast in the last forty years as she did in the first hundred years of its existence. Our College has been responsible for that growth. It may be that a part of that is due to the lesson which was learned by real unselfish sacrificing. If every member of the Christian Church in the Southern Christian Convention would just lay aside or sacrifice five cents a week for one year, it would amount to $81,200.00. The College needs that much love and devotion on the part of those who love her.

It is the prediction of those who personally know the newly elected president, Dr. L. E. Smith, that if he accepts the position he will make every sacrifice possible for helping to make the College better serve the Church. He is a man of faith in God, the Bible, the Church and the College. His ability as an executive has been proven by the work he has done in the ministry. The Temple, of which he is now pastor, is a monument to his leadership. Elon, in the future, will also be a monument to him and to those who have preceded him if the same enthusiasm, faith, and determination as characterized the Convention can be carried over to the constituency of our Church.

THE SONGS OF ZION.

Two of the writers of the gospels state that the Lord Jesus and His disciples sang a hymn together in the upper room, just before they left for the Mount of Olives. Adam Clarke suggests that the universal consent of Jewish antiquity indicates that the six Psalms, 113 to 118, formed this hymn, called the Hallel, from the word Haleluyah with which Psalm 113 begins in the Hebrew.

The worship and literature of Israel was profoundly enriched by the Psalms of Moses and David and other hymn writers of ancient times. In the Philippian prison Paul and Silas mingled singing with prayer in the night of notable earthquake and their release. The Ephesian Christians were exhorted by Paul to sing and make melody in their hearts to the Lord, in the use of Psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs. Pliny, the Roman historian, wrote of the Christians of the first century of this era, that they met for worship and "sang songs to Christ as God." Luther's heavy-footed lines, entitled "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," were sung by multitudes of believers in the great Protestant Reformation. It served in that great religious movement like the marching songs of nations at war. "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" makes a worthy contribution to American life, especially in the day school period. Communists are not entirely ignorant of the importance of the use of songs in building up patriotism, and the following lines appear as a sample of the diabolical songs they are teaching American children in their summer camps and other rallying places:

"We the rebel children sing,
Perish every Court and King;
We've a world to save and win,
In the Revolution."

Very pleasant is the contrast when we turn our thoughts back to the "Songs of Zion," and recall the beautiful rhythm and reverent sentiments of the songs of Christianity with which the Church has made us familiar from the earliest years of childhood.—Editorial in Wesleyan Methodist.

We praise God at intervals with our words, but our whole life should be a ceaseless song of praise to Him.—Augustine.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

In honor of his father, John Thomas Rountree, his son, Rev. H. E. Rountree, Chaplain in the United States Navy, Charleston, South Carolina, gave him a birthday dinner at the homestead on October 11, 1931. The mother had passed on to the heavenly home on August 28, 1921. The home is in Cypress Chapel Christian Church neighborhood. His father's seventy-seventh birthday was five days before this celebration, but Chaplain Rountree could not arrange the present until the eleventh. Rudolph Siska came from New York with Braxton, son of H. E. Rountree.

Six children and seventeen grand children are living. H. E. has 2; A. F. has 2; Willie T. has 2; Inez, Mrs. H. B. Harrell, has 4; Rochelle has 2; Addie, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, has 2; Mary, Mrs. W. J. Smith, deceased, had 3. This makes seventeen grand children in all. Of the family, 29 were present and 5 absent, but 5 relatives and special friends took their place, so that the whole number present was 34.

The delicious dinner was spread on a table in the yard of the home and all present enjoyed the hospitality and the good meal. Before the dinner was served, Scripture, Prayer and a blessing prepared all to unite in thanksgiving and joy. Mrs. Addie L. Mitchell, sister of Mr. Rountree, of Suffolk, Va., was among the honored guests. It was sweet to see this dear man and his sister sit together, filled with memories of childhood days, mature homelife in bringing up families, and now to share in the thought and hospitality of "Hersey Rountree" as he is familiarly known.

After the dinner, the guests enjoyed conversation in the grove that had been planted by father Rountree many years ago. One of the trees measured three feet in diameter—fifteen feet around. Under these trees, no doubt, all these four living Rountree sons played when they were boys. Two living sisters and the one that has gone, also, enjoyed the shade of these trees in their childhood.

During the afternoon many friends drove in from Suffolk and the neighborhood and added to the occasion by their congratulations and smiles. It was a good day in temperature and sunshine, and made brighter by Christian association and love. One thing was remarkable and that was that it was the celebration of the 77th birthday of John Thomas Rountree and there were 77 persons present during the day. This will be remembered through the coming years.

It was very thoughtful of his eldest son, Hersey E. Rountree, to conceive and provide for this fine celebration and this family reunion. His daughter, Mrs. Harry P. Taylor, her husband and their two children live in the home with father, which makes it sweet for him as he advances in years.

This good day came on Sunday and the pastor of Cypress Chapel Christian Church and the family, Rev. H. E. Brittle, could not be present as he had an appointment to preach at Union Christian Church, Southampton County, where he is, also, pastor. It was my good fortune to be present and enjoy the Christian fellowship of this dear family and to congratulate "Hersey" upon this thoughtful filial honor bestowed upon his Christian father in the home of his childhood.

"THE JOY IN FELLOWSHIP."

Four months of service in a Congregational Christian Church, is the experience of a Baptist supply pastor.

Rev. C. L. Woodward, a Baptist minister, who is supplying in the First Congregational Christian Church of Newport News, Va., until November 1st, has brought into the church that spirit which is so necessary in all churches to the welfare and growth of the Kingdom's work.

Brother Woodward is quoted as saying that "the four months of fellowship with the Christian people of the Newport News church, has been one that brought me great joy in the service of the King." MRS. T. G. HYATTE.

The Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society are blessed with a force of capable and consecrated leaders, who have fallen in complete line of unity and cooperation with the work.

A bright future looms ahead for the First Church and the new pastor who will soon be with them.

The attendance both in Sunday School and Church Services have increased; the Sunday School from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred and sixteen in the past three months.

With the folks working as they now are, with but one purpose both in heart and mind, "Winning souls to Christ," there is no room to doubt but that this church will be doubly blessed in her work of evangelizing the world for Christ.

"Can a Baptist minister be a pastor in the role of supplier?" was the question asked. And the answer came that "A minister of God could be a pastor in any church."

"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every living creature." And the example of Christ is enough to any minister that carries the glad tidings to a lost world, and helps even as a supply to lighten the burdens of men and women.

Tis only a half truth, the poet has sung,
of the

"House by the side of the way"

Our Master had neither a house nor a home,
But He worked with the crowd day by day.
And I think when I read of the poet's desire,
That a house by the road would be good,
That service is found in its tenderest form,
When we work with the crowd in the road.

So I say, let me work with the men in the road,

Let me seek out the burdens that crush,
Let me speak a kind word of good cheer to the weak,

Who are falling behind in the rush.

There are wounds to be healed, there are breaks we must mend,

There's a cup of cold water to give,
And the man in the road by the side of his friend,

Is the man who has learned how to live.

God's blessing upon Newport News Church, and with the arrival of your new pastor may that same spirit of loyalty and cooperation prevail that has been the joy of my four months of fellowship with you.

C. L. WOODWARD.

FROM REV. G. D. HUNT.

We had a fine session of our Conference at Pisgah, Alabama. Almost all of our churches were represented. The business was dispatched in harmony, and in haste, for we only held a short session. Our next session will be with Antioch Church.

We are planning for all of our churches to be supplied with pastors for another year. Our finances were off considerably, but it seems that many of our churches did the best they could, and even if there were any that did not, censure would do no good, so we accept the results, and will try to do better next year.

Our church here at Roanoke has all committees appointed for next year, and we are ready to undertake greater things for the Lord. Our church shows signs of growth in every department, and we must do more for the kingdom if we hold our own.

Last Friday evening, just as we were ready for our evening meal, our house was invaded by members and friends of the church, and we were completely surprised at the assembly and the gifts they brought. Everything that our pantry needed in a time like this was supplied by kind and thoughtful friends, which made it more sacred to us. If it is more blessed to give than to receive; then is it surely a blessed thing to give. We are so thankful for this remembrance. We feel so unworthy of such thoughtfulness, and we were so completely surprised that we did not know what to say. Words failed us, and we just said, "Thank you everyone." We are praying God to bless richly every one who had any part in the good work, and we will try to be more humble and render better service in the Master's vineyard.

I am due to go to New Hope next Saturday, to begin work for the new year with that church. I trust that the Lord will give us a good year.

Let every church elect a representative to the United Conference, which meets with the United Congregational Christian Church at Phenix City, Alabama on November 10th. Let our preachers get ready to go. God bless the meeting.

G. D. HUNT.

RAMSEUR, N. C.

As pastor of Pleasant Union, Spoon's Chapel and Locust Grove, we have come to the appointed time of this Conference year with grateful hearts to the Heavenly Father on unnumbered blessings to us amid the year of depression. It has been a year of growth. The Lord has manifested His Spirit in our midst throughout the entire year. Our revivals were inspiring at each of these places. It has been a year of real joy to the pastor of having the pleasure of laboring with these good people and being called to the same field of labor for the coming year.

At my appointment at Spoon's Chapel on October 18th, my text was, "As therefore ye received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him." (Col. 2:6.) At the close of the service, the good people went to their cars and returned to the church presenting the pastor with a number of gifts, including flour, potatoes, pears, sugar, beans and other things that gladdened his heart.

We are glad to say that we are having a good Sunday School at each of these places. We are praying that the Lord will use us in a more marvelous way and make of us a better pastor for the coming year.

B. H. LOWDERMILK.

SOPHIA.

The meeting at the Sophia Church in which Rev. G. C. Crutchfield was doing the preaching, was concluded last week. Rev. M. T. Sorrell, of Danville, Va., did the preaching the last week of our revival service. The people appreciated the messages brought by Brother Sorrell. He is a very earnest preacher.

During these services there were 13 conversions and 13 additions to church membership. Several of these were children. Two young women applied for membership in the M. E. Church. The total applying for church membership during the meeting were fifteen.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

PRAYER.

God of all mercy, open our hearts to Thee and pour out Thy Spirit upon us. Never didst Thou intend that Thy children should live in any unreal or distant relationship with Thee. We plead for reality, for closeness, for conscious and constant triumph in every heart. For our joy Thou gavest salvation and peace, that in us the Author of peace might be glorified. Forgive our groveling. Put sin under our feet and so exalt in us the day of glory that all our reach may be onward and upward. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

"WILL A MAN ROB GOD?"

"Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings."—Malachi, 3:8.

What a question! Human lips would hardly dare to frame such a question if it had not been penned by inspiration. I was forcibly reminded recently of the kind of robbery that is pointed out in the passage of Scripture referred to, by a little play on the words of the text that came to my notice, which I pass on to my readers:

"Yesterday he wore a rose on the lapel of his coat, but when the plate was passed today, he gave a nickel to the Lord. He had several bills in his pocket, and sundry change, and finding this poor little nickel, he laid it on the plate to aid the people of God in their fight against the world, the flesh and the devil. His silk hat was under the seat, and his gloves and cane beside it, and the nickel was on the plate—a whole nickel!

"On Saturday afternoon he met a friend, and together they had some refreshments. The cash register stamped ninety-five cents on the slip the boy presented to him. Peeling off a dollar bill he handed it to the lad, and gave him a nickel tip when he brought back the change. A nickel for the Lord and a nickel for the waiter!

And the man had his shoes polished on Saturday afternoon, and handed out a dime without a murmur. He had a shave and paid twenty-five cents with equal alacrity. He took a box of candies home to his wife (as he should), for which he paid sixty cents, and the box was tied with a dainty bit of ribbon. Yes, and he also gave a nickel to the Lord!

"Who is the Lord? Who is He? Why, the man worships Him as the Creator of the universe, the One who put the stars in order, and by whose immutable decree the heavens stand. Yes, he does, and he dropped a nickel in to help support the work of this great God here on earth.

"And the man knew that he was only an atom in space, and he knew that the Almighty was without limitations and yet, knowing this, he put his hand in his pocket and picked out the nickel and gave it to the Lord.

"This same man pays twenty-five cents a week for the daily paper, and will not pay four cents a week for his Church paper.

"And the Lord, being gracious, and slow to anger, and knowing our frame, did not slay the man for the meanness of his offering, but gives him this day his daily bread.

"But what happened to the nickel? It was ashamed for the man and hid beneath a quarter that was given by a poor woman who washes for a living."—J. S. M., in Free Will Baptist.

J. O. ATKINSON,
Mission Secretary.

The influence of the gospel in Japan in teaching charity has resulted in establishing a number of charitable institutions. Whereas formerly there was no organized charity, now, all over the country there are charity organizations. Many of these institutions are headed by Japanese Christians. There are asylums for the blind, the deaf, the dumb, and the insane. There has been a complete reformation in these things. The famous orphanage at Wakayama has for years cared for thousands of orphan children. Show me an orphanage, an asylum for the aged and infirm, and I will tell you that it was directly due to the influence of the gospel which the missionaries preached and taught.—Outlook of Missions.

"Whatever else may be scarce, opportunities for doing good are not so. Open doors to helpful service can always be found, and the wisest man is he who makes these possibilities count for most."

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.

Prepared by
MRS. W. M. JAY, Editor.

Foreword.

Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, the efficient superintendent of Literature of the Eastern Virginia Conference has written the following foreword for our programs:

Our programs this year are built around Rural Problems. The rural world is a sick world. The answer to the prayer of Jesus for Christian Society on earth is, that the hungry may be fed, the ignorant educated, the sick made well, the broken and baffled find peace. The world over, two things are necessary—education and religion. We need to climb the Holy Mount for a vision and build up hope in our own hearts.

A vision without a task is a dream, a task without a vision is drudgery, a vision and a task is the hope of the world.

Our task is to understand the world's needs and accept our responsibility. If we have met Jesus of Nazareth, there is no way back, there are new marching orders and the call is "forward"—through education and a deeper consecration. The unknown farmer is the Rural Billion which we study through "Christ Comes to the Village." It is he who feeds the world. This is our opportunity to become informed on the Rural World.

Program for November, 1931.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Board of the Southern Convention, a committee was appointed to make out programs for the whole year. There is such a wealth of material for the Women's Societies that we have been at sea to know just what to offer, but after several consultations and interviews, we have decided to suggest first of all the use of that wonderful and inspiring book, "Christ Comes to the Village," costing 60c. There is a splendid little book on how to use this study book, which may be purchased for 25c. This contains suggestions for devotions and various outlined programs. No doubt many of you read and used the "Guest Book" last year and realized much help. This year we have another "Guest Book," and every society should avail themselves of enough copies for each member to have one. There is also an envelope series of four programs which may be used in connection with the guest book. For those who want something different from either of the above, there is the booklet entitled "Great Little Greece," or "New Turkey," or "Rural Work in Africa." "Our Rural Work in the Near East," "Our Rural Work in the Far East." All of these leaflets cost 5cts each. They all answer the question, "Is there any urgent reason why the Christian women of the west should study now the women of rural Asia and Africa?"

Then there may be obtained a group of eight different program booklets containing four programs, at 10 cents each, which have all the necessary materials for a missionary program. For instance, "India Today," "Why a Woman's Society in the Local Church?" etc. Any of these books and leaflets may be purchased from the Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., or if you will write them and tell them your needs, they will send you plenty of material on approval. There is also a great amount of free, helpful literature that may be had for the asking. Be sure to urge the reading at least of the study book, "Rural Billion" for it is one worth the attention of every woman in our land. May this be a splendid year of study, devotion and information in all our societies, and may we learn to be more sympathetic with the Rural World.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S PROGRAM.

Prepared by

MRS. E. L. BEALE AND MARY LEE WILLIAMS.

Foreword.

This group of programs has been prepared with the hope that it will be a help to leaders of young people. Though they may serve as only a suggestion, they can be changed to meet the needs of the individual society.

"The field is white unto the harvest, but the laborers are few." We may not all be able to go as missionaries, but by study and prayer we can more fully appreciate the efforts and sacrifice of those who do go. And where better can we do this than in our Missionary Societies? "God and the Census," the study book for the year, is splendid.

It would be well to have a meeting at the beginning of the year and outline the year's work, selecting the leader for each meeting and planning something special for each quarter whereby you can raise your apportionment.

Posters to announce the time and place of meeting and simple invitations help increase attendance.

God gave His Son for us. What are we giving to Him? He came to save all, and this year may we remember the vast number who know Him not, and do our part in making Him known to people everywhere.

Program for November, 1931.

TOPIC—"God and the Census."

Theme—"God's Goodness."

I.—Business Period.

II.—Study Period.

Chapters I. and II.—"The Church and the Community."

1. Let the leader give:

- (a) Author.
- (b) Introduction to Book.
- (c) Pioneer Missionary, pp. 1-7.

2. The Story of John Mason Pock, pp. 9-13.

Chapter II.—"The Light for Civic Righteousness."

- 1. The Story of Si Wong, pp. 14-20—a member.
- 2. The Struggle Against Intemperance.
- 3. Ask these questions and have them fully discussed by young people present—
 - (a) What can young people do to help support the prohibition law?
 - (b) Do the movies present a just view of American life? Does the type of movies show have anything to do with the present crime wave? What can young people do to improve the movies in their own community?

III.—Worship Period.

This is the month to take a Thank-Offering.

- 1. Hymn—"Praise Him, Praise Him!"
- 2. Scripture—Psalm 95.
- 3. Prayer.
- 4. A Pageant of Boxes. (This may be gotten from the Lutheran Literature Department, 723 Muhlenberg Building, 1228 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.)
- 5. Hymn—"Faith of Our Fathers."
- 6. Benediction.

WILLING WORKERS' PROGRAM.

Prepared by

MARY LEE WILLIAMS.

Foreword.

This series of programs has been prepared in the hope that they will be an aid to the leaders of Junior Missionary Work in the Southern Convention.

Jesus said, "A little child shall lead them." Surely there is no more important work than to train boys and girls to know the great importance of Missions, and the place missionary work holds in the salvation of the world through Christ.

These programs are suggestive only and may be changed to meet the needs of the various societies. It is important always to announce the time and place of meetings. Posters are very effective for this, and simple invitations aid in getting a good attendance.

It is hoped that these programs will help in making this the best year ever in the Junior Mission Work.

Map Work.

Arrange to have a map of the world at each meeting. Make the study book an imaginary journey, pointing out the places visited. It would interest the children to place a tiny Christian flag at each point.

Scrap Books.

Have the boys and girls make scrap books in connection with the study book. Have them collect pictures of people and scenes of each country studied

Poster Suggestions.

Poster I.—Paste the front cover of the study book on dark green cardboard. Write thereon or letter with black ink:

"Here's an adventure! What awaits,
Beyond these closed, mysterious gates?
I hold my breath a moment:
Behold the magic of your book,
What will you do to me, O Book?"

Poster II.—Use the picture, "The Boy Christ," pasted on gray cardboard. At top of picture write, "The One Who Opened Windows" and at the bottom, "The Friend of Everyone."

Program for November, 1931.

TOPIC—"Open Windows."

Theme—"God Loves His Children in India."

I.—Worship Period.

- 1. Leader—"O, come let us worship the Lord." Children—"For He is our Master."
- 2. Song—"Jesus Loves Me."
- 3. Memory Verse—John 13:34.
- 4. The Sickle—(As this is the month for a Thankoffering, have a special presentation along this line. "The Sickle" may be obtained from the Literature Department of the Lutheran Church, 723 Muhlenberg Building, 1228 Spruce St., Philadelphia.)

II.—Study Period.

- 1. Chapter II. of "Open Windows," told by two of the older children.
- 2. Song—"We've a Story to Tell."
- 3. Benediction—by Leader.

CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet in December at the Christian Church, Waverly, Virginia. A program is to be provided and will be of unusual interest to all who attend.

It is hoped that there will be a larger C. M. A. representation from the churches this year than there was last.

Our annual report shows that out of the 47 churches which compose the Conference in Eastern Virginia, there were but 20 cooperating churches.

This organization has contributed in wonderful measure toward the success which has attended some of our churches in the Conference, assisting those weaker churches, aiding in the building of others, and giving where giving was most vitally needed. It has reaped and is reaping a great reward. We are all inter-related, and allied, and that which helps one particular church, or district, contributes to the benefit of the whole.

This has been one of the chief factors in the growth and maintenance of this Association. All the pastors and people are urged to assist in the growth of this organization. Membership dues are $10.00 per annum for men, $5.00 for women and children, and $10.00 for all organizations, such as Bible Classes, Sabbath Schools, Christian Endeavor Societies.

Are you a member? If not, won't you become one? Make an investment for eternity which yields a dividend of sustained values. The Lord Jesus said: "Sell that ye have and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth, for where your treasure is there will your heart be also." (Luke 12:33-34. H. C. CAVINESS,

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

JEWEL TRUITT, Editor, Glen Raven, N. C.

THE GOLDEN JUBILEE C. E. CONVENTION.

The days in San Francisco were filled to overflowing. We arrived before the day for the Convention, so we spent part of one day sight-seeing down the peninsula. We learned about the lay-out of the city and some of its difficulties resulting from the fact that only one railroad enters the city. Going down the peninsula, we went through fourteen small towns. These towns are so close together that often the dividing line is the center of a street. One of these small towns has been selected by United States research bureaus as a perfect locality as to temperature, pure water and other factors.

We saw the Southern colonial home where Mary Pickford went to make the picture, "Little Lord Fauntleroy." We also saw Kathaleen Norris' home in Palto Alto. She built a lovely house of Spanish type around a tree. A couple of these little towns are millionaire colonies. We passed in front of one estate of 640 acres. In front of this estate and following the street for a mile, is seen stretched out on posts as a fence, a cable that brought the first gold out of a mine that gave the owner of the estate his millions.

We saw the home of the man who nominated President Hoover. Later we visited Leland Stanford Junior University, the college which President Hoover attended. There we learned that Mr. Hoover was in the third class to graduate from the college. Inside the beautiful and unique chapel, a pew is marked as President Hoover's pew. Beautiful mosaics depict religious themes inside the chapel. Da Vinci's "The Last Supper" is back of the altar. Scripture verses are also inscribed on the walls of the Chapel. Mosaic work is also on the outside front of the Chapel. This work is very costly and is done by the hands of great artists. Its beauty can only be comprehended after actually seeing it.

Saturday morning we went out to the Golden Gate to see a ship go through the gate. We had lunch and registered for the convention. At the evening session we were thrilled by the wonderful singing of the convention chorus of four hundred voices, directed by Home Rodeheaver. The first song was "Hallelujah, What a Savior!" Welcome addresses were made, and officers and guests were introduced to the convention. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of International Christian Endeavor, spoke on "Greater Things Than These."

For this convention several songs were presented for the first time. Dr. Poling wrote a hymn about Christian Endeavor entitled "Greater Things Than These." This was one of the convention's favorites. Mr. Rodeheaver sang one that he had written and that was first sung at the San Francisco Convention, "He Keeps on Loving Us Still." One evening session emphasized the use of music in Christian work. Special features of that session were songs by Chinese present, by the Hawaiian group of about forty men and women, and by a group of Negroes who sang spirituals.

On Sunday morning at eight o'clock the Communion Service was held. This was a most impressive service with several ministers taking part on the program, and thirty-two men assisting beautifully in passing the emblems and with eight more men helping in passing the emblems to those who waited upon the congregation.

More than ten thousand young people and adults do not meet in a great convention without a great deal of preparation. Those who appeared on the program brought challenging messages.

Great national speakers were heard. Youth was urged to support world peace, prohibition and good citizenship. Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, our own Young People's Secretary, sounded a keynote for the convention when he said: "The older generation has given us marvelous inventions, but we must remember that only through our own perseverance and proper living can we develop that moral fiber necessary to a life of good." Dr. Stock urged that his listeners devote the time and thought made available by inventive progress to mankind's best interests.

These are general meetings to which all young people of the conference are cordially invited, and should be present. Adults interested in young people's work in their own church are also urged to be present, as well as Sunday School superintendents, Young People's leaders and pastors.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

November 8, 1931.

"OUR SHARE IN MAKING PEACE PERMANENT."
Scripture Reading: Isaiah 2:2-4.

"But be ye not called Rabbi:
For one is your Master, even Christ;
And all ye are brethren."—I. John 3:17.

A very practical way in which each individual, or any group such as a young people's Christian Endeavor Society, may help in advancing the cause of world peace is suggested briefly as follows:

I.—Read. Read the Bible for Jesus' method of settling disputes, and for the best methods suggested in the entire Bible for the governing of nations. Read daily newspapers and magazines. Read the history of the world.

II.—Think. Discover Christ's ideal of brotherhood of mankind. Discover the worthy ideals proposed by those who are striving toward world peace and those who speak and write for it. Learn to pick out the false reasoning the militarists and others who are willing to encourage war for the money they get out of producing the arms, battleships and other supplies. Discover from history the ultimate result of wars. Consider: Is war an instinct in man to be suffered to rule him? Try to decide upon what you think is a better course for settling disputes between nations than war.

III.—Act. Knowledge by itself is not worth much. We must do the most we can according to our opportunities.

Youth may help in securing world peace by being alert to facts, by thinking through the problems that concern nations, and by passing on to others their own reaction, thus helping to create public opinion.

Did You Know?

That there are more men under arms today than in 1913?

That more money is spent on armies and navies than was spent in any year before the World war?

That if there is another war, the destruction of everything living might result from the use of deadly poison gasses now available?

PAUL IN EPHEBUS.

LESSON VI.—NOVEMBER 8, 1931.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather even reprove them."—Ephesians 5:11.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 19:8-20.

Introduction.

Ephesus was an important city of the province of Asia, the western part of the modern Asia Minor. Paul had passed this city in his earlier missionary travels, delaying the launching of the Christian message until after the founding of the mission work in Macedonia and Greece.

When he opened Ephesus and the surrounding region to the gospel, he was launching one of the most important and enduring missions established in his whole career.

Central Cities.

Paul had a genius for church extension. He made the cities centres from which the gospel reached outlying points. He seemed to think that there was no question about the success of religion in the smaller places, if it could succeed in the centres of influence. Seemingly, he carefully founded the Christian Church in important central cities and trusted the extension of the movement to surrounding regions to assistants.

At Ephesus.

The synagogue, as usual, offered the most suitable place to begin the work. The usual difficulty arose with the orthodox Jews, and after three months, Paul led his disciples out from the synagogue to the school of Tyrannus. The "Way" had to become an independent movement. When there is so much similarity in the customs and views of religious groups, it seems a great pity that divisions multiply so frequently in the history of religion. In our own time there are still divisions. Many times it is hard to say whether they are profitable or detrimental. Certainly there have been too many divisions. The Christian group felt compelled to separate from the synagogue, at times the persecution was acute.

Special Miracles.

The Christian message was a vital, spiritual, invigorating power. This power of the Spirit was felt in the lives of people. New integrations of personality occurred—marvels were plainly evident in the work of the church. Demon possession was a general belief of peoples in that age, and there were plenty of evidences that made their belief seem valid. Jesus had exorcised demons. Paul found a need for the same thing in order to give people release and a new organization of their lives. The "name" of Jesus as Lord was used in this way. Some wished to use the name merely as magic.

Religion and Magic.

There has always been a near kinship between religion and magic. Moses and the magicians of Egypt contested in the use of their arts and powers. Daniel found trouble with similar folks in his day. Magicians are still with us today, but most people of our time are not so much confused on the relationship of magic and religion as in ancient times. Magic mystifies and does "wonders" and "marvels." The process is not recognized, but the marvel is observed. Religion is tied close to the moral and ethical needs of man. High religion has no use for mere magic. It is interested in a spiritual power that will enable man to live the good and useful life. Religion has its wonders, but it is more interested in ethics, in morality and spirituality than in mere magic. The early church had to oppose magic because magic did not promote the "good" life. Religion is always interested in the "good."

Ethical Power.

Observe the ethical power in the Ten Commandments. Hebrew religion had a mighty moral and ethical dynamic. Jesus felt that keenly and built upon it. Study the sermon on the mount. It is a tremendous ethical pronouncement. The church must reprove the corrupt and immoral. It must use all its power to promote righteousness.

Permanence.

By living for the enduring values in life, permanency is secured. The church at Ephesus gave itself to the spiritual, enduring values. It became one of the most influential churches of the early Christian movement. Its elders lovingly greeted Paul on his last trip to Jerusalem. We have a great letter on the "oneness" of the church and the supremacy of Christ that is entitled to the Ephesians.

NOTICE.

Rev. H. C. Hilliard, Louisburg, N. C., and a graduate of Elon College last May, has accepted the pastorate of Antioch Church, Warren County, N. C., and is open for work two other Sundays in the month. He will be glad to correspond with any church needing his services.

BOOTLEGGING ALIENS.

Secretary Doak of the Department of Labor is quoted as saying that a racket has been uncovered in New York which has systematically been forging and selling re-entry permits to foreigners ranging from as high as $1,850 each. It has succeeded through connivance of minor federal officers. It is estimated that at least 100,000 aliens have entered the country in this way. The government, of course, is smashing this racket. Now let some enterprising promoter launch an Association Against the Immigration Laws. He would have all the wet arguments: "the laws aren't enforced," they are corrupting department officials," "making counterfeiters, perjurers and bribers out of our citizens," etc., etc. It sounds foolish doesn't it. Yet otherwise intelligent citizens believe these arguments applied to prohibition.—Exchange.

"Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 28:19-20.

MONDAY.

THE BLESSED.

LESSON: Matt. 5:1-12.

Here we are told who is blessed and who is not. What is blessed and what is not. Among these, if there is one more blessed than another, is "the poor in Spirit." These are humble souls who have nothing with which to stand before God, nothing of their own to make themselves blessed; they cannot even plead their own righteousness and love.

"They that mourn;" these are they that pass through sorrows that refine their souls, a godly sorrow; and it is said that this includes also those who grieve because of the sins they have committed.

"They which do hunger and thirst after righteousness." These are they who have an insatiable longing for righteousness to prevail everywhere in everything.

To hunger and thirst are the most imperative of the natural desires. In the same way, saints ardently desire righteousness. As we look about us and comprehend those things that constitute the hungerings of folks, we feel like saying, "woe woe, woe!" Apparently, it is so sadly lacking. Yet God has promised to fill us, to satisfy our longing if we ask it.

"The pure in heart." They who brook no unchastity, anger, falsehood, nor any other wicked lust, in their hearts, but strive to be holy, these shall see God.

In all these blessings, we are entirely surrounded by the mercy of God; we understand more and more of the glory of God; we shall "see God" more clearly, as He is, in fulness and richness of glory; we are "children of God," like Him, and are called "Sons and Daughters;" the kingdom of God is ours forever.

Prayer—Lord Jesus, teach us thy way, and keep us from the path of hypocrisy and unrighteousness. Let righteousness and truth lead us. Thou who art most contrite, make us humble and quicken our spirits, and let us be numbered among the saints on earth and with those before thee on thy throne in heaven. Amen.

TUESDAY.

SEALED.

LESSON: Rev. 7:1-12

"And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God; and he cried with a loud voice . . . saying, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our Lord in their foreheads."

This is a wonderful passage. It is undoubtedly a promise to all God's saints, and it signifies that God knows each and makes them His peculiar care to deliver them ultimately from tribulations. As the angel of the Lord led Lot out of Sodom, so shall God's faithful be saved from the impending doom of the ungodly. Even the ungodly shall be spared longer for their sakes. But when the measure of sin is full, and the Lord takes his children away, destruction must follow. Destruction ensues now where God is not taken into account and obeyed.

He who lives in Jesus has the seal of the living God upon him, and it is so much in his forehead that they who see him "take knowledge of him that he lives with Jesus." And the mark is so plain and powerful that the devil is compelled to get out of the way.

Prayer—Lord Jesus, turn our eyes toward heaven. Grant us grace and strength to strive against sin, and give us victory that we may stand before Him for His seal. Sanctify us holy, and let us be called thy children in spirit and truth. We want to live so that thy glory may be seen in our faces. Make our whole lives to bear witness for thee. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

LIFTED UP.

LESSON: Job 15:14-16.

"What is man that he should be clean? . . . that he should be righteous? Behold, he putteth no trust in his saints."

According to this text we might say that man is an unholy thing, as God is holy. However, that would not be correct, for nothing can be properly compared with the holiness of God. How then shall we be worthy? How shall we live that He will claim us and brand us as His own?

Answer: From the beginning we are in His image. That image has fallen and is defaced by sin. All of the saving graces in Jesus Christ is to restore that image to its completeness and perfection, yea, to the holiness of God. As the image of God means the holiness of God, so our inner natures, endowed by the grafting in of Jesus Christ, our saviour, will be lifted up by that new birth in him until we shall be like Him when we "see Him face to face."

To do this we must cease to contemplate or dream of our own piety; we must see our own uncleanness and unrighteousness, hate it and turn away from it; die unto self and sin; we must "draw nigh unto God"; "trust also in Him and He will bring it to pass."

Prayer—Dear Lord God, have mercy upon us and forgive us of every sin. Heal us of every disease of the soul and body, and lift us up daily from what we are to what we ought to be, and make our lives to praise thee forever. Amen.

THURSDAY.

TWO OR THREE IN AGREEMENT.

LESSON: Matt. 18:15-22.

"If two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done unto them of my Father which is in heaven." Verse 19.

This lesson shows us clearly that Christ is in his true children, and that his church on earth is one with his church in heaven; exclusion from one is exclusion from the other. He who does not live in fellowship of the Lord on earth can have no fellowship with him in heaven.

Again this text wonderfully strengthens our faith in the power of united prayer. Let two or three be agreed as touching any one thing, and we are promised that we shall receive what we ask. If we do not receive what we ask, just as we ask it or as it may happen to be in our minds, we shall receive something else infinitely better, so much better are His thoughts than ours.

The lack of family prayers these days, the absence of the Family Altar, is greatly deplored by all the saints. When parents gather the family together in a circle and pray for the children and the children pray for the parents. What an impetus in Christian thinking! What heavenly blessing follow them!

Likewise this union of thought may apply to persons in the same profession, or neighbors; to all Christians having a common interest, having the same thing at heart. In such agreement there is power with God to transform the world, and He has said we shall have it, if we are so agreed and so pray.

Prayer—O God, be merciful unto us; increase our faith; bring more of us together in thy spirit, and make us to labor and pray together for thy kingdom to come. In His name we ask it. Amen.

FRIDAY.

OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER.

"If thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone etc." Matt. 18:15 and 16.

This text teaches us that we are to care for one another; and that we are never to cease forgiving others their sins against us. It appears that in this we have the duty of saving our brothers from the snares of the devil. It is not enough that we bear their wrongs with meekness; we must do all within our power to put them on the right path. If we think of ourselves only and let them go on their way, we are as bad off as Cain, who said to the Lord, "am I my brother's keeper?" and in so doing we act in a spirit directly contrary to the teachings of Jesus, who said "forgive seventy times seven."

As the heart of God is an everlasting well which flows forgiveness for his children, even so shall our hearts be toward the brethren. It is in the way that the kingdom of heaven is a kingdom of saved sinners who are saved through the infinite mercy of pardon. We need forgiveness as often as the other fellow needs ours and both need the forgiveness of God.

Prayer—We beseech thee, O Lord, to increase our faith. Lead us into a thorough understanding of thy infinite love and mercy. Help us to see our unworthiness and be humble. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE ANGER OF GOD.

LESSON: Psalm 7:11-17

"God is angry with the wicked every day." Verse 11.

This lesson is another way of saying "we shall reap what we sow." "If we sow to the whirlwind we shall of the whirlwind reap corruption." In our understanding of a God of love we do not comprehend the full meaning of the psalmist in saying that "God is angry with the wicked every day." In explanation thereof, we understand that sin is retributive and carries with it the seed of its own punishment. Punishment may be taken as the expressed anger of the Lord, but it is an anger that is the fruit of certain conduct and in sowing the seed of it we reap the consequences, and we reap it in hundred fold sometimes.

Justice to all without respect to persons is the highest virtue of a judge. Now, the highest perfection of justice is found in God. This truth does not contradict that other truth that the kingdom of God is a kingdom of grace in which forgiveness rules and saves to the utmost. "He who believes and is baptised shall be saved"—that is—made one with Him. He who believes not but lives a life of sin will reap payment in full. The punishment of all his sins shall be visited upon him. There is no escape, save through Jesus. This is the "sword that is whetted," "the" (Continued on page 13.)

FAMILY ALTAR.

bow that is bent," the "arrow" that is aimed. The patience of the Lord may spare him a long time; "Punishment for an evil work is not speedily executed," says Ecclesiastes, but justice is close enough at hand to make its demand upon us in every decision of our life. If we heed not, at last it will draw its sword.

Prayer—O righteous Lord our defense is of Thee, help us to trust in Thee and turn not from the way of right, justice, rectitude, love and mercy. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE "OLD MAN" AND THE NEW CREATURE.

LESSON: James 3:13-18. Ephesians 4.

"I therefore the prisoner of the Lord beseech you . . . that we put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt . . . and be rewarded in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness."—Ephesians 4:1, 22-24.

It seems to be the inclination of human nature to be vain, puffed up, wise in conceit, self-willed. To be meek and lowly are graces to be acquired. They are not graces born in us. But the new birth in Jesus Christ, our Lord, does carry with it all the Christian graces, and the disciples of these graces keeps us humble and victorious in subduing evil unto its death.

To know the living spirit of fellowship which characterized the Lord Jesus Christ, and to know the love of Christ, means to have visions of the sinfulness of sin and to hate it; means to seek out the glorious way in Jesus and find something to do and to live for besides cultivating bitter fruit. Christ enjoins us to "seek those things that are above;" this wisdom is pure having no admixture of the devil's spirit; it is "gentle," "easy to be entreated," "full of mercy and good fruits," "without partiality, and without hypocrisy," just earnest and upright.

Prayer—Help us, O God, that we may know Jesus in that new birth that makes us "new creatures" and changes our old nature to the new in Christian living. Let no bitter roots grow up in our lives. Make us fruitful branches of the vine, our Lord Jesus. Amen.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

One of the happiest occasions that the Superintendent of the Orphanage has enjoyed since he has held that position, was a surprise birthday dinner given me at the "Baby Home" on October 20th.

Miss Thelma Holland, who has charge of the kitchen and dining room in the "Baby Home," and the children had planned this surprise for a number of weeks, and had kept it a close secret. Just think of forty little children keeping a secret; but every little fellow was very much enthused over giving me a real surprise, so they did not mention it. Each child wanted to have a part in the gift that they presented to me as a birthday gift, and in order to get this part, some of them picked cotton for a neighbor, some gathered nuts and sold them, some did one thing and some did another, to get a nickel or a dime. And where the little tots could do nothing to earn a few pennies, Miss Holland would hire them to sweep or do some other little job so that they could earn their own money to invest in the present. Every little child had a part.

Miss Holland's mother, of Selma, N. C., made and sent the Birthday Cake, and it was one of the prettiest I have ever seen. Several times during the dinner hour the little fellows would stand up at the table and sing a song of their own composition, especially for the occasion.

After the dinner was served Miss Holland arose and, in behalf of the matrons and children in that building, presented me with a beautiful tie as a birthday gift, which was highly appreciated. It would have been a hard heart that would not have been touched with the little songs of appreciation which they sang. The little tots stay at the "Baby Home," and it is really interesting to visit them at the dinner hour and see the nice table manners and the splendid order in a dining room with forty little children in it. Our surprise birthday dinner will long be remembered with lots of appreciation.

How about the Thanksgiving Offering in your church and Sunday School. Are you going to try to get every member to give something to swell the amount? Start now and get your people interested. Remember our little children at Thanksgiving. They are entirely dependent upon you.

CHAS. D. JOHNSTON,
Superintendent.

THIRTEEN PARTY PLANS FOR ADULTS. By Martin I. Webber. Cokesbury. pp.165. $1.25.

Dr. Webber is director of Adult Work for the United Brethren in Christ, and so writes out of ripe experience as well as deep conviction. He believes that social activities for adults are imperative and that they should be church-centered. He is free from superstition, which is a real gain. Or rather we should say he provides one social a month and puts in one for good measure—a baker's dozen. Adult leaders will find this an invaluable book—fully up to Cokesbury's high standard.

CHRISTMAS TRADITIONS. William M. Auld, D. D. The Macmillan Company. 179 pp; $1.75.

A story of Christmas and the various traditions that surround the Yuletide. The contents include: The Coming of Christmas, Christmas and Paganism, Bringing Home Christmas, The Christmas Tree, and other chapters of equal interest. Here we learn the origin of Christmas, the history of the use of holly, ivy and mistletoe, the beginning of the giving of gifts and the story of Santa Claus. Christian in spirit, the book is historically accurate, and in its pages may be found information condensed from sources far and wide. Will make a wonderful Christmas gift. J.T.K.

SHALL LAYMEN TEACH RELIGION? Erwin L. Shaver. Richard R. Smith, Inc. 188 pp; $1.50.

Every pastor and every Sunday School superintendent must face sooner or later the question which is projected by the title to this book. The changes in methods employed in the day school, are gradually forcing upon us the consciousness of the inefficiencies in the program of religious education in our churches. The question is how to overcome the present deficiencies and build up an adequate church school. Dr. Shaver gives some very interesting thoughts upon this question, but emphasizes the fact that though the paid leader is necessary in the larger schools of the present time, the bulk of the work must be, and should be carried on by laymen. J.T.K.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF BIBLE HISTORY. John Garstang, M. A., D. Litt. Richard R. Smith, Inc. 73 plates; 19 maps; 424 pp; $5.00.

Written in a most pleasing style, "The Foundations of Bible History" appeals to the layman as well as to the student of Biblical history. It gives a coherent account of the settlement of the Holy Land by the Israelites and of their government under the Judges. It covers the periods of Joshua and Judges. Divided into four parts, it gives a graphic Historical Background, the Campaigns under Joshua, the Settlement of the Tribes, and the Tribes under the Judges. Especially interesting is the first division referred to above, clarifying chronology that is usually most disturbing to the average reader, and laying a foundation for the other sections by describing the topography of the land and the condition of its inhabitants prior to the invasion led by Joshua. The entire work is approached in a scientific manner and is based upon archaeological and topographical research of ancient Bible traditions. Much light is shed upon the exactness and veracity of the oldest sources of the Bible. "The book places the study of Bible history upon a new and higher level." J.T.K.

THE NEW DIMENSIONS OF RELIGION. Allyn K. Foster. The Macmillan Company. 290 pp; $2.00.

Dr. Foster is secretary of the Department of Student Work of the Baptist Board of Education, and as such has the necessary qualifications for the book which he has written. It has been observed that "the division into a natural world and a spiritual world is superficial, and that the real cleavage is between measurable and non-measurable aspects of the same world." In this volume the writer does much to sustain religious faith without doing violence to the modern views of physics and biology. He presents religion not as a form but as a natural and actual relationship that can be scientifically conceived. The spirit in which the book is written may be seen in a short excerpt from its preface: "After a generation of amazing spiritual destitution, men everywhere are poignantly athirst for God. While we may never return to the forms of the older orthodoxy, we must recover the experience that lay at the heart of it, if man is to take up again his spiritual advance. . . . This book, therefore, is a modest attempt to state the essential realities and the essential experiences of religion in the prevailing language of science." He has succeeded well in his attempt. ELON COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

ELON was founded to train Christian leaders for the New South.

ELON has done its task well—one graduate in seven being in the Christian ministry. The other six express Christian leadership in the various professions and vocations. Experience teaches that spiritual leadership must be indigenous.

The South is now a New South ready for an inclusive Church, the type of Church for which Elon has stood for forty years and for which she is prepared to produce capable leadership.

With no Church in the community, save the College Auditorium, ELON has practiced Christian Union for faculty, students, and community for four decades.

Its contribution to Christian Education is nationally known and approved.

Its Christian Education Building, providing laboratory facilities for religious leadership training, is unique and is the first college building of its type in the world.

ELON confines itself to undergraduate liberal arts work with that religious emphasis which befits the Christian College.

In ELON the Congregational-Christian Church has an asset of marvelous hopefulness.

The South needs her Yale, her Oberlin, her Carleton, her Pomona for the intellectual leadership of the United Church. Many regard ELON as strategically located and spiritually endowed to become such a center of illumination and leadership training.

OBITUARIES.

GILBERT—CHRISLER.

A marriage of much interest to our Roanoke Church occurred recently, when Mr. Otis Gilbert of Roanoke, Ala., led to the altar Miss Verna Chrisler. The church was beautifully decorated, and Miss Nellie R. Sledge played the wedding march. The pastor spoke the words that made them man and wife.

Miss Chrisler is the efficient secretary and treasurer of our local church. They will reside in the city.

May God give them a happy life.

G. D. HUNT.

OVERMAN.

Andrew Jackson Overman of Pleasant Hill Church, passed to his reward, October 9, 1931, aged 75 years 1 month, 12 days.

He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, five sons and two daughters. May the heavenly Father comfort them in their bereavement. Besides the wife and children, there are 24 grand-children and a host of other relations and friends.

Burial was at Pleasant Hill, where he had long been a member. The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Parker.

A very large congregation attended the burial, and many beautiful flowers were placed upon his grave.

THE CHURCH ANXIOUSLY WAITING.—

Everywhere I go, I am greeted with the question: "Will Dr. Smith accept the call to Elon College?" The whole church seems to be anxious for this chosen leader in the church to head up our college and save the institution from further delay in selecting a president. The alumni, the faculty, the student body and the constituency of the entire church will rally at once to the leadership of Dr. Smith. He has been tried and found true, capable, trustworthy and successful in leadership just such as our college needs at this time, and his acceptance will receive the unanimous support of the church.

MINISTER, SOCIALIST, LAYMAN.—

After twenty-five years as a Presbyterian minister, Norman Thomas, Socialist leader and candidate for President in 1928, has become a layman again. At his own request and with "deep regret," the New York Presbytery struck his name from its roll at its last meeting. Mr. Thomas at one time served as assistant pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church in New York. When his Socialistic convictions grew, however, he asked to be transferred to a poorer church, and was sent to take charge of the American parish on upper East Side. While there he decided to take up the cause of Socialism. He is one of its most earnest and highly respected champions.—M. P.-Recorder.

KAGAWA IN GLADDEN'S PULPIT.—

At this time, Columbus, Ohio, is awaiting a visit from Toyohiko Kagawa, the Japanese Christian leader and social reformer, who speaks there Sunday afternoon. It is quite appropriate that the great oriental exponent of the social gospel should speak from the pulpit of First Congregational Church, made famous by Washington Gladden. Incidentally, this will be one of the last public gatherings in this historic building, Columbus' most centrally located church, scene of many down-town religious meetings. The beautiful new First Congregational edifice on East Broad Street, adjoining the new art gallery, just outside the business district, is almost ready for occupancy.

INTER-RACIAL SEMINAR.—

Hubert C. Herring, executive director of the Inter-racial Seminar, with headquarters at 112 E. 19th Street, New York City, announces the second session of the seminar, which is dated Nov. 10th-20th. He states that through the first seminar of last year many cities have become the nuclei for greater inter-racial co-operation in their communities. The program for this season provides for an itinerary to at least twelve cities, beginning with Cincinnati, and including the following: Nashville, Birmingham, Montgomery, Tuskegee, Atlanta, Greensboro, Richmond, Washington, Hampton, and New York. The trip is to be made in specially provided Pullman cars, and time is taken in each city to study the local situation and to receive information from men who are thoroughly qualified to give it.

DRY AGITATION RENEWED.—

The dry side of the prohibition question is being agitated more vigorously at present in Columbus, Ohio, than for some years past. First, the allied forces, headed by Daniel Poling, opened their nation-wide campaign there. This weekend, the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association will have a meeting of delegates from Ohio colleges there. Ben W. Spence, Canadian critic of the Dominion's liquor control methods, is speaking frequently in the State. Prohibition will also be an important topic of religious education at the State young people's conference of the Ohio Council of Religious Education, in Columbus this month. When we can get our young people lined up on the right side of the great religious and moral questions of our nation, the nation will be safe, for they have the vision, the enthusiasm, the energy and the intelligence to fight for these issues until they win.

JANE ADDAMS AWARDED.—

The $5,000 Pictorial Review achievement award for 1931 was presented last month to Miss Jane Addams, for outstanding work in the cause of international peace and for her contribution to social welfare through Hull house activities. The award is made annually to an American woman, who is selected by a distinguished committee as having made the most valuable contribution to literature, art, natural science, philanthropy, or social welfare. Miss Addams indicates that she intends to spend the $5,000 "to relieve unemployment in some way." She has done signal service and is known throughout the civilized world for the humanitarian work she has done and is doing at the present time. It was our pleasure to visit Hull house some years ago, while attending the International Sunday School Convention in that city. Such a visit will convince any one of the wonderful service that is being done by Miss Addams.

JEWISH WOMEN FOR DISARMAMENT.—

Many thousands of Jewish women are attaching their signatures to a petition favoring the budgetary limitation of armaments. The petition is being circulated under the auspices of the National Council of Jewish Women. Among the other women's organizations which are preparing similar petitions are the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the American Asso-

PREDATORY CAPITALISM DENOUNCED.—

"A proposal to change the name of the church was given slight attention, no welcome and a short shrift. But considerable interest was aroused by a discussion of social problems and economic situations. Canon Scott, distinguished padre and poet, began references to the Beauharnois scandal as expressing the predatory nature of modern capital, when the chair silenced him at the instigation of the Bishop of Montreal. Canon Scott then said that he would have to speak on the scandal of the synod not allowing him to protest against the scandal of capitalism. But subsequently the Bishop of Montreal gladdened many hearts by stating formally that he had no desire to check protest against the Beauharnois deal, which he denounced in emphatic terms. He had only desired to keep the canon to the subject under discussion at the time. Thus the historic Church of England showed herself not lacking in ability and courage to formulate a Christian protest against those aspects of modern finance which have shocked Christian people in Canada."—The Christian Century.

NEW "AMERICAN TRANSLATION" OF BIBLE.—

Prof. E. J. Goodspeed's "American Translation" of the New Testament and the translation of the Old Testament made by a group of scholars working under the editorship of Prof. J. M. P. Smith, will soon appear in a single volume as an American translation of the Bible. It is to be published by the University of Chicago Press. In defining what they mean by an "American" translation, the editors assert that the language used "cannot be allowed to fall to the language of the street." The effort is to maintain in a translation the literary level of the originals; the translation is American in the sense that the writings of Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson, are American. Large space given to discussion of the translation in the daily press in all parts of the country, indicates wide spread interest. What a fine service churches would do to present their pastors a copy of this Bible for a Christmas present. Prof. Goodspeed is one of the outstanding New Testament Greek scholars of America, and this Bible would give our ministers great benefit in the latest and best interpretation of the Sacred Scriptures.

NOTES-PERSONALS

Dr. L. E. Smith was in Richmond on Monday of this week on business. While here he spent a short while in the Managing Editor's home, where he is always a welcome visitor.

Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, Henderson, N. C., has been elected pastor of Apple's Chapel, Guilford County, N. C., to succeed Rev. R. A. Whitten, who is to give his full time to the work at Henderson.

The latest report from Rev. H. S. Hardcastle is that he hoped to leave the hospital the last of this week, and to be able to return to his home in Suffolk, Va., within two or three weeks. He is at St. Albans, Vt., where he went for his vacation, August 1st, and where he has been since in the hospital under treatment for undulant fever.

Rev. A. R. Flowers, writing under date of October 24, says: "I have had splendid success this year in Interdenominational Sunday School and Christian Endeavor work in Georgia, North and South Carolina. This is a great field of labor and offers unlimited opportunity for service. I plan to return to Florida about December 15, for about two and one-half months."

The annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is called to assemble in Philadelphia December 2-3-4. The meetings are to be held in Arch Street Presbyterian Church except on Thursday evening, December 3, when a union meeting will be held in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church. Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Council, will preside at the meeting. A very promising program for the meeting has been prepared.

Rev. Dale O. Sanders has succeeded Rev. J. H. Dollar as pastor of our Reidsville Church and has begun his ministry there. He was married last Sunday to Miss Mignon A. Atkinson, daughter of Rev. D. B. Atkinson, Dean of Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga., and with his bride attended the Woman's Conference, Elon College, October 23rd. Our congratulations and best wishes are extended to the happy pair, and we wish for them a successful stay and service with our Reidsville Church.

Dr. M. J. W. White, Mission Hospital, Cagayan, O. M., P. I., under date of Sept. 28th, says: "We have recently received notice of the churches which are to undertake our support the coming year and note they are half Congregational and half Christian. Our hospital work is progressing nicely, but due to the general depression our receipts are lower than we expected. Mrs. White and the new missionary, Doris True White, who arrived on September 3, are doing fine. We are all enjoying good health and are happy in our work and home here."

The report of Mrs. W. R. Sellars, Treasurer, North Carolina Woman's Missionary Conference, is, indeed, a gratifying one. The women set their goal at $5,000.00, which goal they had never reached in any previous year. Despite the depression and the general cry of hard times, the women of this Conference, as Mrs. Sellars' report shows, went $6.90 beyond their goal. They had received a challenge from two good friends who were to give $500.00 in case the women of the Conference raised $4,500.00 This challenge served its purpose and created an abiding interest among the women of the Conference.

Mrs. Ada Teague died recently at her home in Burlington, N. C., and her body was carried for burial to Leaksville church cemetery, near Luray, Va., where her first husband, the late lamented Rev. E. T. Isley, was buried. Sister Teague was one of the most devout women of our acquaintance, and seldom was her church door open for any service that she did not attend. In her will she bequeathed two-thirds of her estate to missions and one-third to the Christian Orphanage. However, Supt. C. D. Johnston, who is named one of the executors is of the opinion that little, if any, will be left of her possessions when all bills for recent illness and burial expenses are paid.

The Christian Unity League meets in Cleveland, Ohio, November 17-19, 1931. A very inviting program has been prepared and much is expected of the meeting. Dr. Peter Ainslie of Baltimore is Chairman of the Continuation Committee and is booked to open the Conference at 4:00 p. m., November 17th. The League now has more than 5,000 signers from nearly every state in the union and from nearly every denomination in America. The object of the Conference is to cultivate the spirit of Christian unity among denominations looking ultimately to Church union. Any SUN reader wishing to know more of the program and the Conference may secure information by addressing The Christian Unity League, 230 N. Fulton Ave., Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Herman N. Truitt, president of the Youth Fellowship, Southern Christian Convention, with his associates has made a program for the Young People's meeting during the session of the N. C. and Va. Conference and the Eastern N. C. Conference. According to this program, the meeting will be held, for the N. C. and Va. Conference, in Bethany High School Building, near Mt. Bethel Church, November 10, beginning at 7:30 p. m., and the meeting for the Eastern N. C. is to be held at Shallow Well Church, November 18, beginning at 7:30 p. m. These programs have been printed in connection with the program of the edregular annual Conference. Mr. Truitt is urging pastors and superintendents of Sunday Schools to announce these meetings publicly and urge attendance from their churches and schools. It is hoped that a large number of young people will attend each of these meetings.

Our good friend and beloved brother, Rev. Albert Godley, Tenaflly, N. J., is an example of loyalty and devotion to the church and its enterprises that should be an inspiration to all of us. He is now a "shut-in" and at the age of eighty-four has no salary, but writes this heartening note: "May God richly bless you in all the great work you are doing as editor of the Christian Sun, as Secretary of Missions, and in your ardent efforts for Elcoll nCBiibvbgkqjcmfwypshr ardent efforts for Elon College. I have no salary, but a very small sum came to me lately, and I set aside three-tenths for Missions and other church enterprises; and our Purity League needs much. I wish to have a little interest in our Mission work in the South and in our Elon College, and so I am enclosing you a dollar for each. I deny myself of everything, and it's a joy to do so for our Lord. Because of a broken hip last January, I have spent five months in a hospital and am yet in my room upstairs too lame to get out to work. I read the Christian Sun, the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, and the Bible—a blessed comfort."

A good, faithful church secretary makes this inquiry by way of a personal letter: "If you will tell me how to get the heads of families to become interested in Sunday School and any special work outside of church attendance, you will render a real service; for if the heads of families would become interested in Sunday School and special church work, we could certainly do more for the enterprises of the church than we are doing. If our Sunday School were to disband, the church doors would be entirely closed before another year. It would seem, therefore, that the church as a whole should show more interest in the Sunday School and in the other enterprises, but it does not. Our Sunday School has paid more, for instance, for Missions the past two or three years than our church has paid. And yet the members of the school pay almost all that is paid when we take our special offerings." This church secretary presents a real problem, for it is a well-known fact that the Sunday School is really the church at work, and yet this very strange phenomenon obtains in many churches, especially in rural churches, where many heads of families who attend church do not attend Sunday School and take no part therein.

It was very generous and considerate of Dr. Harper, in visiting the Near East, to offer to the Mission Board, without charge, to visit many of the Mission colleges, schools and churches, under the auspices of the Mission Board, and it was equally considerate and courteous on the part of the Mission Board to accept this friendly service and request that he bear greetings from the Board to the Mission points, without putting himself under obligations to the Board or the Board under obligation to him. Such gratuitous and gracious service as this is one of the invaluable contributions to Missions about which we spoke in our editorial last week, a service which is worth much to the Church, and to the cause of a better understanding about Missions, and yet at no expense whatever to the Church and to the cause of Missions. We often hear people say that they will not give to Missions because little of what is given gets across to its intended purpose. Such people in the first place ignore the facts in the case and then ignore the equally larger fact that invaluable contributions, and much faithful service, are given to Missions and to the cause of Missions, without a penny of cost to Boards and churches charged with sponsoring Mission work. Dr. Harper's articles now appearing in the Sun will be read with interest and profit.

POUNDING.

On the first Sunday of this month, as I approached the pulpit at Mt. Zion to begin the services of the evening, I was very much surprised when I noticed so many articles of much value to my family and myself that the good people of Mt. Zion community and church had brought and placed in the stand. The articles are such as flour, meal, syrup, coffee, lard, sugar, dried fruit, canned fruit, jellies, preserves, soda, soap, fresh tomatoes, nice chance of fine apples, one new quilt, one large bath towel, and some things that I will not take space to mention.

My family and I extend our deep appreciation and many thanks to each contributor for these things, and we pray God's blessings upon each one that administered in the least way, and may we share together the rich blessings of our Lord and Master in our church work this year.

I am asking an interest in the prayers of the people of Mt. Zion church and of all Christian people everywhere, that God will make me a better pastor, and a more efficient preacher. God give me grace, and faith, to rejoice in time of depression as well as in time of peace and plenty.

With best wishes to our editor and the entire force.

M. T. MEACHAM.

Pastor.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

REV. R. E. NEWTON, of Pomona, Florida, has been elected President of the Ministers' Association, which is composed of ministers in a number of communities centering in Crescent City. This Association is very active in promoting movements of common interest to the churches in that vicinity and is developing a strong interdenominational fellowship. It is an organization that might be copied generally. Mr. Newton has been active in this association since its organization and is honored by being elected president.

KEY WEST, FLORIDA. The Christian Endeavor Society of this church is working hard in preparation for the entertainment of the District Christian Endeavor Meeting, which is to be held with this church this month. The pastor, Rev. E. Richard Evans, reports that the Missionary Department has taken on new life under the leadership of Mr. Joe Boza. The projects are being especially emphasized. He reports that the church has built a fine sleeping porch on the parsonage but the pastor assures us that he is not going to sleep on the job on account of it. We know him too well to ever suspect him of ever being a sleeper on the job.

MIAMI FIRST CHURCH. Rev. Helen F. Lanham, associate minister in full charge of the work until the return of Dr. Robert MacDonald, has recently had Mr. C. H. Reeder, formerly mayor of Miami, as the guest speaker at a Sunday evening service. This church has been having interesting guest speakers on Sunday evenings. This church has an active young men's class under the leadership of Mr. J. Tweedell. One of our pastors recently wrote: "The church service was the best for a month and the atmosphere was beautiful. You would have enjoyed it immensely. It really was church. Quite a number, even outsiders, have commented upon the ever increasing spirit of reverence."

INTERLACHEN, FLORIDA. This little village has a Methodist and Congregational Church. The Methodist church has preaching service once a month and the Congregational church has a full time resident minister for eight months of the year, Rev. C. DeW. Brower. The churches have some united features, such as a Union Christian Endeavor Society, meeting alternately in the churches. Recently when the Congregational pastor renewed his mid-week prayer meetings the Methodists asked to be included. Consequently, the prayer meeting has become a union meeting, also held alternately in the churches. This is a fine Christian attitude and should result in promoting a spirit of cooperation in the community.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT G. WILLIAMS visited the Jacksonville office recently on their way to their winter home at Lake Worth from their summer home at Barre, Massachusetts. Mr. Williams is Moderator of the State Conference and Mrs. Williams is President of the Federation of Congregational Women of Florida. Their visit gave an opportunity for the discussion of plans for the winter's work and the general missionary program of the state, and also for the annual State Conference, which will be held in Lake Worth April 22-24. This will be the first week-end conference ever held. Interesting plans are being developed. Mr. Williams is the first layman to be elected Moderator of the Conference since 1918 and one of few laymen to hold that office in the history of the Conference.

REV. GEORGE PENN, Albemarle, North Carolina. The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty for October 15th has the following interesting paragraph: "Sending promising boys and girls away to school is one of the most ancient and honorable avocations of the Christian minister—and one which is still being followed. George W. Penn is pastor of a church in the mill section of Albemarle, N. C. He writes "A revolutionary thing happened in our church the other day when two of our young people left town to attend school. In the mill section it is a rare experience to find anyone who has gone beyond the seventh grade; for anyone to go away to school is most unheard of. The young lady who was superintendent of the Primary Department in our Sunday School met the 'chance of a lifetime' when a man and wife from Oswego, N. Y., opened their home to her and promised her every assistance in getting an education. One of our boys dared to 'catch rides' for four hundred miles on his way to Pleasant Hill Academy so that he could save his money for books instead of spending it for carfare." Mr. Penn is to be commissioned at the All-New England Regional Conference in Portland, Me., on Sunday night, October 18th, by the Extension Boards."

SECRETARY FRANK E. HENRY.

Rev. Frank E. Henry, Editorial and Field Secretary of the Congregational Church Extension Boards, is on a visit to Florida and some other points in the southeast. Secretary Henry comes down primarily for the meetings of the three associations in Florida. These associations are meeting this week and next; the South Association at Tampa, November 3-4; South East Coast Association at West Palm Beach, November 6; and the East Coast Association at Jacksonville, November 10-11. Mr. Henry will speak at each of these associations. He spoke at the morning service last Sunday at First Church, St. Petersburg, and in the evening at New Port Richey. Next Sunday he will speak in the morning at Coral Gables church, and in the evening at First Church, Miami. While in the Miami region he will be the guest of Rev. Harley R. Core of Homestead, who was a class-mate at Oberlin. He will also visit Charleston and speak at the Circular church there, the pastor of which, Rev. George N. Edwards, was an associate with Mr. Henry in Home Missionary Service in the northwest.

MERGER AT BIRMINGHAM.

At Birmingham on October 11th, the United Christian-Congregational and the Congregational Community Church were united with a total membership of four hundred. Fifty more people will sign the membership cards soon.

Following the merger the two congregations united in a communion service in which four hundred people participated. Dr. Mordecai, the pastor, said that it was the largest participation in the Communion which he had witnessed in Birmingham. He himself was received as a member of the church. The organization took the name of the larger unit and the constitution and bylaws of the smaller one. It was a matter of regret that the adjective, "Christian" could not well be incorporated in the title of the merged church. In Birmingham it was understood that the old Christian Church is not the Disciples of Christ communion, but it is confused with the Church of Christ denomination. After much thought the larger church had decided upon the adjective "Congregational to denote freedom of operation and historic affiliation and the adjective "Community" to describe the nature of the activities of the downtown group. The church is now using three centers. The Church School, with the exceptions of the Crusaders Men's Class, and the morning and night preaching services are held in the Empire Theatre. The Crusaders' Class, which had one hundred and one present on October 11, and the Chalice Club, of young people meet in the morning and night respectively at the Rialto Theatre. The church has a suite of offices for the pastor and his staff of two helpers in the Comer Building.

Dr. Trevor Mordecai will preach the Conference sermon at both the Tennessee and Alabama Conferences.

METHODS CORNER

BY REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

I desire to devote this Corner to some thoughts about Church Worship. I have recently been reading the story of Holman Hunt and his famous picture, "The Light of the World." It was painted at the time of the Oxford Movement in England. Christ, as the light of the world, knocked at the door of the sleeping Church of England. The various reform movements in the Church had stripped it of its former glory of ritual and its beauty of decoration. There was an element in the Oxford Movement that craved an enriched worship service. Not only was there a rival of worship in the beauty of holiness, but there was also a rival of religion. It is all very interesting to us of the present era because we are repeating the same thing, or something like it.

In all our churches there is a movement toward better form, a more elaborate ritual and a program of dignified worship. Anyone who wishes to inform himself on this tendency will do well to write a letter to The Commission on Evangelism, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City. It is really very important for we should make our services dominantly religious. In some churches there is too much talking and visiting and sometimes laughing just at the time service begins. People sometimes seem to think the organ prelude is intended to cover up or drown our boisterous talk. In some churches it takes fully five minutes before the congregation gets seriously engaged in worship. All these things are easily overcome if they are taken in hand in time.

This summer I found a book entitled, "Church Worship Book" by Charles W. Merriam, published by The Pilgrim Press, Boston and Chicago. It contains a long series of Orders of Worship for morning and evening. They are carefully made out and are designed to encourage cooperation between pastor and people. They contain responsive readings, prayers for the congregation and pastor, periods for silence and other helpful suggestions. It is a rich mine of information and suggestion. Perhaps one of the best things anyone can say of a church service is that it is really religious. People go to other places for entertainment, but they go to church to worship God, to commune with their own hearts and to feel the warmth of fellowship in the congregation. For that reason a worship program should be carefully thought out. It should have a beginning and should progress to a climax of spiritual enthusiasm. And it adds much to the value of the service if it begins on time and ends promptly at a point that has been planned beforehand. One hour is long enough. A twenty minute sermon is sufficient.

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE EASTERN VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

It was the editor's privilege to attend, for two days, the three days' session of the 111th annual meeting of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, at Cypress Chapel, October 28th, 29th and 30th. This conference is always largely attended, and the present session was no exception, the large auditorium of the church being well-filled when the gavel fell for the opening exercise at 10:30 the first day. Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, president of the conference, has been for sometime in a hospital at St. Albans, Vermont, and the vice-president, Dr. J. W. Manning, Norfolk, Va., presided over the conference. Other than his apology for being a novice at presiding, one would have thought that it was Dr. Manning's custom to wield the gavel and preside over such bodies. The conference had made no mistake in the selection of a vice-president, and the deliberations were conducted with becoming dignity and efficiency. Rev. R. E. Brittle is the pastor of Cypress Church, and gave to the conference words of greeting and welcome. Rev. O. D. Poythress, of the South Norfolk Church, spoke words of appreciation on behalf of the conference.

Hon. J. E. West made the report of the Committee on Home Missions, and stated to the conference that last year the net gain in membership of the conference had been ninety-seven. This was not regarded as an encouraging figure in a conference of more than 10,000 members, in which twenty-four pastors preached and labored for the year, with a total salary of approximately $36,000.00. Of course, there are other objectives than that of church increase on the part of pastors and churches, but the increase is one among the objectives which every pastor and every church has in mind or at heart, or should have. The simple fact of church history is that any considerable group of well-established churches about maintains its own from year to year, and the group increases by the addition of churches and congregations, just as a local church increases by the addition of individual members. In brief, the conference unit is the church, just as the church unit is the individual, and where these units are not added from year to year, the growth is naturally well-nigh negligible; for while one church in a group may gain in any one year considerably, another church will, and as a rule, does lose correspondingly. Practically the sole hope for a conference, so far as growth in numbers is concerned, is through its home missionary endeavor, or church extension activity, to add new churches or congregations. This may be impossible as an annual experience, since churches have to be improved and entail expenditure of funds and attention, but at any rate this is the great objective that a conference must ever keep in mind if its borders are to be extended while it strengthens its stakes.

A conference may become localized, just as a church may, and draw boundaries about itself, beyond which it does not think of going and building. There are great possibilities, as well as realities, in the Eastern Virginia Conference, but it, like our other conferences, needs a passion for soul winning, her growth and enlargement.

Rev. J. E. McCauley, pastor First Christian Church, Richmond, gave an address at the first session of the conference on "My Church," in which he deplored the slow growth of his own church compared with that of the Methodists and Disciples in particular. From the beginning, these two bodies that have far outstripped our own, were missionary churches. John Wesley, the founder of the Methodists, declared, "The world is my parish," and Alexander Campbell, with his immediate followers, declared the fact that the gospel they preached, was the gospel that should be proclaimed to the uttermost parts. Wherever the missionary passion is lacking, whether it is in the Christian Church or in other churches, there is sad lack of growth, power and dynamic, for from the days when the Lord gave His Commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel," down to this good day, a church has grown only as it developed and manifested the missionary spirit. It is very difficult for us Christians to face and realize this universal truth of church history, but the truth stands there all the same, and there is no getting around it. We may assign other motives and reasons for our slow growth, but in all the history of the past, whatever else a church preached or taught, it had growth and development, provided it was missionary in spirit, in passion and in activity; and unless this was there the growth was exceedingly slow, or negligible.

Dr. N. G. Newman preached a great sermon on "These Times," using as his text the verse from Esther, "Who knoweth but that thou hast come into the Kingdom for just such a time as this." Dr. Newman's theses was that these times have come upon us because we have sinned against God. Our economic ills result from moral ills. These will never be cured until restored by righteous deeds and conduct.

Mr. W. E. MacClenny, historian of the Conference, read a history of Cypress Church showing that it was before the Revolutionary War an Episcopal Church, but that after 1776 no Episcopal services were held there. Rev. James O'Kelly, Presiding Elder, in the Methodist Church, preached there, and later he and Bishop Asbury met there, and that Cypress Chapel was one of the Churches, originally, in the movement for religious liberty in the new-born republic. This paper of historic worth is to be published in THE SUN by request.

Mrs. R. T. Bradford made the report from the Woman's Missionary Conference, and this report is also to be published in THE SUN by vote of the Conference.

Dr. L. E. Smith was absent the first day, but sent in his report on Foreign Missions, which report recommended that the men of the Conference acquaint themselves with Missions as the women are doing, and that the Sunday Schools take the once-a-month offering for Missions, that the goal for Missions in the Conference the coming year be that of last year—one-third the amount paid on pastors' salaries, this not to include money raised by the Women's Missionary Societies.

Mr. C. D. Johnston spoke at night to a large audience on the Christian Orphanage, its history, its present status and its need for continued support.

On the second day Dr. W. M. Jay, chairman, made report on Religious Literature, and several talks were made urging the ministers and laymen of the Conference to do more for THE CHRISTIAN SUN, to manifest a care for our own publication, and that more of the people subscribe to and read the paper, since it reflects the spirit of the church, and lays before the people, from week to week, items of interest from the Church. On the report of Committee of Education, the Conference heartily endorsed Elon College. After Dr. L. E. Smith had given his report from the extraordinary session of the Southern Convention, the Conference voted unanimously on a resolution by Dr. N. G. Newman endorsing the act of the Trustees in electing Dr. L. E. Smith president of the College, expressing the hope that he would accept, and pledging Dr. Smith, in case he did accept, its hearty and loyal cooperation and support. Dr. Smith stated to the Conference that he was having a desperate struggle to decide, since he had had no cravings, ambitions or desires whatsoever to accept the presidency of Elon or in any wise turn aside from the active pastorate and the ministry to which he had dedicated his life since he was nineteen years of age. It was plainly the sense of the Conference that Dr. Smith could render a great service in the larger parish that the College would afford him and that he would have the hearts of the people with him in his arduous and trying task as president of the College.

Dr. W. D. Harward closed the morning session the second day with a most appropriate devotional period, showing that what each of us may bring into the kingdom may be small, yet our Lord was the same Lord who blessed the few loaves and fishes and made them more than enough for a great multitude.

The writer was not privileged to attend the afternoon session, nor the session for the closing day. However, the spirit of the Conference was manifestly optimistic, despite the decreased returns from the churches on Conference apportionments. Cypress entertained the Conference in royal and abundant manner. It was our inspiration to be in this great Conference and to be guests for three days of the generous and loyal hearted people of Cypress Chapel. J. O. A.

HIGHER EDUCATION AND RELIGION.

There are many evidences that higher education, that is education in colleges and universities, is often in these days far removed from religion, and that many of our higher educational institutions, as such, give very little heed to religion. Recently a public speaker in North Carolina gave names and facts, calculated to show that colleges and universities gave easy access and eager hearing to speakers of communistic and atheistic inclination and teaching, and that the trend in higher education at present was rather from than to religious instruction. This writer was informed, he presumes authentically and reliably, that certainly not over ten per cent. of the teachers in our own State University attend church on any Sunday, or give personally any individual support to church and religion. What truth there is in such statements, our readers are left to inquire and investigate for themselves. But it should be borne in mind that in this country, higher education is the child of the church and remained under the control of the church until quite recent times. If the statements made above are facts, they would indicate that the child has grown a long way from its mother, and has become quite indifferent to its parenthood.

Religion was the outstanding objective in higher education when the colleges and universities now prominent in America were born. The records show that Harvard University was founded "to advance learning and perpetuate it to posterity, dreading to leave an illiterate ministry to the churches." William and Mary College, in Virginia, was founded in 1693, "that the church of Virginia may be furnished with a seminary of ministers of the Gospel." The charter of Yale University gives the purpose of that institution that men "may be fitted for public employment both in church and state." Princeton University, founded in 1748, gave as the "chief aim" of its founding, "to furnish the church with a pious and learned ministry." Columbia University, now the largest numerically of our great universities, has in its charter the declaration that "the chief thing aimed at in this college is to teach and engage the children to know God in Jesus Christ." The charters of other universities of renown throughout our land show the genuine religious interest that the founders thereof had.

It may be it is well that these charters still obtain, and have in them these bold declarations as the purpose of their founding, for it is doubtful if such declarations could now be inserted in the organic law and life of these institutions.

At the present our Federal law separates church and state, and on this account it is impossible for a State university to teach religion. "This means," according to a recent magazine article, "that we have approximately 400,000 young men and young women getting their education under secularized influences. The State does not disbelieve in religion, it just leaves it out of the educational process." This gives the reason for the existence and maintenance of the Church College. The Church does believe in religion, and its College will naturally teach and reflect religion in its educational process. Since higher education is the child of the Church, the Church cannot with impunity turn its back on its child, even if the child, grown to intellectual independence, turns its back upon its parent. Thomas Jefferson's great slogan still obtains: "We need not fear error as long as truth is left free to combat it." One of the great objectives of the Church school is to so protect and cultivate truth that it shall be free, and being free shall have full force with which to combat error. A long time ago, One said, "I am the way, the truth and the life." The world has never disproven that claim, and the One Who said that is the Founder and Builder of the Church, and no institution on this earth has done so much for truth, leaving it free and in full force to combat error, as the Church founded by the Son of God, Who Himself is the Truth.

THE PASSING OF A PUBLISHER.

A real benefactor of religion passed from the scene of earthly activity, when on Sunday, October 11th, Fleming H. Revell, founder and father of the publishing house that bears his name, died at the ripe age of eighty-one. Without having the actual facts, we believe it is safe to say that the Fleming H. Revell Company has done more to publish and to disseminate religious books of real value and merit than any publishing house in America. The chief objective of his house was that of producing for the world religious books, and seldom did any other type of book come from this house.

Fleming H. Revell, born in Chicago in 1849, began a publishing business at the age of twenty. Starting with a humble beginning, the company persisted and grew until it was known all over the world, its books going to the uttermost parts and being translated into many languages. Its headquarters were in New York, though it had branches in Chicago, Edinburgh and London. Mr. Revell being a brother-in-law, as well as a warm friend and associate, of the late Dwight L. Moody, his publishing house naturally specialized on books of an evangelical nature, thus giving to the world from its presses books by A. J. Gordon, D. L. Moody, Arthur T. Pierson, J. Campbell Morgan, R. A. Torrey, S. D. Gordon, Ralph Connor, Robert E. Speer, Edward A. Steiner, Arthur J. Brown and others.

Mr. Revell was, to the end of his life, intimately associated with and devoted to the work of evangelization. It was the privilege of THE SUN's editor to meet Mr. Revell at the Northfield Bible Conference the past summer, and to congratulate him on the great work he had done through the years of his life in promoting religious publications. There was no more interested attendant at the Bible Conference than this venerable man of God, being present at the lectures and sermons, especially those by Dr. G. Campbell Morgan. And though feeble and in failing health, the fires of religious zeal and enthusiasm burned in his kindly and piercing eye, and lit up his face in animated conversation. This humble layman, like his famous brother-in-law, the outstanding leader in the evangelistic field, Dwight L. Moody, has made a real contribution to the religious life of the world, and his name will abide through the years to come.

WHEN TO BEGIN.

The time to begin anything is at the beginning. The time to begin a crop is at the opening of the season. When winter passes and spring opens, that is the time to begin to plant cultivated crops; and when winter is near, that is the time to harvest, to get in wood and coal, and to be ready for markets and weather. The time for going to school and laying the foundation for education is in childhood's early years; and the time to begin the Christian life is while young, before sin has fastened its bad habits upon the life. It takes a whole lifetime to mature the best Christian life, and young life is the most susceptible to influences, whether evil or good. Much is lost by neglecting early opportunities or putting off the claims of Jesus Christ, and that simple invitation, "Follow me."

When is the best time for the local church to begin to raise the conference apportionment? At the first meeting after conference. That time has three advantages over waiting until near the end of the year, and then beginning to hurry and scurry to get the money before conference meets. It takes a whole season to raise a good crop; it takes a whole lifetime to develop a good life; and it takes a whole year to do a year's work. To begin at the beginning of the year to raise the conference money makes it easy and successful to do it. The pastor of a church can go to conference feeling better and his people feeling better, if he knows his church is up with conference money in full. Now is the time to begin, and the raising of money for the Lord does not interfere with the preacher's salary. Put God and the Church first, and they will take care of the pastor, for "the laborer is worthy of his hire." (Luke 10:17.) Experience teaches that to put off what ought to be done today, often leaves it undone.

UNIQUE DIVINITY SCHOOL MAKES PROGRESS.

Winona Lake School of Theology, which holds its session annually during the summer at Winona Lake, Indiana, is considered by those who know its faculty, methods and achievements as a very unique School.

The 1931 Session of the School, which was held from July 8th to August 14th, registered an attendance 26 per cent increased over that of the 1930 session. The students came from about twenty states in the Union, and about an equal number of denominations were registered in the School.

At the close of the School, the second annual Commencement was held, at which time a class was graduated with the degree of Master of Arts (in Religious Education). Among the graduates were teachers of Bible and Theology in Colleges, and Pastors. The Commencement Address was delivered by Dr. G. Campbell Morgan.

Winona Lake School of Theology is interdenominational, and has for its Director, Dr. William Edward Biederwolf; for its President, Mr. C. E. Sawtelle, and for its Dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman.

The Faculty is selected from outstanding theological professors from various institutions, every one of whom is recognized for his loyalty to the fundamentals of the Christian faith, also as an authority in his particular field. The Faculty for 1931 was composed of the following persons: Dr. Leander S. Keyser, of Hamma Divinity School, Dr. Julius R. Mantey, of the Northern Baptist Seminary, Chicago, Ill., Dr. George L. Robinson, of McCormick Theological Seminary, Dr. Melvin Grove Kyle of Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary, and the Dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman.

Courses were given in Psychology, Ethics, New Testament, Old Testament, the Passion of Christ, and the Problem of the Pentateuch.

The splendid progress registered by this institution speaks eloquently of the interest which the American people have in education which is Bible-centered, and which gives Christ His proper place.

The School provides very splendid opportunities for Pastors, Teachers, students and laymen who desire to devote a few weeks of early summer-time to inspiring and profitable study. Courses are given leading to the B. D. degree, the Th. B. degree, Master of Arts (in Theology), and Master of Arts (in Religious Education.)

The Dean is already at work arranging the Faculty and the curriculum for the 1932 Session. The offerings promise to be the most attractive ever made by the institution. A twelve page Prospectus will be ready for distribution in January. Requests for copies of the Prospectus may be made at once, by addressing the Dean, Winona Lake School of Theology, Winona Lake, Indiana.

NOTICE.

The Education Committee of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference is called to meet in THE CHRISTIAN SUN office, Elon College, N. C., at 2:30 P. M., Monday, November 9th. Applicants for licensure or ordination in the conference should appear before this committee for examination and report to the annual session of the conference, which meets November 10th.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The One Hundred and Eleventh Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference was held in Cypress Chapel Christian Church, October 28, 29 and 30, 1931. Cypress Chapel is one of the oldest places of worship in Eastern Virginia. In colonial days it was an English Church. "This section is mentioned in the land grants in early days of the Virginia Colony, and was visited by many famous men in exploring the Dismal Swamp, on to Corapeake Swamp": William Drummond, first governor of the Province of North Carolina, after whom Lake Drummond was named; Col. William Byrd, who tells of visiting Cypress Chapel; George Washington, when exploring the Dismal Swamp; and great church leaders.

Here, in 1780, Rev. James O'Kelley, who organized the Christian Church in the South, met the Rev. Francis Asbury who, later, became the great Bishop Asbury. After O'Kelly and others left the Methodist Church in 1793, their followers, who called themselves "Christians" met in conference at Cypress Chapel, and it has been a permanent and useful country church from that time to this.

In that year the old Episcopal Church was repaired and enlarged, and, in 1846, a new house of worship was erected. This house was used until 1870, when it was torn down and still another new House of worship built, and the corner stone was laid, with Masonic rites, by the pastor, Rev. W. B. Wellons. Dr. Wellons was licensed in this church and, later, ordained in it.

In 1925 the present splendid building was erected during the pastorate of Rev. J. M. Roberts. It was in this historic church that the annual conference held its present annual session.

This Conference was attended by 25 ministers, 100 delegates who represented 47 churches; 407 persons registered, and the total number present was around 500. The weather was very fine, the interest was deep, and the reports showed a year of faithful service. The total cash receipts was $6,641.77, which was not much behind last year, and probably more will come in.

The president, Rev. H. S. Hardcastle, was absent on account of sickness, and the vice-president, Dr. J. W. Manning, presided very efficiently. Reports were well prepared, addresses were inspiring, and discussions were illuminating, and the devotional services were unusually appropriate and spiritual. The song services, led by Rev. J. F. Morgan, were wise in selection and spiritual in rendition.

Dr. J. O. Atkinson, Mission Secretary of the Southern Christian Convention, and Chas. D. Johnston, Superintendent of the Christian Orphanage, were present and added to the interest of the Conference. Johnston also represented THE CHRISTIAN SUN, and secured a good list of subscribers. John T. Kernodle, who has charge of the Central Publishing Company, Richmond, Virginia, and publishers of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, also received subscriptions to THE SUN.

Dr. L. E. Smith, recently elected President of Elon College, presented earnestly and clearly the needs of the College and the obligation of the Church to rally to its support. The Conference pledged their prayers and their support to Dr. Smith, if he accepts the presidency.

Throughout the Conference, emphasis was laid upon Education, Missions, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, the Orphanage, and Evangelism. Space does not permit detailed account of persons, addresses and reports. Enough to say that good attendance was maintained to the close, and all felt that it was a great session. W. W. STALEY.

THE FIRST REQUISITE FOR A BETTER WORLD.

By RUFUS M. JONES.

The supreme interests of this period through which we are passing have been turned upon the things that belong to the physical, the natural, sphere, and there has been slight attention given to the reality of the spiritual, or to the business of achieving it as a fact of life. The world of things in space and time has crowded in upon us until it almost holds the entire field. Dean Inge was quite right when he said that, if a person spends sixteen hours a day dealing with "things" and five minutes a day trying to find God, it will not be strange if "things" seem to be two hundred times as real as God is. Little by little the five minutes' search for God, for spiritual realities, drops out altogether and "things" hold the stage.

For multitudes of persons the scientific method has come to be thought of as the only way to reality worthy of respect. Not to prove and demonstrate seems to many minds complete failure to know. All other approaches to reality are discounted or banned. As a result of this attitude, a severe "naturalism" has emerged which brings with it a tragic narrowing of the range and scope of life. The horizon draws in at every point and shuts out the faith of the ages.

Another type of secularism has enmeshed the busy man of affairs. The physical energies which have been discovered in the scientific laboratory have been harnessed by skilful inventions, and the whole world of life and industry has been thereby transformed. This secularism in the world of activity and business has colored all life and thought for the practical man, somewhat as "naturalism" has for the academic mind. They both put the emphasis on things that are seen and handled. The ponderable realities quietly fall out of consideration. No resources of a spiritual order are expected. The universe clanks on as a vast mechanism.

The obvious effect of this excessive "naturalism" and "secularism" has been and is a state of depression, confusion and loss of nerve. Speed becomes a substitute for direction. Frantic immediacy, the expectancy of quick and tangible results, is a wide spread state of mind. But with it has come impatience and disillusionment, and a sense of futility. We seem to have come from nowhere and to be going nowhere. The moral breakdown of lives, the weakening of family ties, the paganizing of many areas of life, and a threatened collapse of the social structure of civilization are the natural fruit of such contracted views. A pyramid standing on its apex is hardly more unstable than a civilization that has lost the poise and balance of well-grounded faith in spiritual realities.

A university professor was talking recently with a group of his students. He called on them to be men and play the game of life. "But how are we going to play the game of life," one of the students asked, "when we don't know where the goal posts are?" That is the trouble; how are you going to make a great life when you have no assurance that life itself has any meaning, or purpose, or significance? If there are no goal posts, there can be no game. Our first business is to rediscover the foundations on which a great spiritual civilization can be built and great lives fashioned.

Our difficulty today is within ourselves. We must build our own souls before we can rebuild our world. All victories are won within, in the soul, before they are achieved in the world outside.—Federal Council Bulletin.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

Father of Love, Thou knowest our frames, of ourselves so faulty and incapable, yielded to Thee so susceptible of grace and victory and power. Through defenceless night whether of body or soul, Thou dost cover and keep each committed life for the day of endeavor unto whatsoever Thou hast appointed. More and more grant us clear insight unto the chambers of Thy will and make us obedient. Showing us the leanness of normal allegiance, lift Thy children into the realm of positive partnership with Thee for Thy dear Son's sake. Amen. "L."

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS.WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.Prepared by*MRS. W. M. JAY, *Editor.Foreword.

Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, the efficient superintendent of Literature of the Eastern Virginia Conference has written the following foreword for our programs:

Our programs this year are built around Rural Problems. The rural world is a sick world. The answer to the prayer of Jesus for Christian Society on earth is, that the hungry may be fed, the ignorant educated, the sick made well, the broken and baffled find peace. The world over, two things are necessary—education and religion. We need to climb the Holy Mount for a vision and build up hope in our own hearts.

A vision without a task is a dream, a task without a vision is drudgery, a vision and a task is the hope of the world.

Our task is to understand the world's needs and accept our responsibility. If we have met Jesus of Nazareth, there is no way back, there are new marching orders and the call is "forward"—through education and a deeper consecration. The unknown farmer is the Rural Billion which we study through "Christ Comes to the Village." It is he who feeds the world. This is our opportunity to become informed on the Rural World.

Program for November, 1931.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Board of the Southern Convention, a committee was appointed to make out programs for the whole year. There is such a wealth of material for the Women's Societies that we have been at sea to know just what to offer, but after several consultations and interviews, we have decided to suggest first of all the use of that wonderful and inspiring book, "Christ Comes to the Village," costing 60c. There is a splendid little book on how to use this study book, which may be purchased for 25c. This contains suggestions for devotions and various outlined programs. No doubt many of you read and used the "Guest Book" last year and realized much help. This year we have another "Guest Book," and every society should avail themselves of enough copies for each member to have one. There is also an envelope series of four programs which may be used in connection with the guest book. For those who want something different from either of the above, there is the booklet entitled "Great Little Greece," or "New Turkey," or "Rural Work in Africa." "Our Rural Work in the Near East," "Our Rural Work in the Far East." All of these leaflets cost 5cts each. They all answer the question, "Is there any urgent reason why the Christian women of the west should study now the women of rural Asia and Africa?"

Then there may be obtained a group of eight different program booklets containing four programs, at 10 cents each, which have all the necessary materials for a missionary program. For instance, "Ind'a Today," "Why a Woman's Society in the Local Church?" etc. Any of these books and leaflets may be purchased from the Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., or if you will write them and tell them your needs, they will send you plenty of material on approval. There is also a great amount of free, helpful literature that may be had for the asking. Be sure to urge the reading at least of the study book, "Rural Billion" for it is one worth the attention of every woman in our land. May this be a splendid year of study, devotion and information in all our societies, and may we learn to be more sympathetic with the Rural World.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S PROGRAM.Prepared by

MRS. E. L. BEALE AND MARY LEE WILLIAMS.

Foreword.

This group of programs has been prepared with the hope that it will be a help to leaders of young people. Though they may serve as only a suggestion, they can be changed to meet the needs of the individual society.

"The field is white unto the harvest, but the laborers are few." We may not all be able to go as missionaries, but by study and prayer we can more fully appreciate the efforts and sacrifice of those who do go. And where better can we do this than in our Missionary Societies? "God and the Census," the study book for the year, is splendid.

It would be well to have a meeting at the beginning of the year and outline the year's work, selecting the leader for each meeting and planning something special for each quarter whereby you can raise your apportionment.

Posters to announce the time and place of meeting and simple invitations help increase attendance.

God gave His Son for us. What are we giving to Him? He came to save all, and this year may we remember the vast number who know Him not, and do our part in making Him known to people everywhere.

Program for November, 1931.

TOPIC—"God and the Census."

Theme—"God's Goodness."

I.—Business Period.II.—Study Period.

Chapters I. and II.—"The Church and the Community."

1. Let the leader give:

- (a) Author.
- (b) Introduction to Book.
- (c) Pioneer Missionary, pp. 1-7.

2. The Story of John Mason Pock, pp. 9-13.

Chapter II.—"The Light for Civic Righteousness."

- 1. The Story of Si Wong, pp. 14-20—a member.
- 2. The Struggle Against Intemperance.
- 3. Ask these questions and have them fully discussed by young people present—
 - (a) What can young people do to help support the prohibition law?
 - (b) Do the movies present a just view of American life? Does the type of movies show have anything to do with the present crime wave? What can young people do to improve the movies in their own community?

III.—Worship Period.

This is the month to take a Thank-Offering.

- 1. Hymn—"Praise Him, Praise Him!"
- 2. Scripture—Psalm 95.
- 3. Prayer.
- 4. A Pageant of Boxes. (This may be gotten from the Lutheran Literature Department, 723 Muhlenberg Building, 1228 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.)
- 5. Hymn—"Faith of Our Fathers."
- 6. Benediction.

WILLING WORKERS' PROGRAM.Prepared by

MARY LEE WILLIAMS.

Foreword.

This series of programs has been prepared in the hope that they will be an aid to the leaders of Junior Missionary Work in the Southern Convention.

Jesus said, "A little child shall lead them." Surely there is no more important work than to train boys and girls to know the great importance of Missions, and the place missionary work holds in the salvation of the world through Christ.

These programs are suggestive only and may be changed to meet the needs of the various societies. It is important always to announce the time and place of meetings. Posters are very effective for this, and simple invitations aid in getting a good attendance.

It is hoped that these programs will help in making this the best year ever in the Junior Mission Work.

Map Work.

Arrange to have a map of the world at each meeting. Make the study book an imaginary journey, pointing out the places visited. It would interest the children to place a tiny Christian flag at each point.

Scrap Books.

Have the boys and girls make scrap books in connection with the study book. Have them collect pictures of people and scenes of each country studied.

Poster Suggestions.

Poster I.—Paste the front cover of the study book on dark green cardboard. Write thereon or letter with black ink:

"Here's an adventure! What awaits,
Beyond these closed, mysterious gates?
I hold my breath a moment:
Behold the magic of your book,
What will you do to me, O Book?"

Poster II.—Use the picture, "The Boy Christ," pasted on gray cardboard. At top of picture write, "The One Who Opened Windows" and at the bottom, "The Friend of Everyone."

Program for November, 1931.

TOPIC—"Open Windows."

Theme—"God Loves His Children in India."

I.—Worship Period.

- 1. Leader—"O, come let us worship the Lord."
Children—"For He is our Master."
- 2. Song—"Jesus Loves Me."
- 3. Memory Verse—John 13:34.
- 4. The Sickle—(As this is the month for a Thankoffering, have a special presentation along this line. "The Sickle" may be obtained from the Literature Department of the Lutheran Church, 723 Muhlenberg Building, 1228 Spruce St., Philadelphia.)

II.—Study Period.

- 1. Chapter II. of "Open Windows," told by two of the older children.
- 2. Song—"We've a Story to Tell."
- 3. Benediction—by Leader.

NOTICE—N. C. AND VA. CONFERENCE.

Those attending the Annual Session of the N. C. and Va. Conference will find the church on highway No. 48 between Reidsville and Stokesdale.

Out of Reidsville, travel in a westerly direction on highway 48, distance of about 21 miles from Reidsville. From Stokesdale 5 miles.

Those east of Burlington will find all hard surface road to the church No. 10 to Greensboro, Battleground Road highway No. 704, via Summerfield. When about 4 miles north of Summerfield, upon reaching No. 48, turn right on 48 to church.

Delegates expecting to attend please write Mrs. J. T. Stewart, Summerfield, N. C., or R. A. Whitten, pastor, Reidsville, N. C.

"Are those about you able to read in your life the truths contained in your Bible? Two things are necessary to bring this about: a deep knowledge of the truth contained therein, and a sincere faith exercised in applying it to life situations."

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

JEWEL TRUITT, Editor, Glen Raven, N. C.

THE GOLDEN JUBILEE CONVENTION.

Each day of its session the Convention adjourned into smaller groups for conference on the work of Christian Endeavor Societies. The smaller groups made it possible for each person to learn more about the phases of Christian Endeavor work that interested him most. It also gave convention delegates an opportunity to become acquainted with more of the leaders in international society work. Beginning on Monday of the Convention Dr. Daniel A. Poling, President of Christian Endeavor, gave his daily radio message from the Convention platform and answered his open forum questions before the Convention.

Monday afternoon we had off, so we went out to the Golden Gate Park and later did some shopping in town. After the Convention program in the evening all of the delegates from Dixie met to go to Chinatown. Our street car broke down so we sang Christian Endeavor songs and visited with each other until we were ready to go on. In Chinatown guides took us to the Y. M. C. A., to see the Telephone Exchange Building, to the Chinese Temple, and explained in detail to us. At the Y. M. C. A. we learned to read Chinese, but of course we have forgotten it now so it might not pay to ask any of the group to translate Chinese. In the Court House we learned that the Chinese of San Francisco have a form of self government that is very much respected by the other inhabitants of San Francisco, and in fact by the whole United States. In the room where their legislative and judiciary bodies met there is a beautiful rug with the map of China woven into it. There are only two of these map-rugs. This one was presented to the city of San Francisco during the San Francisco Exposition, by the Chinese Government. The other is in China.

Promptly at twelve o'clock we were finding our places at tea tables in a Chinese restaurant. Twenty-two people from the Southern States east of the Mississippi made a good looking roomful 'way over in California. We discussed what we knew of Chinese food and customs while the waiters were serving the food. The tea room was upstairs, and they seemed to bring the food from downstairs as it took several minutes to get the food on the tables. When the food was ready, the guide showed us how to eat with our chop sticks. It was a little hard at the beginning but we were hungry enough to learn the trick and soon everyone was enjoying the delicious food. Chicken with diced almonds, steamed rice, Woolong Tea, rice cookies, and preserved lichees are remembered as the most pleasing courses in the menu. Chopsticks did their duty in true American style once, for we used them with our own peculiar style and in a rush like any American would.

Tuesday morning the Higgins' Sisters of Guilford College, N. C., sang from the platform of the Convention Hall. They were well received and called for a second time. The Misses Higgins, a quartette of lovely singers, are members of the Pleasant Ridge Christian Church near Guilford College. All of them made the trip to San Francisco with the President of Shenandoah College, at which place they attended school last year. In the afternoon the Convention Parade was held. More than ten thousand Endeavorers joined in this parade down the main street of the city. With half a dozen bands, a police escort, banners, flags, and costumes of a dozen different countries the parade afforded one of the best views of the Convention during the entire week of its session.

When the parade ended at the Civic Center the throng of ten thousand lifted their voices in the singing of hymns. This is the first parade of this kind ever staged in San Francisco. The interest of the citizens was noticeable as they stood in their store doors and at their office windows to witness the scene.

YOUNG PEOPLES' CONFERENCE.

Aubrey Todd, of South Norfolk, was elected president of the Eastern District of the Young Peoples' Congress of Eastern Virginia Conference to succeed Miss Lowrine Halstead, of Buell, at the annual meeting last night at the Christian Temple.

Other officers elected included Lawson Granger, of Norfolk, vice-president; Miss Mary Halstead, of Buell, secretary, and C. E. Warrington, of Norfolk, treasurer.

The principal address of the Conference, attended by approximately 100 young people from this section of Tidewater, was delivered by Dr. Charles E. Shelton, pastor of the Portsmouth Congregationalist Church.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

November 15, 1931.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF LIFE?

This is a question that it is very doubtful if any human being can be sure of an answer. God must have had a very definite purpose in creating man. What was that purpose? Was it merely to crown his work as the Creator that he made man in His Own image? Nay, such a God as we know and worship must have had other purposes than that in making us.

What, then, is the purpose of life? Is this life all? Or is there more of life after this little span of a few years that we know? This answer involves all of life, all of the universe, even God Himself. For that reason it seems to the writer that the Bible is the best source of help in answering this question that is of eternal interest to men and women of every age and of every walk in life.

In beginning the preparation for these notes I jotted down the things that I thought might be involved in the answer. This is what I had: To work, suggested to my mind by Christ's saying, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work"; to become Christlike; to glorify Christ and God; to do God's will and work; to serve others; to become more like Christ; to live fully and abundantly (as God Himself must have intended for us to live); to "fear God and keep His commandments: for this is the whole duty of man." A comparison of these thoughts with those that you get when reading the daily readings for this week is striking. Every thought I had expressed is suggested in these daily readings.

To the list of purposes for which man lives, which is given in the preceding paragraph, add others. Test all of these purposes by questions. Do you think they will stand up in the sight of God? Are these the same reasons a man of great power over other men might give? Would a scientist give similar reasons? What purposes for living might a man of wealth give? What purpose would a poor person who seeks wealth and power give for life?

PAUL IN JERUSALEM.

LESSON VII—NOVEMBER 15, 1931.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 21:27-39.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Thou shalt be a witness for him unto all men of what thou has seen and heard."
—Acts 22:15.

Introduction.

While Paul was in the midst of his missionary work, he found himself urged by two desires that pulled him in opposite directions. His missionary ambition lured him on to the west. He earnestly desired to visit Rome and push on west to Spain. The lure of extensive unoccupied fields drew this man who did not like to build on other men's foundations. Students of Christianity sometimes find themselves wishing that the great Apostle had yielded to this desire and pushed westward instead of eastward to Jerusalem.

The Old Controversy.

During all of Paul's work he was harassed by those who contended that his Gentile mission work was insecure because of its lapse from Jewish customs. Although he did his utmost to lead the churches in spiritual activity, there were always those who vigorously opposed him. In this way divisions threatened the very existence of the mission churches he had founded. Paul's name also fell into disrepute in many quarters. The orthodox Jews and the Judaizers within the Christian movement opposed him at every turn.

Back to Jerusalem.

Paul determined to go back to Jerusalem and report his work to the church there and to present in person the benevolent offerings that had been contributed by the mission churches. He hoped he could quiet the criticism and close the breach that was widening, and threatening the welfare of Christianity. Acts, chapter 20 and the first half of 21, tells about the incidents of his journey back to the center of Judaism, whence Christianity had sprung. Here at Jerusalem, Paul reported to James and the elders of the church. They received him gladly and rejoiced in the progress of the gospel. Paul was advised to show his own loyalty to Jewish law by conforming to the ritualistic rites of a vow along with four others. This he did.

A Temple Riot.

Even the place of worship may become a place of riot and injustice. It was generally known that Paul had mingled freely with Gentiles and had received them into the Christian Church without demanding conformity to Jewish law. Knowledge of this favored a social and religious prejudice. Paul was found in the temple with Greeks. He was accused of bringing these Greeks into the temple. They were permitted to enter the court of the Gentiles, but not the temple proper. The stirring of prejudice led to mob spirit of violence. Uproar and discord followed. "This is the man that teacheth everywhere against the people, and the law, and this place; and moreover he brought Greeks also into the temple and hath defiled this holy place. The mob spirit grew until Paul was dragged from the temple. The temple was shut, and the mob sought Paul's life. Prejudice and mob spirit are always dangerous in their consequences. Justice cannot be promoted by them.

Police Protection.

Roman law tried to preserve peace and to promote justice. Roman officers intervened and rescued Paul from the violence of the mob. They seemed to think they were capturing a notable Egyptian criminal, who had previously incited the people. They no doubt saved Paul from a violent death and made it possible for him to bring the case to trial. Order and peace were remarkably established in the Roman empire. Often we get discouraged with the corrupt state of government. It is well to credit government with all that is due it. Also keep in mind the much worse state of affairs with no orderly government. Society does make progress in order, government, peace and justice.

The Result.

False accusations, coupled with the stirring of prejudice, led the apostle to arrest and imprisonment. His free missionary work was interrupted. A long series of trials followed. Finally the appeal of his case to the highest tribunal of the empire sent Paul on his voyage to Rome. He never let opposition or a difficult situation silence the testimony for the Christian faith. Imprisonment and trial did not dim the love he had for the work of his Master. A great and radiant faith shows through the clouds of his difficulties.

Next Sunday we will study about him at Rome, the capital of the empire.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

To any other purposes added to the above list there is one other that may be added which will cover all purposes for life. It, too, is suggested in Scripture. (I. Corinthians 13, that great chapter on "Love.") The purpose of life is to love as Christ loved, to live as He lived. This thought is beautifully expressed in a poem by Strickland Gillilan, "The Life Message":

"You are wondering how in the zeal of belief

You may spread the good news to the others;

You are wondering oft, with a semblance of grief,

How to pass it along to your brothers.

But be comforted, friend, by the words of my pen

As it trickles the theme of my song:

If you live as He lived, in the presence of men,

You will carry His message along.

"If you live as He lived, if you think as He thought,

If you love as He loved—never fear!

If you serve as He served, if you work as He wrought,

You'll be sounding His tocsin of cheer.

You will bear to the world the same things He bore

In a voice that was tender and strong;

Just to love as He loved (you can never love more!)

Will be sending His message along."

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

By AMOS R. WELLS.

MONDAY.

THANK-CREATING LIVES.

"I cease not to give thanks for you."—Ephesians 1:15-23.

There are two kinds of lamps, and only two: lamps that give light and lamps that have gone out. There are, so far as I am concerned, two kinds of food, and only two: food I can digest and food that does not agree with me, but poisons me. There are two sorts of people in the world, and only two: persons that fill my soul with cheer, and persons that fill it with gloom.

What a joy it is to know someone who suffuses the life with joy whenever we think of him or her! "Bless him!" we say to ourselves, or "Bless her!" We cease not to give thanks for them, whenever we think of them.

Prayer—May we be such persons, our Saviour. Men thought of Thee, think of Thee, in that way. May we be one with Thee, and join Thee in creating joy. Amen.

TUESDAY.

FOR MANY.

"This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many."—Mark 14:22-31.

Let no one fear that there is no room for him in the Kingdom of Heaven. There is no lack in the love of God. There is no stinting in the blood of the covenant. It is not poured out for a few, but for many. It is not poured out for all, because not all will receive it; it is poured out for all that will have it. The spirit is always saying, "Come."

The question is not for us whether Christ wants us. If not, He would not have died on the cross. The question is whether we want Christ. Here is the sun above the soil and here is the seed in the soil. The sun is freely offered to the seed, if the seed will only rise and take it. Every life that is blessed reaches out after the blessing, and every life that is cured shuts itself in from the blessing.

Prayer—May we hunger for Thee, O Christ. May we thirst for Thee, O Christ. For Thou biddest us come, buy wine and milk, without money and without price. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

NO CONDEMNATION.

"There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus."—Romans 8:1-11.

Since the advent of the automobile an immense number of Americans have learned what it means to be hailed into court. No one who has had that experience will ever forget the degradation, the horrible depression, the frantic desire to get it over and to step out into the free air once more. They had never understood the blessings of liberty until that time.

Nor can those that are under the condemnation of sin understand the blessedness of the freedom wherewith Christ makes us free until they walk out of the Judge's court with the charges against them all wiped out. There is no joy like it.

Prayer—May that be the bliss, O God, of every one of us. Amen.

THURSDAY.

ICE AND FLOWERS.

"They receive us all . . . because of the cold."—Acts 28:1-6.

The warm hearts of the islanders of Malta responded to the icy rain, and were all warmer because of it. Indeed, it has recently been discovered that probably, during the last advance of the northern ice cap, hardy wild flowers of the temperate zone migrated eastward and westward within a few miles of the ice sheet, and were not frozen and killed by it.

Never be repulsed by a cold heart! Defy it to do its worst. Live a warm Christian life near it. You may melt it—who knows? At any rate, do not allow it to freeze you. Be as plucky as those temperate zone plants of the Great Ice Age.

Prayer—Keep us ever hot with divine courage, O fire from above! Dwell in our souls, Thou flame of the Holy Spirit! Amen.

FRIDAY.

PAINT PROTECTION.

"Israel hath cast off that which is good: the enemy shall pursue him."—Hosea 8:1-7.

Anyone who owns a house knows how necessary it is to keep it well painted. If the clapboards or shingles are exposed to the weather without their protective covering of oily paint, they soon begin to rot and curl up and decay. Paint is for ornament, and most persons regard it in that light; but it is even more for preservation.

So Hosea said that his people had cast off the good, and they would be destroyed by the evil. In any life godliness is a necessary shield against ruin and death. The forces of decay are ever on the watch, ready to attack. The only safety against them is to ally ourselves thoroughly with the forces of life.

Prayer—Therefore, our Father, we pray for Thy indwelling. Surround us with Thy Spirit, protect us by Thy presence. Every day we pray, deliver us from evil. For Christ's sake. Amen.

SATURDAY.

ONE ATOM LESS.

"If any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life."—Revelation 22:16-21.

Chemistry works marvels by minutiae. Change the composition of a substance by the least of its elements, and it becomes a different substance altogether. Change the least of its elements by so much as a single atom, and it is instantly transformed: it may become hurtful from harmless or beneficial from injurious.

So it is with the use of the word of God. That word is yea and amen. Its precepts are true and righteous altogether. Let us make the least change to accommodate our opinions or to make room for our sins, and we vitiate the whole for us. We must take the Bible as it is, and all the Bible as it is, if it is to be good for our souls.

Prayer—O God, Thy word is truth as Thou art. May we be wholly true to it and to Thee. Amen.

SUNDAY.

OUR ACCIDENT.

"It is impossible but that occasions of stumbling should come, but woe unto him, through whom they come!"—Luke 17:1-6.

The law of averages is sure in its working.

Every thoughtful driver of an automobile realizes that. He knows that in every thousand miles he drives—or ten thousand, I do not know that statistics—he is due for an accident, "on the average." Skilful and careful driving will relieve him from accidents due to his own fault, but not from accidents due to the faults of the other fellow.

There is where the principle applies to our travel along the road of life. We can not avoid mishaps, for the world is full of folly and sin. Contagions and infections may give us sickness, periods of wild speculation may make us poor, national hatreds may plunge us into war. But none of these evils may be due to us, if we live Christian lives.

Prayer—Lord, save us from Thy woe invoked upon those who are occasions of stumbling. We can endure the misery when it comes, if it comes not through our own sins. Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THE CHURCH OF "LOST LOVE."

By DR. W. M. JAY, Holland, Va.

[Delivered before the 111th Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, held at Cypress Chapel Christian Church, October 29, 1931.]

TEXT: Revelation 2: 1-7. (Read 1-2: 1-7.)

PART I.

The Book of Revelation is rightly entitled the Revelation of Jesus Christ; for the revelation is not only by him but of him.

He is both author and content, the very center and circumference of the book.

Notice the order of its authorship—it has its source in God who gave the revelation to Jesus Christ, and he "sent and signified" it by an angel unto John who wrote it down and gave it to the church. From God, to Christ, through an angel, by the pen of John to the church.

It is a book for the church, because Revelation is not written for the world but for the church.

It is a book of revelation because no human wisdom could foreknow or foresee the things that are recorded here.

It is a book of prophecy as the book itself declares again and again. It is not a book of history though there is history in it of course, but that is largely the record of prophecy fulfilled.

John, the beloved disciple, was a prisoner on the Isle of Patmos for the sake of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ. On the Sabbath day he was much in the Spirit and heard behind him a great voice as of a trumpet. The voice gave its identity and told John to write a book and send it to the seven churches of Asia. He then turned to see the voice, and behold he saw seven golden candlesticks and in the midst of these seven candlesticks, one like unto the Son of Man. Then John gave us a description of this Son of Man.

"Clothed with a garment down to the foot, His head and hair white like wool, His feet like unto fine brass; His voice as the sound of many waters, In His hand He held seven stars; out of His mouth went a sharp two-edged sword, and His face was like the sun in the fulness of its power."

This Son of Man was verily the Christ that John saw and knew so well in the flesh. He knew him this time but he was different. It was not the Christ of the humiliation, but the Christ of glory.

This son of man then proceeds to give John the message which he in turn is to give unto the seven churches of Asia. He says unto the angel of the church of Ephesus write: Ephesus was the principal city of its province (Ionia), the civil and ecclesiastical center of Western Asia Minor. Here was located the great temple of Diana, 342 feet long and 164 feet wide, supported by 127 columns of marble each 60 feet high. It is said to have taken 220 years in building. "In the center of the temple, concealed by curtains, stood the image of the goddess Diana, said to have fallen from the sky." Just behind the shrine was the great safety vault where the wealth of kings and the treasures of all Asia were deposited for safety. From the throats of thousands of worshippers could be heard "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

Ephesus possessed the largest open air theatre in the Greek world, seating 50,000 people. It had a magnificent stadium where races were run, and gladiatorial combats were held. These sports drew great assemblies on these occasions. It was a famous city from the Christian point of view. Paul established a church here on his third Missionary tour. The apostle John seems to have taken up his abode here in his latter days. Mary the mother of our Lord was said to be a member of this church as John took her at the Crucifixion of Christ to live with him. Timothy was pastor of the church. Aquila and Priscilla were workers in this church. (Ephesus was the most important of the seven churches.)

To the angel of the church at Ephesus write, says the speaker. "These things sayeth he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks." In chapter 1, verse 20 we are told that the seven stars represent the "angels" or the pastors of the seven churches, and the seven golden candlesticks are the seven churches.

The Speaker, the Son of Man, is therefore in close touch with his ministers. He knows them, He holds them in his right hand and is therefore competent to commend and rebuke them.

"He walks in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks." He blesses the churches with his presence. He does not forsake his church in spite of her failures and faults. He speaks of them as golden candlesticks, thus showing the value he places upon his church. The church is the object of much criticism today, not only from the world but from within her own ranks. Jesus loves his church. She is his Bride and for her life he died.

Every Christian ought to be able to sing in his heart:

"I love Thy Church, O God,
Her walls before Thee stand,
Dear as the apple of Thine eye
And graven on Thy hand.
For her my tears shall fall,
For her my prayers ascend.
To her my cares and toils be given,
Till toils and cares shall end."

The Commendation.

The Master who holdeth the seven stars in his hands and walks in the midst of the seven candlesticks continues: "I know thy works, and thy labor and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them that are evil: and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars: and hast borne, and hast patience, and for my namesake hast labored, and hast not fainted. Nevertheless, "I have somewhat against thee."

You see the Master is going to tell the church at Ephesus something but he uses good psychology, he approaches them through the avenue of praise. He praises before he blames. We are prone to do the opposite. He commends them for their works, labor and patience.

The church at Ephesus was a working church. It was evangelistic and carried out the spirit of early apostolic days when they added unto the church daily such as should be saved. That was a church that sang, "Rescue the Perishing" as well as "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The church at Ephesus was alive, alert, aggressive, sound in faith and doctrine, but not sound asleep. It had a wonderful pastor, Timothy. It sent out such lay preachers as Epaphras, Tychicus, and Trophimus. It had such Christian workers as Aquila and Priscilla.

O, for such a working church, such as the church at Ephesus. A church whose members would have the same passion and zeal and willingness to win souls for Christ, as to arrange for church suppers or bazaars; to serve as willingly and earnestly as officers and teachers as to sit down at a banquet and pay their honest dollar.

The Master not only commends the works and labor of the Ephesus church but its patience and endurance. It never grew weary of its labors. An army officer likes to see the dash and vigor with which his troops respond to an attack, but what he admires still more is their staying power and endurance.

Think of Carey and Moffatt who labored on the Missions field for years without a single convert, but believing in the coming harvest time.

Another thing the Master commended in this church, "Thou canst not bear them which are evil."

This church simply would not mix with the ungodly in church membership and it is commended for it. The unregenerated and wicked and faithless they could not tolerate as fellow-members. This is a part of Jesus commendation. Again he commends them by saying, "Thou hast tried those who say they are apostles and are not, and hast found them liars."

This church guarded its pulpit from those who were disloyal to Christ. Some think this was a thrust at Paul who claimed to be an apostle, (Continued on page 14.)

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

More than thirty times in the Bible our attention is called in some way to the widow and the orphan. They hold a tender place in the love of God. He says, "Visit the fatherless and the widow in their affliction." Do we really visit them? If you have no fatherless children and no widows who need assistance in your immediate community, does that excuse you? If it did excuse you then you would miss a real joy in life. Why are you interested in your home? Isn't it because you invest your money, your time, your thought and your life in it? You are interested in it because you have invested in it. Do you know how to become interested in the Christian Orphanage? Invest some of your money in it. Place some of your treasure there too. How much have I given during the year 1931 to help a widow in distress, or a fatherless child that is dependent and homeless—is a question each reader of this letter should ask himself or herself. How much have you contributed during the year to help feed, clothe and care for the 105 little children in the Christian Orphanage?

It is your church institution. The little children are homeless and dependent, and they are looking to you for food, clothing and a home. If you have contributed nothing this year to help them, do you think you have done your Christian duty? If you have made no contribution, suppose everyone had done as you have done—and we could not have interested any one else to furnish food for them, what would have happened? Have you really done without anything you really needed or wanted during the year?

Thanksgiving will be here in a few weeks, and we must raise ten thousand dollars for our Thanksgiving offering for the Christian Orphanage. How much are you going to give to help raise it? How much are you giving to help swell the offering in your church this Thanksgiving? Won't you make a little sacrifice to help these little children? They are fine little fellows with bright minds and asking for a chance in life. You want them to have an equal chance with other children, don't you? Then help us by investing some of your money in them.

"He who gives a child a treat,
Makes joy-bells ring in Heaven's street,
And he who gives a child a home—
Builds palaces in Kingdom-come."

though not one of the twelve. But it would seem an incredible thing that John should make such an attack upon Paul the founder of this church.

Paul himself, in Acts 20:29, warns the church at Ephesus. "For I know that after my departing shall greivous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock." "Therefore, watch and remember, that by the space of three years I cease not to warn every one night and day with tears."

They heeded Paul's warning and guarded their pulpit against false teachers. But all was not commendation.

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches x 3/4 inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket Edition, and the book is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its open quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling to the cover. The size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

ELON was founded to train Christian leaders for the New South.

ELON has done its task well—one graduate in seven being in the Christian ministry. The other six express Christian leadership in the various professions and vocations. Experience teaches that spiritual leadership must be indigenous.

The South is now a New South ready for an inclusive Church, the type of Church for which Elon has stood for forty years and for which she is prepared to produce capable leadership.

With no Church in the community, save the College Auditorium, ELON has practiced Christian Union for faculty, students, and community for four decades.

Its contribution to Christian Education is nationally known and approved.

Its Christian Education Building, providing laboratory facilities for religious leadership training, is unique and is the first college building of its type in the world.

ELON confines itself to undergraduate liberal arts work with that religious emphasis which befits the Christian College.

In ELON the Congregational-Christian Church has an asset of marvelous hopefulness.

The South needs her Yale, her Oberlin, her Carleton, her Pomona for the intellectual leadership of the United Church. Many regard ELON as strategically located and spiritually endowed to become such a center of illumination and leadership training.

OBITUARIES.

PARKER.

Whereas, our heavenly Father called home our brother, Charlie L. Parker, on August 19, 1931, after a very brief illness, and whereas, the deceased was for many years a faithful member of this church and was loyal until his death,

Therefore, be it resolved:

First. That Liberty Spring Christian Church, in conference assembled, hereby express our sorrow in sustaining such a bereavement.

Second. That we record our sincere appreciation of his long life and faithful service as a member of this church.

Third. That we express our heartfelt sympathy to all the members of the family of our deceased brother.

Fourth. That a copy of these Resolutions be entered upon the records of this church, a copy sent to the bereaved family, and a copy sent for publication in The Christian Sun.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. F. F. BRINKLEY,
Mrs. I. T. BYRD,
Mrs. O. L. BAKER,

Committee.

SOUTHARD.

The Sunday School of Mt. Bethel Christian Church desires to express sorrow and regret that an All-Wise and Gracious Providence has removed our esteemed and lamented co-worker and fellow-member, Clyde Southard, who died July 9, 1931, therefore, be it resolved;

1. That while we bow with submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, yet we mourn the loss of our faithful member and personal friend.

2. That in his going our Sunday School has sustained the loss of one of its loyal and faithful members, one who was ever willing to render his service and whole-hearted support.

3. That we extend our deepest love and sympathy to the family in their loss, and commend them to Him who can sustain and comfort.

AMENDMENT EIGHTEEN STILL STANDS.—

"The tempest in the teapot, or shall we say, the tempest in the beer stein, which so excited the wets when Federal Judge William Clark, last December, held the Eighteenth Amendment unconstitutional, has fully subsided. The defendants in the case a few days ago paid a joint fine of $750 on a plea of guilty to transporting beer as a result of the United States supreme court reversing the Clark decision."

UNION SEMINARY NEW YORK.—

By the will of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, Union seminary, New York, is left $50,000. The Smithsonian institute received $100,000; Columbia university and the New York city association for improving the condition of the poor were also left $50,000. Similar bequests would be a great blessing to our college at this time. Our people whether with large or small estates should remember the church institutions with bequests which would serve God and the kingdom for all time to come.

CONFERENCES ON SPIRITUAL EMPHASIS.—

Presbyterian ministerial "conferences on spiritual emphasis" are being held under the official authority of the general council of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, as follows: Ambassador hotel, Kansas City, November 2-4; Broad Street Church, Columbus, Ohio, November 4-6; Third Church, Rochester, N. Y., November 4-6; First Church, Baltimore, November 11-13. A retreat was held also in Indianapolis, late in October. This should be a suggestion to ministers in other churches to place emphasis on the spiritual life for that is frequently greatly neglected in our churches.

DR. SPEER CELEBRATES.—

On November 2nd, Dr. Robert E. Speer celebrated his 40th year as secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. A group of friends gathered in the assembly room of the Board in Philadelphia, to celebrate the occasion. This is a long service in the cause of missions, and such service is worthy of celebration. Usually church work and Christian service blow no trumpet blasts, receive little recognition in the public press, and make little to do over the work rendered, but there are times and places and persons that demand recognition for the great service rendered to humanity and the cause of Christ.

WORLD'S FINEST "Y" DEDICATED.—

The finishing touches have been put on the new three million dollar Lawson Y. M. C. A. building, Chicago, a memorial to the late Victor F. Lawson, editor of the Chicago Daily News.

The formal dedication was held last Sunday, November 1st. The new structure is rated as the finest Y building in the world. It has 24 stories, and in addition to furnishing usual association facilities, will house 735 men in permanent residence. The building is located at Chicago Ave. and Dearborn St. In visiting the city, people will find a pleasant visit to this building where they will receive a real Christian Association welcome.

EXTENSION LECTURES FROM CHICAGO.—

The 32nd series of extension lectures in religion of the divinity school of the University of Chicago will be given by Dean Shiler Mathews on the subject, "The Growth of the Idea of God." The lectures will be delivered in Bond chapel on six successive Tuesday evenings, November 3rd to December 8th, at 7:30. These lectures will supplement Dean Mathews' recent book with this same title. There is an increased interest in lectures of this nature on theology and an increasing number of good books coming from the press on the same subject, and the wide-awake minister will have to keep alert in his theological reading to keep abreast of the times.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.—

A remarkable series of meetings have just concluded in Sydney, Australia, "The First Pacific International Convention," in connection with the jubilee of the Christian Endeavor movement throughout the world, held in Sydney town hall, was attended by upwards of 2,000 delegates from all parts of Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, and Samoa. Unfortunately the world president, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, was not able to be present, but he commissioned the Rev. Lionel B. Fletcher, fresh from his big youth campaign in London, where 11,000 young people made their decision for Christ, was given a warm and enthusiastic welcome by his native city.

THE CALL URGENT.—

Elon College has elected a new President, and it remains for him to signify his acceptance. We need the best man for the place that the church has at its command. Elon has been operating over forty years and has educated a large number of capable men and women, but at this present time there is no one in the entire church that is better fitted for president of Elon College, at a time like this, than Dr. L. E. Smith and the Board of Trustees have unanimously elected him to this important position, and the whole church approves the selection and is anxiously awaiting his acceptance. There will be great anxiety in the church until he announces his decision and great rejoicing if he agrees to accept the position as president.

TEACHING BIBLE IN SCHOOLS.—

The Protestant pastors, Memphis, Tenn., pastors association at its first fall meeting again girded itself to battle for the teaching of the Bible in the public schools. This was dropped a year ago more through the jealousy of certain denominations than through the untiring efforts of the liberals to prevent what is almost certain to be an unscientific presentation of the Bible out of public taxes. It would be unfortunate to require all kinds of teachers in our public schools to teach the Bible regardless of their belief or no belief as the case might be. It is bad enough to have to submit to the teaching of our children by teachers who meet the academic and professional requirements without any religious or character qualifications.

WORLD PROHIBITION.—

Universal prohibition was held up as the goal of Methodism, at the sixth ecumenical conference of the Methodist Church held in Atlanta late in October. The denomination throughout the world was committed to a program of education, legislation, and law enforcement to "Protect society from the ravages of the liquor traffic." Both the United States and Canada sections of the conference presented separate reports on the subject, which, with the resolution received unanimous approval by the conference. In reference to the situation in Canada growing out of government control of liquor sales, the report of the Canadian section of the conference reads: "The effect of government sales upon citizens is alarming. The law forbids drinking in any public place and requires that the liquor be consumed in the home or in a hotel room. It provides that the public treasury shall receive the profit."

THE CHURCH AND THE SOCIAL ORDER.—

In a resolution adopted at the meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of New York, at Troy, October 22nd, there is a note of timeliness throughout. The churches are urged "to exercise Christian conscience in regard to all reduction in wages and salaries that maintain or aggravate economic equality;" to consider "all legislation looking towards the alleviation of the hardships of, and the overcoming of the repetition of periods of depression;" to study "the Christian resources for a better social order, and the aggressive application of the same to the defects in our present economic system of which the present depression is but a symptom;" to consider the "Christian duty of formulating and putting into effect plans whereby society shall hereafter be prepared in advance to bear the burdens of periods of unemployment, if these should recur;" to carefully study "the whole question of the relationship between Christianity and international affairs and other great social questions."

NOTES-PERSONAL

Premonitions of trouble do not swerve the true and steadfast man.

Now is the time to remember THE CHRISTIAN SUN by sending in that delayed and now much needed renewal.

We received a request from one of our brethren the past week that we announce the change of his field from one place to another. But he forgot to sign his name. We will be glad to publish his announcement, if he will send it in again.

His many friends regretted to learn through the press last Saturday that Mr. S. C. Heindel had resigned as Business Manager of Elon College. Mr. Heindel came to the college in 1930, as assistant to the president, in the proposed million dollar campaign, and later as business manager, in which he has served the college with great diligence.

Officers for young people's work in the Western North Carolina Conference were elected at the close of the enthusiastic program held by the young folks in connection with the conference. Carl Key was unanimously elected president of this youth movement; J. Rowland Farrell was elected vice-president; and Miss Madge Craven, of the entertaining church, was selected for the secretary.

Southern Baptists are laying wide and deep plans for an every-member canvass in every Baptist church, to reach every member of their Convention, from November 29th to December 6th. The object of the canvass is to enlist every member in a pledge to support every enterprise of the church and to get every member to say what he or she will give to such local and South-wide support.

The library of Elon College has a complete file of our Christian Annuals, beginning with Volume I., in 1870, with one exception, that of 1904. If any CHRISTIAN SUN reader has this number and will donate it to the library, he will confer a great favor and render service to future historians who will need complete records. Elon College library has a fire-proof vault in which all of our important church records and publications should be kept for future reference.

Deacon M. J. W. White, of Christian Temple, Norfolk, Va., attended services on a recent Sunday in the First Presbyterian (Woodrow Wilson's) Church, Staunton, Va. What impressed Bro. White especially was that in the Sunday's announcements on the church program and bulletin was a notice that next week was "Church Paper Week," along with a paragraph setting forth the value and necessity of the church paper. Bro. White writes that if our pastors would announce from their pulpits a church paper week and set forth the value and needs of THE CHRISTIAN SUN, it would be a benefit and a blessing.

Business and Commerce, monthly magazine of New York, carries in its November issue quite an appreciative and informative notice of an important business venture of our good friend, Bro. J. M. Darden, Suffolk, Va. We quote: "It is with a good deal of interest that we note the formation of a new hotel organization by J. M. Darden, Sr., prominent southern financier and civic figure in North Carolina, and T. L. Bland, prominent, well known hotel head, which will be known as the Darden-Bland Hotel Co., with principal offices in Greensboro, North Carolina, and with a state wide scope in operation." The company, associated with these well known business men, is to operate the O'Henry Hotel, Greensboro, and quite a string of well known hostleries in North Carolina and Virginia.

Mrs. L. W. Stagg member of Christian Temple, Norfolk, secretary of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference, and one of our most capable and well informed missionary workers, has been honored by being elected a member of the Constitution Committee of the National Council of Federated Church Women. This council co-operates with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions, and the Council of Women for Home Missions. Mrs. John Ferguson of New York City is president, and many SUN readers will recall hearing her at the Eastern Virginia Woman's Conference in a great address, two years ago, and also at the Southern Christian Convention in Raleigh last year. Mrs. Stagg is well worthy of the high honor conferred and is certainly capable of filling this important position.

We are open for a pastor at Liberty (Vance) the coming year. We have a parsonage right near the church. We will want services on the third and fourth Sundays. We cannot pay as much as we have been paying, but will be glad to correspond with available pastor.

Respectfully,
J. D. NEWMAN, Secretary,
R. 6, Henderson, N. C.

NOTICE.

The Education Committee of the Eastern N. C. Christian Conference will meet at the Christian Church, Cary, N. C., on Monday, November 16th. Anyone who so desires may see them there.

J. LEE JOHNSON,
Chairman.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

LAKE HELEN, FLORIDA. A young people's class was organized recently at the Lake Helen Congregational Church. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Lyon were hosts on this occasion. Tentative plans for a bazaar were discussed at a recent meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Horning. December 11th was selected as the date.

CHAPEL HILL CHURCH rejoices in the opening ministry of Rev. Cleveland R. Dierlamm, who preached his first sermon as pastor on November 1st. He came with a fine record back of him and an expectant and loyal people awaiting to co-operate with him in serving this university city.

AVON PARK, FLORIDA. The Union Congregational church was recently the scene of a delightful "at home" party, given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Vaughn by the members of the congregation. Many gifts were presented to them in celebration of their birthdays.

Mrs. Edison has been a regular attendant at this church and has been greatly interested in the erection of the new building, though a member of a church at her home in New Jersey.

The architect of the building was Mr. Wm. O. Sparklin, who is the architect for all of the Barron Colliers Hotels and other buildings. The architect donated his services. The landscape architect was Mr. Lewis A. Pearl, who also donated his services. The owner of the land made a large donation from the price of the lots, and it is estimated that with the land and the building and furnishings, the value of the new project will approximate $21,000. The Congregational Church Building Society made a generous grant and loan toward the building. One member of the church contributed a communion table as a memorial to her husband. A bulletin board was also contributed. Other than the obligation to the building society there is no debt.

It is expected that the present building will eventually be used for Sunday School and social strong, which before were markedly weak. The Macedonia parish was the first to adopt this plan since December, 1930. Of course, the Fredonia or Barnesville parish has been progressing under the leadership of Rev. L. L. Stanley for several years. Macedonia, however, just began last March, with Rev. T. L. Leverett as pastor, and the results have been splendid, and each church has prospered beyond the hopes of any. The Ambrose parish has but recently been grouped, but already new life and vigor is shown under the pastorate of Rev. W. C. Carpenter. Two of the churches of the Roberta group have not been able to see the value of grouping yet, and continue with Mr. Crawford as minister. He gives splendid consecration to his work and the churches have grown under his care. The last group to call a full-time pastor, is the Friendship group, composed of Friendship, Antioch, Union Hill and Whitehall churches. A vigorous young man from Pittstown, New Jersey, has accepted the call and began November 1st. He comes as a finely trained minister and adapts himself to our rural churches like a veteran. By vote of the State Conference, he will be ordained in the Whitehall church on November 29th. His name is Alan Jones. He made a fine impression at the conference, where he filled the place of President Newell on the Wednesday evening program.

Among the special features of the program were the sermon of Dr. W. T. McElveen, the address of Rev. Abram Stark, the round-table discussions led by James Mahaffey and Rev. T. L. Leverett, and the addresses of Dr. Knighton Bloom on "Adventurous Evangelism" and "The Seattle Council." There were other high features, but these seemed to stand out.

Another thing of importance was the combined decision of the Executive Board of the Georgia and Alabama Christian Conference and the State Board of Directors to recommend a joint meeting and joint program of the two conferences next year, when it is expected that all details of the merging churches will be worked out to a full and complete united conference. The place of meeting next year will be the Congregational Christian Church of Birmingham, formerly Central and United churches.

Another advance in organization was the organization of the Middle Georgia Association. Rev. J. H. Dollar, LaGrange, was elected moderator and Miss Rosie Gill Registrar.

Under the leadership of Miss Annie Campbell, an interpretative pageant was put on by the way of encouraging and preparing the way for a Young People's Summer Leadership Conference similar to Florida's superb "Immokalee." By vote of the conference one will be held in 1932, at Piedmont College, the invitation having been previously extended by Dr. Newell.

A never-to-be-forgotten fact of the conference was the two meals a day served under the trees in the church yard, by the ladies of Fredonia. It was perfectly remarkable the way they did it. Besides the eighty-three delegates present, there were more than fifty visitors part of the time. To serve this number well, was no small matter, but the Fredonia ladies did it.

Two resolutions adopted rang true, in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment and its stronger enforcement, and a second for world peace.

Prof Lisle Percy, representing the committee on course of study for licentiates, gave a full three-year course of study, including the books to be used for the course in each year. This is an effort in raising the standard of the ministry which was adopted last year. Certain professors of Piedmont College stand ready to help anyone desiring to improve himself by taking this course. It is suggested that ministers who have not had the chance to take a college course get in touch with Prof. Percy. It will help tremendously.

Edison Park Church, Fort Myers, Florida.

NEW CHURCH OPENS.

The new church at Fort Myers, which is known as the Edison Park Community Church (Congregational), was opened with impressive services on Sunday, November 1st. The pastor, Rev. Orvis T. Anderson, who organized the church six years ago, preached on the subject, "Worshiping God in the Beauty of Holiness." The dedication of the church has been postponed until some time later in the season when more of the winter congregation is present.

The new church building, which it is hoped will be but the first unit of a larger plant, is a beautiful building of tile and stucco finish, built in the Mediterranean style with tile roof. It stands in Edison Park, directly opposite the homes of Mrs. Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford, and faces down the broad plaza to the gateway of the Park. The lot has a frontage of three hundred and ninety feet, and there is ample space for further enlargement, as well as space for parking.

The church has been worshiping in a building which was erected five years ago and which combined a hall and an upstairs apartment for the pastor. This was some distance out in the suburbs of the city. The present building is much nearer the business section.

purposes, while the church proper will be built at right angles and linked to the present building by the tower, which will eventually be elevated and beautified. The pastor of this church and the church itself are to be congratulated on this achievement of a long hoped for objective.

THE GEORGIA STATE CONFERENCE.

The Georgia State Conference was probably the largest and best held in many years. At least that was the judgment of many. From the beginning to the end, Fredonia Church was perfect in hospitality, and everybody was happy.

The program was well carried out, and the sermons, addresses, and round-table discussions, were all of high character. Dr. W. T. McElveen was elected moderator, and Rev. J. H. Dollar, newly elected pastor of United Church, LaGrange, was elected assistant moderator. They were very happy selections as presiding officers. Rev. H. B. Mowbray, retiring moderator, had taken the office seriously, and to the very end he dignified the office as well as served the denomination.

Reports from the churches were not complete, but they showed a growing condition all through the state. The grouping system which has been emphasized during the year, has proved itself to be very popular. Under it churches have grown

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE WESTERN CONFERENCE.

The sixty-first session of the Western North Carolina Conference met at Shiloh, in Randolph County, November 3rd and 4th, and was very largely attended throughout the two days' session. Rev. E. C. Brady, president, delivered an annual address based on the inquiry, "Is the Young Man Safe?" His thesis was that there are disturbing conditions today, in the moral and the spiritual, as well as in the economic world, and that our young people are subject to these disturbed and changed conditions. Our young people face problems such as their parents, when young, did not have to face. The church should be alert and active in trying to help these young people solve the problems which confront and disturb them. The young people of today are as safe as the old people of yesterday have made them, and no safer. Brother Brady has promised his paper for publication in THE SUN, and it will be read with interest. The reports from ministers and churches were encouraging and, in many instances, showed quite a few additions to church membership the past year, and, in all instances, that the pastors had been faithful and had borne the burden of the work under trying financial circumstances.

Mrs. W. R. Sellars, treasurer of the Woman's Board of the North Carolina Conference, made the report on missions for the women, and showed that the women in churches where there are societies had raised as much money and made as large contributions to missions the past year as all others of the conference combined, though the women in the societies form but a very small percent. of the women even of the conference.

Mrs. Sellars plead with the ministers of the conference and with the women, in churches where there are no societies, to organize a Woman's and Young People's Missionary Society in every church. It was not a question of ability to give and do for missions, but one solely of being willing and ready to do what one could, that counts. She urged also that this year the women study the Book of James, which is the Bible study book for the Women's Societies, and which is a book that deals with work as well as faith, and naturally follows the study in Romans which the women had last year. The Home Mission Report recommended help at Addor and Bennett churches and also at Pleasant Cross, where a fire destroyed the house of worship some months ago and a new building is now going up.

The Young People's Conference at night was largely attended, and a splendid program was carried out. It was not the writer's privilege to be in this conference.

On the second day, Rev. M. A. Pollard, chairman, read a most splendid report on Evangelism, which report revealed close study and gave several plans and programs for aggressive Evangelism. This was followed by an inspirational address by Rev. R. A. Whitten, who was invited to deliver the address on a theme in which he is so vitally concerned. This address fell on listening ears, and was received with gladness.

Rev. T. J. Green, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Missions, told of the complete merger of the Christian and Congregational forces on the foreign field, and that during the past year, our merged church had received over 10,000 members on the foreign field, and we now have 623 missionaries and 4,905 native workers, of which number 1,209 are preachers. Our total membership on the foreign field is 285,011, and there are 1,461 schools in which there are 88,646 pupils. To this work the past year, this conference, through its churches and Sunday Schools, appropriated approximately $1,632.78, or 42½ cents per member. The recommendations of the report were that all churches raise, the coming year, through church and Sunday School offerings, a sum equal to one-third the amount of the pastor's salary, and that every Sunday School take an offering once a month for missions, and that the men of the church interest themselves in missions somewhat as the women are doing. There were addresses on Missions and a growing interest in the subject and work was manifest in the conference.

Superintendent C. D. Johnston of the Christian Orphanage, reported over 100 children now in the home and urged all churches to take the Thanksgiving offering.

Rev. T. E. White, chairman, made the report on Education, highly commending Elon College for the great service it had rendered Christian Education, also commending the trustees for electing to the presidency Dr. L. E. Smith, and pledging to Dr. Smith, in case he accepted, the loyal support of the conference. After a very appropriate and telling address by Dr. E. L. Moffitt, chairman, the Board of Trustees, and remarks by others, the conference, through its president, granted license to preach as a probationer to Brother J. Q. Pugh; also, upon recommendation of the committee, licentiate Geo. M. Talley of Carbon-ton, N. C., was ordained to the ministry,—Revs. T. E. White, T. J. Green and J. O. Atkinson, acting as an ordaining presbytery.

The business of the conference was transacted in the spirit of brotherly love, and the sessions were seemingly profitable and interesting to all who attended. The faithful and efficient secretary of the conference, Col. J. H. Hardin, declined reelection to that office, much to the regret of his conference. Brother O. D. Lawrence, who has served so faithfully so many years, was re-elected treasurer.

Conference expressed, by a rising vote, its appreciation for the real hospitality shown by the people of Shiloh Church and community. It was good to be there, and the conference marked another milestone on the highway that leads to the Kingdom and the City of God. J. O. A.

SOME FIGURES ON PHILANTHROPY.

The New York Times presents some very suggestive figures in the field of philanthropy. It is a well-known fact that some of America's most successful financiers have devoted their maturer judgment and the riper years of their experience, not to money making, but to making plans as to how their money shall be spent.

The late head of the Duke estate, for example, spent far more of his energy and effort in the last few years of his life, to the formulation of plans as to how his great holdings should be distributed than as to how he could increase those holdings. It is doubtful if John D. Rockefeller, for the last decade, has given any considerable portion of his time or thought as to how his wealth may be increased, but has given his working hours, such as they were, to the perfecting of plans as to how the money that he had accumulated should be spent.

Foundations were created and organized for the conservation and the wise direction of these estates. The Times points out that the largest of all these foundations, that of Rockefeller, now has resources of $250,700,000; and the Carnegie foundation, $237,000,000. There are other foundations which carry total holdings for the sole purpose of philanthropy, to $800,000,000. Last year these foundations made gifts in the sum of $52,500,000, of which the Rockefeller organization alone gave $26,400,000. The Rockefeller organization is the largest, the Carnegie coming second, the Duke endowments coming third and the Rosenwald foundation fourth. The distribution of the total of $52,500,000 last year was as follows: $18,627,222, something over a third of the total, went for medicine, public health, medical attention and research. Next to medicine, general education got the largest amount, $14,171,755. In addition to this, $4,847,017 went to the physical sciences and $3,260,032 went to the social sciences. The larger part of these gifts was spent in the north; the Duke endowment and the Rosenwald foundation going solely to benefactions in the south, the Rosenwald philanthropy going to the education of the colored race.

In addition to these foundations, millions were given to exclusively religious and charitable institutions, many of them made by private individuals and bequests. The only safety valve on our American capitalistic system is the cultivation of the spirit of philanthropy and benevolence, and the power to create in the minds of those who possess great funds a desire to use those funds, not for selfish ends, but for the common good and the uplift and betterment of man. J. O. A.

THESE FINE NOVEMBER DAYS.

When has one seen such halycon days as these? The air is just cool enough to be crisp and caressing. The sun beckons with his balmy beams, and invites one into the broad open. The foliage of the evergreen still carries the message of constant and continued life. Cornfields, now ripened and ready for the husking, hang heavy with their abundant resources of food for man and beast.

On every farm and in every field, harvests are abundant, and a glorious November has given opportunity, as well as joy, for rich ingatherings of ripened grain and fruit. And then the woods and the trees!!! Whoever saw such riot and richness of color! They are all there in every woods and in every cluster of trees—brown and yellow, pink and scarlet, green and red, violet and vermilion—every color, shade and tint that gladdens the eye, stimulates and rejoices the vision.

Summer, in departing, has left to November the task and the privilege of painting for the eye and the heart of man, all the glory and the boundless beauty of nature at her loveliest. The trees in the forests are telling the world that it is not all of life to live; and that death itself is hallowed and glorified by a richness found only in the hectic flush and the parting breath. As there is no beautiful sunset without some cloud to be glorified by its departing rays, so there is no perfect and beautiful year without the glory and the gladness of November, with its charm and enchantment of bewitching color. Surely God is infinite in all resources that go to gladden the eye and rejoice the heart of man. J. O. A.

OUR FAME GOES ABROAD.

We Americans have a way of magnifying and favorably advertising our bandits, gangsters and law-breakers. Chicago and Miami advertised, and quite favorably, to the world, Al Capone, a man whose only distinction was his ability to organize a gang of bootleggers, gamblers, enemies of society and orderly government, and who himself grew fabulously rich in the procedure. So in many quarters of the world, this bandit and gangster, instead of being looked upon with the contempt and disdain due him, was regarded as a hero and a conqueror.

Now comes the news from a Christian missionary away out in China, that a stalwart, aggressive young Chinaman, thirty years of age, accosted the missionary as follows: "Would the missionary please be willing to use his influence to enable a poor Chinaman to get to America?" He was a bandit, he explained, but "banditry in China is rather a hazardous life, and none too profitable." On the other hand, he had heard that bandits in America were far more safe than in China and made much more by their banditry than the most daring could make in China, and he, the applicant, was anxious to go to America to try his hand at banditry. He thought he could do better there and not run the risk of getting too quickly in the clutches of the law.

That Chinaman was not as much to blame as the American press and the American movie, for making such public heroes of our outlaws and bandits. J. O. A.

FIVE DAY WEEK.

It seems that business is uppermost in the world today, and there are two classes that lay emphasis on this subject: the employers and the employees. Both are wrong and ignore the Fourth Commandment, "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy;" and "Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work, but the Seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor the stranger that is within thy gates; for in six days the Lord made Heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the Seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day, and hallowed it." E. 20:8, 9, 10, 11.

There are just two items in this fourth commandment. The first is to keep the Sabbath day holy; the second is to work six days; and both are equally binding. The demand for a five day week grows out of the failure to keep the Sabbath day holy. If the nation kept the Sabbath day holy, unemployment would be unknown.

It is plain that people spend more money and commit more crimes on days when not at work and not at church than when they are honestly and busily employed in worship or work. People behave better and spend less when they are busy; and there would be fewer Sunday accidents if people would regularly attend church services. If both items in the Fourth Commandment were faithfully obeyed, hard times would be unknown. Society would be so knit together in love, and business would be conducted on such a sound basis that regular prosperity would be enjoyed. Extravagance and voluntary idleness lead to depression, to idleness and to need. Calamity never came upon the Hebrew nation when faithful to God, and hard times come to Christian nations when they wander from the true path.

This nation is disregarding the Sabbath day by neglecting church, engaging in business, indulging in pleasure, and losing reverence for God's word. A great revival of religion would correct all the evils that rob society of prosperity and peace. More respect for the law of God and the law of the state would reduce selfishness, jealousy, and the conflict between capital and labor. They are dependent upon each other and they must cooperate for prosperity and progress in all that blesses society and the home. The home is the heart of social life, and the church is the heart of business life. Neglect both of these, and quakes, floods, depression and suffering follow as a penalty for sin. When Sodom and Gomorrah became grossly wicked, the Lord "rained upon them brimstone and fire out of heaven." Gen. 19:24. Sin finally brings judgment upon itself. "Be sure your sin will find you out." Num. 32:23. Punishment is the fruit of sin in the life, and not voluntarily imposed by higher authority. The state would never punish a known innocent citizen, and God never punishes the innocent; though the innocent may bear burdens, and suffer afflictions, as Jesus suffered, "the just for the unjust." I Peter 3:18. Nations might suffer in the same way, if they were faithful to God; and by such suffering teach the world a lesson greatly needed at the present time. The prodigal son never suffered any hunger while he remained with his father at home. It was in a foreign county in riotous living that he came to want. W. W. S.

CONGREGATIONALISTS AND CHRISTIANS IN JAPAN.

The peaceful solution of the difficulties between Japan and China is advocated by the Kumiai (Congregational) Churches of Japan, it is stated in a communication received by the Rev. Charles Emerson Burton, D. D., general secretary of the Congregational and Christian Churches in America, from the Rev. Hirochi Hatanaka, chairman of the board of directors of the Kumiai churches.

The Kumiai churches at their annual conference in October, adopted the resolution:

"In accordance with our Master's great principle of brotherly love, we eagerly desire and earnestly pray for the speedy solution by peaceful means of the trouble between Japan and China.

"And we instruct our representatives to wait upon the minister for foreign affairs and the minister for education to present this resolution;

"And we further direct that copies be forwarded to the following: the National Christian Councils of China and Japan; all Kumiai churches; Japanese and English language newspapers in Japan; the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches; the League of Nations at Geneva; the League of Nations, Japan branch.

In reply to Mr. Hatanaka, Dr. Burton wrote:

"I am rejoiced at the receipt of a copy of the resolutions passed by the Kumiai (Congregational) churches expressing the desire for speedy solution of peaceful means of the trouble between Japan and China.

"I am sure that the public opinion of America today looks with a degree of horror on the possibility of war in the Orient, and I am greatly reassured by this evidence of the peaceful mind of the Japanese people."

Mr. Hatanaka is pastor of the Kumiai church at Osaka, Japan, his church having 1,300 communicant members. He was educated in this country at Oberlin College and the Oberlin Graduate School of Theology, and for two years was a secretary at the Lawrenceville branch of the Pittsburgh, Pa., Y. M. C. A. Later he was dean of Kobe College, Japan.

The Kumiai churches are an independent, self-governing denomination, founded through the work of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the foreign missions agency of the Congregational Christian churches. The missionary work was begun in 1869. The Kumiai churches have increased from 40 in 1886, and 92 in 1906, to 184, with a constituency of 60,000 at the present time.

Mr. Hatanaka represented the Kumiai churches at the meeting of the General Council of Congregational and Christian Churches in Seattle, Washington, this summer. In an address he then said:

"Our churches must not be separated by national boundaries, nor by racial differences, nor by any other thing. We can only exist as Christians and Christian churches, as branches of the same vine. We are business partners in the one great enterprise of Jesus Christ. The Christian work in Japan is yours just as much as it is ours, and can be done only by those who work together. In the most delicate international relations of the Pacific and of the world, Japan-in-Christ will be an internationalist and a peace-lover. Facing great crises in our national life, if Christ is properly presented to our people, I hope to find them most courageous and daring to put the ideals of Christ into practice in national, social and industrial problems."

A WANDERING PATRIARCH RETURNS.

The Jacksonville office had a friendly visit last week from Mr. Edward P. Branch of Melbourne, who is the "grand old man" of Florida Congregationalism. Mr. Branch, though eighty-seven years of age, is a great traveler and has attended almost every National Council for a good many years. He left Florida early in May, headed for Seattle. Mr. Branch always spends the night at some hotel en route, is a leisurely traveler and takes his time seeing a great deal of the country. On this trip he not only visited Seattle and the General Council, but also visited California and many other parts, especially visiting at his boyhood home in Ohio. Mr. Branch has made many transcontinental journeys, several of them since he retired from business. At Portland he had a reunion with four members of a Sunday school class of young women which he taught as a young man many years ago. The children of these members of his class were also included. At the General Council Mr. Branch was honored and was also featured in the Seattle press because of his long trip and of his age. Mr. Branch was Moderator of the State Conference of Florida in 1892. He returns to Florida well and happy.

Will men's prayers be answered? Not if they pray as boys whittle sticks, absently, hardly knowing or caring what they are about. I've known men to begin to pray about Adam, and go on from him away down to the present time, whittling their stick clear to a point with about as much feeling, and doing as much good as the boy does.—Henry Ward Beecher.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Church attendance has a value that few people stop to analyse. School attendance may serve as an illustration. If students neglect attendance, grades drop and degrees are never reached. Of course, study is essential, but attendance puts the pupil in touch with other pupils and with the teachers. This regular human contact is a large factor in education.

After all is thought and said about education, life associations have much to do with real education. Education is not in books alone, but in contacts that prepare for right living, and not for right living alone, but with others. The greatest lesson to learn is how to live with others. Contact with living minds has more value than contact with minds in print; though book contact with other minds enlarges the vision and extends it into times and nations outside of personal experience.

Church attendance has two values: individual and personal value, and it helps others in their spiritual character and useful lives. Church congregations in worship create a spiritual atmosphere that is unknown outside of the house of prayer. The sermon has a value rarely appreciated, but the sermon is only a part of the value of the service. It is that human touch under spiritual conditions that blesses the life and helps others in the same way. Religion is not a private affair, for "none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself." (Rom. 14:7.) We are members of the human race as well as members of the church, and we can no more live our Christian life alone than we can live our national life alone. Church attendance is not for the individual alone, but for the congregation. No useful member has been found who absented himself regularly from church. Involuntary absence may still be a faithful and useful Christian, as invalids who cannot attend. Permanent invalids have often been a little church in themselves, around whose beds people have gathered for comfort and inspiration which came from their faith, their hope, and their resignation.

This is a good time, at the beginning of the conference year, for members of the church to pass in their own minds, and even with a few others, a resolution to be more regular in attendance upon church services during the year upon which they enter after their annual conference. Such resolutions, carried out for a whole year, would improve the preaching, increase the membership, enlarge the influence of the church in the community, meet the local financial expenses, and send up the conference apportionments in full.

Every church in the Southern Christian Convention needs a revival of religion, and that cannot be realized unless church attendance is increased. People outside can be reached and won to Christ and the church only by regular attendance and an increase in spiritual experience on the part of the members of the church. Will you hold a private meeting with yourself and resolve that this conference year will find you in church for every service when you can go?

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

Istanbul, the modern name for Constantinople, is an international city. It lies partly in Europe and partly in Asia and over its famous bridge that spans the Golden Horn passes every day, it is said, one or more representatives of every nation under the sun. We saw our first negroes here since landing in Europe and believe me they looked good to us. There is no color line here. The negro population is altogether Islamic and every Moslem, no matter from what race he comes, is a brother. A Southerner particularly notes the absence of any consciousness of racial differences. In Turkey the negro is a man—nothing more nor nothing less.

All the major branches of the Church of Christ are represented in Istanbul, but the great mass of people are Moslems. In the city are more than 600 mosques, many of them great Christian Churches that have been converted by the fortunes of war into mosques. Since there can be no image in a mosque, the statues have all been removed from these churches and the paintings and icons, pictures in mosaic, have been plastered over or removed. The icons in the marble floors are covered by prayer rugs.

Christians in Turkey include Greek Orthodox, Gregorian or Armenian Orthodox, and Roman Catholics. All other Christian groups are subsumed under the category of "Protestants." So we have the anomaly that Protestants are not Christians in Turkey, and the further anomaly that they are far more respected than the Christians. Nearly five hundred years of conflict between Moslem Turkey and the Christians account for this difference. Nor are the Moslems altogether to blame for feeling as they do.

There is something beautiful about the reverence of the Moslem for Allah. One can but feel that the Moslem is losing something vital from his life in this day of the governmental and intellectual revolt against religion in the Turkish Republic. It is a sad day for any people when they lose faith in the religion that has buttressed their life and have nothing better to take its place, and that is what is happening in Turkey today. Older men and women reverently worship daily toward Mecca at one or more of the five calls to worship from the minarets that accompany each mosque, but few young men and women participate and the government's attitude toward the teaching of religion in the public schools throws the responsibility of instructing the young in religion on parents who are not at all prepared for it by training or by custom. The hadjas or religious teachers of the mosque rarely receive more than 35 liras a month, about $17.00 in our money. They are devout men, with the atmosphere of saintliness about them, but their economic straits narrow and circumscribe their influence. It is a crime for representatives of one religion to teach religion to children of another and only after the eighteenth birthday can evangelization be practiced and not even then in any institution of learning. The Turk has suffered much from religion. He has separated Church and State and while he permits each religious group to teach religion to its own adherents at any time, he does not countenance missions to any but adults. This has made a radical readjustment of program and procure necessary for missionaries, schools, and colleges. They are carrying on beautifully and heroically by demonstrating good will, publishing literature to reconstruct the home and social life, through programs of activities that lead to Christian outcomes in living though not so labelled, and by regarding Christianity primarily as a way of life, with complete absence of polemics. Evangelization now is become in Moslem Turkey, a process of peaceful penetration. It is to assess the ultimate values of this permeative process, this leavening process, but it can be safely said that its results cannot be computed in arithmetical terms. According to the geometry of the spirit, it looks as if it will eventually bring in the Kingdom of God. At least our missionaries have the mind and spirit of Christ and are meeting a changed and untried situation in His spirit.

Outside Constantinople you find the real Moslem atmosphere—lack of progress, primitiveness of life, dogged fatalism, love of the out-of-doors, gentility, politeness, loss of the sense of time, trustfulness of the landlord and of the state (belated survivals of feudalism), and individualism quick to avenge its rights and then a sweet forgiveness, a beautiful spirit of brotherhood within the group, with a serene confidence in Allah (God) expressed in acts of worship in mosques to be sure, but to us Westerners also in the most unexpected places. For example, our train has just pulled out of Sart (the ancient Sardis). It is noon and from the minaret visible from the train, the call to prayer has gone forth. A devout mother prostrates herself in the street while her little girl patiently awaits the conclusion of her devotions, too young to know what it is all about, but so respectful of parental authority, that she patiently, almost reverently waits. It is a beautiful picture.

We have looked forward to visiting Smyrna since we left home and here we are on a Friday afternoon—the Moslem Sabbath—steaming into the lovely harbor. Our ship runs up a yellow flag, a notice to the quarantine officer that we do not have clearance papers to enter. Out comes the officer's launch. His boat moors at our landing, a petty officer takes him a bunch of fish and no doubt tells him we are all well. His launch pulls away, down comes our yellow flag—a silly performance, but officers must live. There is a fine dock, but the Adrian does not dock nor does any passenger carrying ship till her passengers are ashore. For no one knows how long a fleet of row boats have met incoming steamers and charged varying sums, according to your agility in bargaining, to put passengers ashore. We were met by President Reed of International College, who came out in a boat and got us, baggage and all, ashore and his auto, a faithful Ford, for $1.50 in American money. We were fortunate.

We are traveling second class. Since we are to travel two days and all night, we had to take a Pullman or Wagon Lits as they call it, a Wagon Bed. Our compartment was in the very center of the car, but soon after we pulled out of Smyrna, the conductor demands $15.00 more if we keep it because it is reserved for first-class passengers. We refused to come across and are deposited in a compartment directly over the wheels. So I jostle as I write. You never know what you are going to pay in Turkey for any service rendered you. You are fortunate if you have an American guide along who knows the language and can bargain for you.

Smyrna was burned in 1922 when the Turkish Army under the command of Mustapha Kemal now President of the Republic of Turkey, drove the Greeks out. By decision of the League of Nations all Greeks and all Armenians outside Istanbul were deported and Moslem populations from lands outside Turkey were brought in, presumably in equal numbers. No such movements of population have ever before occurred in recorded history and great suffering has ensued. It seemed necessary if Turkey was to have a chance to become a nation. Perhaps time will justify what has happened. Large areas of the city are still ruins. The squalor of many of the imported Turks, from Greece, Albania, Servia, Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, beggared description. Pouring from hovels made of debris and roofed over with tin cans, through an interpreter I talked with persons from all these countries, unable to speak Turkish and appearing not to have eaten a full meal in a year. Yet they smiled us "long life" from amidst their rags, as we bade them "goodbye."

In Smyrna since apostolic days there has been a Christian Church in continuous existence. At first the church was housed in the homes of its adherents, and so it has been in these latter days, since 1922. Some few Christians remained in Smyrna (modern Ismir) after the deportations of 1922 and are still true to their faith, though they have no church in which to worship. Their situation has been wretched. Roman Catholics and the Anglican Church would not serve them. Their dead did not have Christian burial for a long time, till the Protestant President of International College tendered his service. But now that other Greeks from the mainland, not formerly Turkish subjects, have come in, a priest has also come. What a pleasure it was to talk with this kindly man and to tell him how glad I was that this continuous church is to be continued out of its present disaster! Of the seven churches of Asia, Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea, Smyrna is the only one of which no fault is spoken by the Spirit in the Revelation. It was a poor church, as it is today, but it was also rich. It was a spiritual church and so it has withstood the ravages of the centuries, not housed in great cathedrals with gilded domes, but resplendent in its devotion to the Lord. What a joy it is to read Rev. 2:8-11 in the very place to which these gracious words were sent!

Ephesus, with its temple to Diana, its great Cathedral of St. John, the apostle, and other works of art, is a mass of ruins, buried beneath rubbish till the German excavators unearthed it in the latter part of the last century. Its great temple of Diana was grazing ground for donkeys the day we visited it. And the same is true of Pergamos, rival city of Ephesus in its magnificence and grandeur, now being excavated, and of Thyatira, and of Sardis, and of Philadelphia, and of Laodicea. Nothing remains but ruins. In the towns nearby which eke out a miserable existence, not a single Christian is left. All is Moslem. The weaknesses pointed out by the Revelator bore their fruit in the utter disappearance of the Christian name from their midst.

You visit these sites with open Bible and you read from the Acts, the Epistles, and the Revelation the records of what took place. Your Bible takes on a new meaning and also a new dignity. What wisdom other than the Divine could have spoken so discerningly of the seven Churches of Asia! And you have a new reason for your faith in the inspiration of scripture.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

Father of Love, Thou knowest our frames, of ourselves so faulty and incapable, yielded to Thee so susceptible of grace and victory and power. Through defenceless night whether of body or soul, Thou dost cover and keep each committed life for the day of endeavor unto whatsoever Thou hast appointed. More and more grant us clear insight unto the chambers of Thy will and make us obedient. Showing us the leanness of normal allegiance, lift Thy children into the realm of positive partnership with Thee for Thy dear Son's sake. Amen. "L."

PRAYING FOR MISSIONARIES BY NAME.

ADONIRAM JUDSON GORDON.

Praying for missionaries by name is another means for drawing out our interest toward the foreign fields.

Wholesale intercession has always a dangerous tendency. Prayers which are so inclusive that they cease to be incisive, which take in so many interests that they take hold of none—who has not been wearied by such comprehensively feeble intercession? Christians have as much need to be on their guard against platitudinarianism as against latitudinarianism. Evangelical vagueness of desire and petition is a weariness to God and to men.

Instead of praying for the Lord's blessing on our mission fields and upon our missionary brethren in general, let us make a list of their names, and take some of them before the throne of grace each day. Let us make ourselves acquainted with their circumstances of trial or success, so that we will have definite petitions or thanksgiving for them. Let the missionaries send home specific requests for prayer, and let them be taken up for definite remembrance.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Virginia Valley Central Women's Missionary Conference was held at Dry Run Church on October 10th. Eighteen of the twenty-five churches of the conference were represented by delegates or by pastors. Three of the five pastors in the conference were present, the others being detained at home by sickness. The hearty co-operation of pastors means so much in this line of church work, as in others. The majority of the district leaders and members of the Woman's Board were unable to attend because of the busy season of the year.

Mrs. Bernard J. Newman, of Philadelphia, an active and wide-awake worker of the Congregational church, was the principle speaker. She brought two splendid addresses and conducted an interesting round table. Our women hope to have Mrs. Newman visit us again.

The Dry Run boys had a choice quartette that gave several selections, to the delight of all.

The people of the church served a bountiful dinner on a large table on the church lawn.

The Winchester society gave a dialog, "The Ghost," which gave some good hints to societies.

The treasurer's report showed $433.74 raised during the year. The conference stood in opposition to the liquor traffic and in favor of the support of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. A. W. Andes, president; Miss Ora Scott, vice-president; Mrs. B. F. Frank, secretary; Miss Verdine Showalter, treasurer; Superintendents: Spiritual Life, Mrs. R. A. Larrick; Women's Societies, Mrs. Arnold Hosaflook; Young People's Societies, Mrs. O. L. Hoover; Literature, Miss Ella Pickering; Cradle Roll, Mrs. E. Lena Rothgeb.

Among recommendations passed, we note this, "We recommend that we subscribe for and read more missionary magazines, such as, THE CHRISTIAN SUN, The Missionary Herald and The American Missionary; and that we read the mission study books.

Mrs. Larrick conducted the devotionals by a study of the first chapter of St. John.

MRS. B. F. FRANK,
Secretary.

"Give, give, be always giving,
Who gives not is not living.

The more you give,
The more you live,

Give strength, give thought, give deeds, give pelf,
Give love, give tears and give thyself,

Give, give, be always giving,
Who gives not is not living."

—The Call of the World.

THANK-OFFERING PROGRAM.

Arranged by MRS. W. M. JAY.

Theme—"The Love of God."

Prelude—Quiet Music.

Leader welcomes the people, making a statement concerning the Thankoffering meeting, the objects for which the offering will be used, and the theme. She will then read the following:

"Millions of thoughts for the world and its needs,
Millions of hands doing kind, loving deeds,
Millions of prayers to the Father above,
Millions of hearts overflowing with love,
Millions of words that are spoken just right,
Millions of feet that are willing to go
To uttermost parts if our Savior says so.
Millions of Christians now willing to give Millions of dollars that lost souls may live."

Hymn—"O, Worship the King."

Scripture—Matt. 25:40-45.

Prayer, followed by prayer-hymn, very softly:
"Have Thine Own Way Lord."

Dialogue—"A Pageant of Boxes," by ten children.

Special Music.

Pageant—"My Altar of Thanksgiving."

Presentation of offerings (four young women, a soloist and the leader.)

God's Gift to Us.

Leader says: "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

The first young woman enters dressed in white cheese cloth robe with a gold crown, and carrying grains and fruit in her arms. She speaks: "Thou crownest the year with thy goodness," and steps to the left while the soloist sings two stanzas of "My God, I Thank Thee," or some other appropriate hymn.

Our Gifts to God.

Leader says: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits."

The second girl enters, dressed in a green robe, with leaves in her hair, bearing an offering plate piled high with offering envelopes and bills on top. She speaks: "Freely ye have received, freely give." She steps to the right as soloist sings two stanzas of "We Give Thee but Thine Own."

Our Thank-Offerings at Work.

Leader says: "So build we the wall—for the people had a mind to work."

Third girl enters dressed in yellow and bearing a globe or map. She speaks: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." She steps to the left, as soloist sings, "God is Working His Purpose Out."

The Thank-Offerings that Are Forgotten.

Leader says: "Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?"

Fourth girl enters dressed in black, bearing a tray of unused envelopes. She stands with downcast head and speaks: "How shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent?" She steps to the right, as the soloist sings, "Savior, Thy Dying Love Thou Gavest Me."

The four girls will then receive the offering while the pianist plays. The leader will receive the plates and offer the consecration prayer.

Hymn—"Take My Life and Let It Be."

Benediction.

NOTE.—The pageants above may be secured from the United Lutheran Church Mission Department, 723 Muhlenberg Bldg., 1228 Spruce Street, Philadelphia. The dialogue, "Pageant of Boxes," is 5c, and "My Altar of Thanksgiving," is 10c. This program may be abbreviated to meet the local needs.

NEWS FROM OUR MISSION FIELDS.

PIGS IS PIGS.

For centuries India has been handicapped by a lack of respect for the "dignity of labor." She is learning now. Recently the Indian headmaster of the school in Tirumangalem started bee raising. Then he wanted to keep pigs! And he got pigs—black Berkshires. "When they came he took them out of the boxes and got over into the pen to care for them," reports Rev. Raymond A. Dudley. "He cleaned the pen himself for three days. Now he says there are 100 boys who are willing to do it. That sounds tame to you in America, but it means a lot to us here in India. There are ever increasing number of educated men in India who are rising above the age-long standards of dignity—and doing things." When the mayor of the town came to call, the Headmaster took him to see the pigs!

U. S. IGNORANT OF LEAGUE.

Enlightened public opinion, especially in America, is the greatest present need of the League of Nations, according to W. Griffith Couser, young teacher who last year went out to Aleppo College, Syria. His work in Syria had deepened Couser's interest in international affairs, he says, and consequently he desired to know more of the League. So he visited Geneva in his vacation and attended the opening of the League and the Institute of the Federation of League of Nations Societies. He discovered, he confesses, that he was "more profoundly ignorant of the League and its work than he had imagined. He was deeply impressed by the 'extraordinary number of League activities, the scientific methods with which they are conducted and the actual accomplishments.'"

"OUR HEARTS ACHED."

The Chinese pastor returning to his church in Tainning, China, recently occupied by Communist troops, found it a mere shell, with everything movable, burned or otherwise destroyed, and his own things, with the exception of bedding, vanished. Conditions last reported have improved somewhat in Kienning, Shaowu and Tainning. Rev. Edwin D. Kellogg, together with Pastor Chen, have gone back to Yangkow. The Reds and the bandits seem to have been driven down into the southwest corner of Fukien. "Our hearts ached for those returning to their looted homes and for these in the bandit camps," reports Rev. Leonard J. Christian of Foochow. "We have reason to praise our Heavenly Father for the care which follows our Christian groups. None of the pastors or preachers were killed though they were especially sought after, and very few of the Christians were held for ransom. We know of only one Christian man who was killed."

IN HIS SPARE TIME.

Carrying on in the hospital with the thermometer during the hot season running from 103 to 107 in the shade, Dr. Edward Wheeler Wilder of the Alberta Victor Hospital, Madura, India, still has time to teach a Sunday School class of boys who call themselves "The King's Messengers." They are interested in evangelism among their Hindu and Mohammedan classmates," declared the Doctor, "and have given a Gospel of Mark or John to their closest non-Christian friends." Dr. Wilder has also reorganized the Hindu Boys Sunday School. Dressed in loin clothes they sit on the floor and study Bible stories, aided by the Bible women, but without books or quarterlies.

TURK DEFINES "REAL" MISSIONARY.

A stimulating definition of a missionary was given Miss Ethel W. Putney of Gedik Pasha, Istanbul, Turkey, by a Turkish friend. "There are two kinds of people in the world," he said, "Those who are just good, and those whose goodness is so living and contagious that others are transformed who come in contact with it. The latter are the only true missionaries, whatever their label may be. They are living in such vital touch with God that His power and love transforms them, and through them, others."

600,000 RADIOS IN JAPAN.

According to C. Delisle Burns in "Modern Civilization on Trial" broadcasting began in Japan in 1925 and last year there were 600,000 receiving sets. The moving picture theatres had an attendance in Japan of 136,000,000 back even in 1928. Other startling statistics in this book show that China, with one-quarter of the world's population has only about 7,000 miles of railroad.

GANDHI AND "JIMMIE."

William Pickens, prominent negro author and lecturer in an Associated Negro Press syndicated editorial recently described Gandhi and Mayor Walker of New York City, as "A Mahatma, 'a great soul,' and 'Hizzoner,' a little soul who by accident drifted into a fairly big place." And then, among many other things, Dr. Pickens says: "While Gandhi waited for an hour at the appointed time to receive 'The Mayor', 'Jimmy' went out to see the night life of London. With the chance for an interview with the greatest man of the world and of this age, the 'charming little fellow' from 'N'York' preferred to go and see something he can better see in New York City. Night life is nothing new to a man who has been for years the mayor of New York. Some day James Walker may be remembered chiefly because he was rude and slighting to the Mahatma—something like the immortality of the snake that bit Cleopatra, or the Brutus that stabbed Caesar—After all, perhaps it was best that John Haynes Holmes advised the Mahatma not to waste any precious time on 'Jimmie.'"

FIGHTING.

Ten years ago Mr. Gold, a Northern Chinese with three promising sons, turned to the Gospel primarily, at the time, as a much needed help in the breaking off of the opium habit formed honestly at first when he took the drug as medicine. But it had become too strong—a consuming foe. "He has battled against this growing habit, but his weak body has not given him a normal chance to win out," says Rev. William B. Stelle of Tunghsien. His oldest son who had become a vigorous Christian and developed a contagious faith has inspired his father to a final desperate fight. After a year of probation, with many defeats, Mr. Gold pleaded with his pastor in this way: "If I should lose out in this supreme struggle and cannot be accepted as a church member, will you not baptize me after I am dead?"

A UNITING FORCE.

Dirty, ragged little children waiting patiently for a drink of milk, perhaps a little cereal, a bath and medical attention—the hour; eight o'clock in the morning—the place; Ahmednagar Neighborhood House—the occasion; the Baby Welfare Association clinic which treats colds, coughs, sore children of the poorest Christians in the vicinity eyes, infections and the like. For the most part come. They play and rest and imbibe the atmosphere. The evening sees a change of scene. Older youths at games; Music from the American organ worked overtime. "The boys croon strange but attractive Indian tunes," says F. Sidney Wilder. There are scouts, too, 16 poor boys who have been helped to secure their uniforms by the Neighborhood House committee but who have earned the rest of the money needed. Classes are planned—the Neighborhood House is already the meeting place of the whole community and a club of men, "The Helping Club," gathers each Wednesday. "All of this helps to tie the community together in bonds of friendship, cooperation and Christian comradeship," adds Mr. Wilder.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."

JEWEL TRUITT, Editor, Glen Raven, N. C.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

On Wednesday morning we visited Sacramento's capitol and climbed up in its dome. From there we rode on to Reno, Nevada. We got to Reno about supper time. We got a place for the night, and then we went down town for supper and an evening of sight-seeing. There was one person in town that we knew, and we were lucky enough to meet up with him. He told us about the town and about how it is run by politicians just for the money they get out of such a place. He took us to what was once a back alley and told us that since gambling was legalized in the town, this alley had become the main street of the town. He pointed out a row of bootleg joints, told us there were fifty-two gambling places in the town, that more women than men gambled, and showed us the courtroom, the hotel where the wealthy people have suites while waiting for their divorces, the island known as Alimony island, where they tell you those expecting to receive divorces go on the day they are to receive them to decide how much alimony they want, and other places that make up such towns. After talking with this man who had lived in the town for several months, we thought we knew enough about Reno, and were ready to bid farewell willingly. A visit to such a town, and especially if one is able to see it through the eyes of a person who knows its soul as well as its outward appearance, makes joking about easy divorce and the breaking up of home life rather a hard thing to enjoy.

From Reno, we started toward Yosemite National Park. We passed through the capital of Nevada, Carson City, and reached the park for the night. We got cabins inside of the reservation, and enjoyed a big open fire in the dining room, and later a big bon-fire on the outside, as it was rather cold. On the next morning we made a hasty trip through the park, seeing the most famous rocks, El Capitan, Cathedral Spires, Half Dome, etc., and Mirror Lake and the Yosemite Falls, Bridal Falls, etc.

About twelve-thirty we left the park and drove on to Pasadena, California. We drove over the city of Pasadena, then out to Beverly Hills to see the homes of the movie stars, and from there to Hollywood. We saw several of the movie studios, and asked to be permitted to enter, but were told that there was nothing to be seen on Saturday afternoons in the studios. We did have the luck to find out that we could see some of the actresses if we visited Henry's Cafe at about eleven-thirty that night. So we went to the Cafe at a little after eleven o'clock and waited to see them come. We saw several of them there.

On Sunday morning at eleven o'clock, we visited the Angelus Temple, the church over which Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson presides. Mrs. McPherson was not in Los Angeles at the time, but services were held by a Methodist minister.

In the afternoon we visited Long Beach.

The next day was spent in and around San Diego, where we looked up a former resident of Waverly, Va., visited Balboa Park, and ate at a cafe named in honor of Juan Cabrillo, who founded San Diego in the year 1532. We spent the night at Tent City, down on the Pacific beach.

Tuesday morning, we went into Mexico, saw the town of Tijuana and the new development for gambling known as Agua Caliente (Hot Water). Tijuana is an old gambling town, run with Americans who come over the border for drink and gambling. It was never made attractive, but money was made even under those circumstances. Some of this money has been invested in the eight million dollar outlay at Caliente. The buildings are some of the most beautiful we saw on the entire trip. We were there about ten in the morning, before the residents began to stir, so we had the privilege of seeing the buildings. Even when the buildings are bare of the throngs of people who patronize the place, the outlay appears very gorgeous. We had breakfast at the Virginia Hotel, about halfway between Caliente and Tijuana, and then came back to the States.

Of course southern California was beautiful. Flowers all the year round, oranges in the groves, beautiful rolling hills, wonderful sunrises and sunsets, all these we shall remember when we think back through the few days we were privileged to be there.

Suggestions on the Topic.

God's Gifts.—God gives every gift. "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of Light, with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." God has given man the best gifts. First, he gave the earth as a home. In this home provisions for every need of man was met. He gave relatives and friends. He provided in His most gracious gifts, health and joy and peace. To attain these gifts, it is necessary for man to obey the laws of the universe. But to meet this need, God gave man a mind which reasons for him. In this way he provided for the joys of helping each other, of creating new gifts, and of perfecting the things that man finds need for. Christ also was given by God. He is the Supreme Gift of a loving Father, given to point the way back home after man had strayed away in sin and selfishness. God went His whole limit in giving His only Son. No greater proof of His tender love and care for mankind could be possible.

My Obligations.—As tokens of gratitude for what God has given us, and what He continually bestowes upon us, we can do no less than have grateful hearts and minds. We can live in the spirit of thankfulness to God for His abundant gifts. We should serve Him and our fellowman with willing spirits. Living at our very best all of the time would be the fulfillment of our obligation to God for His wonderful gifts.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

I have just received a supply of literature from the Church World Press, publishers of "Church Management," Auditorium Building, East 6th and St. Clair, Cleveland, Ohio. It proposes a "Loyalty Month." This is a fine idea. During the summer time people drop out of church responsibilities, and even at other times folks get luke warm. It is possible to revive this flagging spirit by such a plan as this.

Select a month, November, and try to make it one hundred per cent in every activity of the church. The publisher referred to will provide the helps if you want them. They consist of a carefully worded printed letter to be sent to all the people asking them to cooperate during the month thereby showing their loyalty to the church and the pastor. With this goes a pledge card. The card reads, "Loyalty Bond Pledge Card" and the Loyalty Bond Pledge is as follows: "In consideration of the plans of my church to make November a Loyalty Month, I hereby pledge myself to attend the following services unless prevented by illness or some other reason I can conscientiously offer. (A) Each Sunday Morning Service in November; (B) Each Sunday Evening Service in November; (C) Each Mid-week Service in November. Name and address. If there are other items deemed important they can be added but that is all that is required. On the reverse side of the card is a place to keep a record of attendance.

When a card has been signed and handed in then a "Loyalty Bond" is issued to the person who signs the card. This "Bond" contains 12 coupons to be clipped and deposited in the offering plate at church or in a box provided at prayer meeting. As these coupons come in the attendance is recorded on the back of the cards.

The last Sunday in the month is supposed to be the grand climax Sunday. A special card is provided for that and sent out to remind the members that special effort should be made to attend this last Sunday. The day can be made a Decision Day or anything else the pastor or committee desires.

The cost is not much. I note the price for an outfit that would do a church of 100 members is only $3.90. Considering the good results obtained this investment would more than pay in increased offerings. It has been tried with success by many churches. It gets things going for the winter. It is, really, a sort of quiet revival from within the church itself. It does increase loyalty.

Sunday School Lesson

PAUL IN ROME.

LESSON VIII.—NOVEMBER 22, 1931

LESSON TEXT: Acts 28:16-24.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I can do all things in him that strengtheneth me."—Phil. 4:13.

Introduction.

Paul had longed to go to Rome and preach in the capital of the empire. He wished then to push westward to Spain and open far distant mission fields. After dispatching the greatest of his letters to the church at Rome he had made his visit to Jerusalem. Last Sunday we saw the free apostle become an apostle in chains or bonds. Prejudice and group animosities interfered with justice in Paul's trials in Palestine, so he appealed his case to the emperor's court at Rome.

Great Faith.

A great faith pulls us over many situations that are discouraging within themselves. It can transform defeat into victory. Paul, the prisoner for the free gospel, may still proclaim the joyous news of redemption. His court trials gave him the opportunity to tell the story of his own religious experience. While a prisoner, he is still free to pass to others the message of a great faith. A man of small faith would have given up in despair and not continued to preach a message of spiritual release while bonds unjustly afflicted him.

The voyage to Rome was fraught with many dangers. Shipwreck left them on the island of Malta for the winter.

At Rome.

One of Paul's great ambitions was to preach the gospel in Rome. He was proud of his Roman citizenship; he was ambitious for the gospel of his Master to be heralded at the capital of the empire. At last he reached Rome, not as a free missionary, but as a prisoner. Some of the Christian group from Rome went out the Appian way to meet the renowned champion of Gentils mission work. When these brethren greeted Paul, he thanked God and took courage.

What would we do in our whole round of experiences without the support that comes from our friends. People of like interest understand each other better because of their like faith. The joys of life are heightened by the association of our friends. The sorrows and burdens are lightened by the presence of our friends. The Christian friends at Rome gave Paul a greeting that greatly strengthened his soul and spirit for his work there.

Ministry at Rome.

A large degree of freedom was granted Paul at the capital. While a prisoner, he was permitted to live in private quarters under the guard of a soldier. He awaited the arrival of charges and the appointment of his trial. In the meantime, he was at liberty to entertain groups and set before them the message of the gospel.

As usual Paul addressed his attention to the persuasion of Jews to accept his Christian interpretation of their faith and its messianic fulfillment in Jesus. He reasoned with them from the Law and the Prophets. Some believed and some disbelieved. He told them the message was also for the Gentiles. (Verse 28.) "Be it known, therefore, unto you that this salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles; they will also hear." Paul tried to win his own racial group of Jews. His faith reached out for Gentiles, also.

For two full years he preached and taught in

A prisoner, falsely charged, had spiritual resources sufficient to transform his prison home into a sacred chapel; and to make his enforced residence of more than two years, a fruitful spiritual ministry. FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

CELESTIAL GRAVITY.

"No man can come to me, except the Father that sent me draw him." Read John 6:41-51.

It is not so easy to measure the pull of the earth, and yet it is necessary to do so. Weight, for one thing, depends upon it. Weight changes as the earth's pull varies in different places. Go up on a mountain, and weight is less than at the sea level.

Scientists are able to measure gravity with extreme accuracy and, best of all, by the swing of a pendulum, which is in a shorter arc the greater the force of gravity.

It would be well for us, indeed, if we had equally accurate knowledge of the pull of heaven upon our spirits. Are we, on the whole, drawn more upward or downward? Is our spiritual tendency toward the trivial or the vital? Do our lives swing toward time or eternity? The answer to these questions determines the final outcome of our existence.

Prayer—Nearer, O God, to Thee! We would know Thee better, love Thee more, from day to day. Our hearts long for Thee. Thou art our goal. Nearer, our God, to Thee. Amen.

TUESDAY.

BIBLE PROSPECTING.

"I rejoice at Thy word, as one that findeth great spoil." Read Psalm 119:161-168.

Last year fourteen million copies of Bibles and Testaments were sold in the United States, and thirty-six and one-half millions in all the world. No other book, of course, has such a record, or approximates it; and the Bible becomes more popular from year to year.

Yet, amid all this enormous activity in regard to the Bible, what is one's personal and individual activity? That, and that alone, is what counts for him. The Bible-reading of a million others does not amount to so much for John Smith as the Gospel of John which John Smith reads for himself. A score of books on the Sermon on the Mount do not count for Helen Jones and her progress in the higher life as much as a single reading by her of the fifth, sixth, and seventh chapters of Matthew.

The Psalmist was a Bible prospector. He delved in the sacred pages as one hunts for hidden gold. He rejoiced in every word of wisdom as one who finds a diamond in the rock. There is vast wealth in the Word, but it is there only for the lovers of the Word.

Prayer—God of Scripture, Author of the Book of books, acquaint us with its happy and precious stores. Lead our spirits to them. Interpret them to us. And through them acquaint us with Thyself. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

SETTLED.

"I am the resurrection, and the life." Read John 11:17-27.

A vigorous discussion of Christ's resurrection and of human immortality is in progress in certain radical religious papers and in some of the secular newspapers. It seems strange indeed to a Christian that such a discussion could be carried on in the twentieth century of the Christian era, even though a very small minority of those who claim to be Christians participate in it.

For the vast majority of Christians consider that this question was settled nineteen hundred years ago. Doubt of Christ's resurrection, and therefore disbelief in human immortality, of which Christ's resurrection constitutes the only proof, leaves one, as Paul wrote, "of all men most miserable." Every Christian should make sure of this basal belief. The way to make sure of it is to study with Spirit-aided mind the Gospel accounts of the resurrection, and the other New Testament passages bearing on this great truth. The matter has been settled, and settled in the only way any matter can be settled, by a demonstration of facts. Doubt here—to be entirely frank—is no evidence of thoughtfulness but of ignorance.

Prayer—Thou who art the Way, conduct us into the pathway of this confidence. Thou who art the Truth, make us assured of this central reality. Thou who art the Life, admit us to eternal life with Thee. Amen.

THURSDAY.

ELECTIONS AND DEITY.

"Canst thou by searching find out God? Canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection?" Read Job 11:7-12.

It is impossible any longer for a scientist to ridicule the mysteries of religion or refuse to believe in Christianity because there are Christian doctrines which he cannot understand. What if the Bible had declared that Elijah had talked in a little box and his words had been heard in a similar little box down in Egypt?

Chesterton says that "the Trinity is easier to understand than the electron." The scientists would now have us believe that all matter consists of infinitely small universes of electric force, planetary systems of these whirling forces within other planetary systems, so that if you hold up your finger before your eyes you must see with the vision of scientific faith a cosmos as endless and majestic as "the starry firmament on high." Compared with that, the revealed threefold personality in unity of the Godhead is simplicity itself.

Prayer—We can not by searching find Thee out, O Thou Almighty, unto perfection; but we can discover Thee by receiving it. Lo, Thou dost stand at the door, and knock. Amen.

FRIDAY.

JAPANESE GRACEFULNESS.

"The words of a wise man's mouth are gracious." Read Ecclesiastes 10:8-15.

The delegation of charming girls, sent to thank our country for the relief we sent to Japan in 1923, is one of the finest examples of courtesy in all history. Japan did not need to cement further the cordial friendship between our two nations; but if she had been under that necessity she could have chosen no abler set of ambassadors. It is strange that our country, possessing so many women of wisdom, tact, and graciousness, has not yet placed one of them on such international commissions as those that have recently been seeking the lessening of the waste and terrors of war.

We charge our forefathers with sternness, yet the word "grace" is found far more frequently in their writings than in ours. They were in love with the grace of God as shown through His Son. That grace is the most fruitful source of graciousness in a human life.

Prayer—Now may the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, be with us forever. Amen.

SATURDAY.

OUR SMOKE SCREENS.

"Thou art a God that seest" [margin, "Thou God seest me"]. Read Genesis 16:7-14.

Evil-doers of today are quick to take advantage of all the resources of modern science. Photography, chemistry, the telephone and the telegraph, the automobile and the airplane, and all the other marvels of this era of invention and discovery, have been siezed upon greedily by the thieves and bandits of the underworld.

An example is the adoption by bootleggers and thugs of the device of a smoke screen applied to the automobile. It furnishes fleeing criminals with a barrier which the pursuing police can not penetrate, and into which they dare not rush.

The police will find a way of dissipating the smoke screen, for righteousness always comes out on top. But let us look to ourselves, and to the smoke screens we so often and so foolishly throw out, the cloud of excuses with which we seek to evade the penalties of God. How silly are all such attempts in the eyes of Him before whom the secrets of every heart stand revealed.

Prayer—Thou God seest us, Thou God knowest us altogether. Thou God, however swiftly we run away, will meet us at the judgment bar. We have no safety save in Thee. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE CUT HOSE.

"I will turn your feasts into mourning." Read Amos 8:4-10.

A residence in Michigan got afire, and the fire apparatus was summoned. The hose was laid, stretched across some railroad tracks, and the chief shouted the order to turn on the water. Just then a freight train rushed by, cut the hose in two, and the house burned down.

Human beings all over the world are constantly making precisely this mistake with reference to their supplies of spiritual grace. They lay their hose across the tracks of selfish interests and worldly pleasures, and the heavy, clanging cars of materialism roar along the tracks, leaving men with nothing wherewith to put out the fires of evil passion and sinful practices.

Before all else, a soul should maintain its connection with the sources of heavenly supplies, and yet the average man is so careless. Let us see to it that we are in touch with the spiritual reservoirs!

Prayer—Our Father who art in Heaven, abide in us, and may we abide in Thee. Thou art the living water, flow ever into our lives. Amen.

People very often err when they come to place an estimate on important things. Some Corinthian Christians actually rated spiritual gifts above love; and among spiritual gifts, "speaking with tongues" was considered by many to be the greatest gift because of its spectacular character. Some who possessed the gift seemed to hold in contempt those who could not prophesy. Yet Paul placed prophets next to apostles and mentioned tongues and their interpretations last, and said that he had rather speak five words with his understanding than ten thousand words in a tongue. The spectacular is not always the most important. Intoxication is not to be preferred to food and needed stimulation.—Gospel Advocate.

THE CHURCH OF "LOST LOVE."

By DR. W. M. JAY, Holland, Va.

[Delivered before the 111th Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, held at Cypress Chapel Christian Church, October 29, 1931.]

TEXT: Revelation 2: 1-7. (Read 1-2: 1-7.)

PART II.

The Condemnation.

But notwithstanding all this praise and commendation the Master says, "I have somewhat against thee, Because thou hast left thy first love."

It is rather surprising that a church that labored so patiently, worked without growing weary, suffered, would not tolerate evil men in the church and stood out against false teachers, that any thing much could be said against it.

John says in chapter 1:16, when describing the Master, that out of his mouth went a sharp, two-edged sword. The Master is now using that sharp, two-edged sword in dealing with this church. One edge was for praise, the other was for a rebuke. He praises them for their works, patience, suffering, their intolerance of evil and heresy. Theologically they were sound, but when the Master placed his stethoscope over the heart of the church, he found a deject, a serious heart leakage.

It was a serious rebuke he made against this church. "Thou hast left thy first love." Its a love that is fresh in time, place, and importance. The Master realizes that he does not now have that place and it hurts him. He says in Matt. 10:37 "He that loveth father and mother more than me is not worthy of me and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me." He realized that in this church some one was being loved more than he.

"Thou hast left thy first love." The word "left" here means to relax, to neglect, to decline, to be deserted, to be alone.

No, it was not a love that had been lost, but a waning, declining love. There is now only a partial love, which once was entire. The church had not lost its love for Christ. It only loved him less. But Christ felt it, and it hurt him. At one time the motto of this church was, "Thou, O Christ, art all I want," but now this does not satisfy, they want Christ, but they also want the things of the flesh.

That "first love" was the love this church had for Christ when it was first established. Then they loved him with a passion. They would have gone through fire for him, sacrificed for him, endured martyrdom for him and for his cause. They were teachable then; their conscience was true; their service was willing. Now, without that "first love," they labor in vain.

Paul describes the Thessalonian Church in I. Thes. 1:3: "We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; remembering without ceasing your work of faith, your labor of love, and patience of hope." The Master commends the Ephesian Church when he says, "I know thy works, and thy labor and thy patience." But where was the faith, hope and love?

Their works and labor were merely preparatory; it was simply cold duty, with a love not lost but waning and slowly ebbing away. Their work and labor and patience were commendable, but without love it was vain.

Note what Paul says in I. Cor., chapter 13:

"If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not love, I am become a sounding brass and a clanging cymbal. Though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not love, I am nothing. And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing." Love never faileth, for as Paul says again, in Hebrews 6:10, "God is not unrighteous to forget your work and your labor of love."

The world today is paying the price of the loss of that just love. God is saying, "I know thy works, and thy labor and thy patience"—that is all well and good, but what God is requiring is a return to that "first love," "a work of faith, a labor of love and patience of hope."

Dr. W. A. Smart of Emory University, said recently, at the M. E. Conference at Lynchburg, "There is but one ray of light across the darkened and sickened world at present, and that is the light of the name of Jesus Christ." The way of the cross leads back to normalcy. There are too many churches functioning today merely from a sense of duty. They are ashamed not to do it, but it is not a labor of love. That "first love" is on the wane.

The Warning.

The warning God gives to the church and the nations today is the warning he gave to the church of Ephesus: "Remember, therefore, from whence thou art fallen; repent and do the first works."

If we take a retrospective view of our lives and of the church, today, where is that first love? Do you remember how earnestly you could pray when you first became a Christian? Do you love the Bible and read it as you did in the beginning of your Christian life? Do you love to win souls as you did when you first found Christ as your Savior? How you abhorred sin then, and shunned it; how sensitive your conscience was then to good and evil. You went to church then as a labor of love. Why do you go now? Is it under the inspiration of the Spirit, or is it merely a formal duty, knowing you would be criticized if you did not? And many do not even fear that!

One of the greatest sins of the church today is the sin of indifference. The call today is the same as to the church of Ephesus—Repent, and do again the first works. Get back to the old faith. Let the fountains of the deep be broken up, and let the tears flow. Remember the bitter tears of Jesus when he said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that stonest the prophets and killed them that are sent unto thee, how oft would I have gathered thy children together even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not. Behold your house is left unto you desolate."

What shall we do, O Church of the living God? Listen to the further warning: "Or else I will come unto thee quickly and will remove thy candlestick out of thy place." A visitor who recently visited Ephesus says he found there only a few heaps of stones, some wretched mud cottages, a few inhabited by Turks, and not a single Christian residing there. Ephesus did not return to that first love, and her candlestick was removed. Thousands, the world over, read with joy Paul's letter to the Ephesians, with its six beautiful chapters, but not a single Christian in Ephesus to read it! What will become of the church and the Christian today who have left that first love?

What a lesson to the church and the Christian and the preacher this is. Not your works and labor and patience, and your horror for evil and false teachers, but your return to your "first love" is what the Master requires. Without that love for Christ and passion for souls, any lodge, fraternity, or club, can turn out the same kind of produce that the church turns out.

"Let him that hath ears to hear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches." Listen to the promise that closes this letter to the church at Ephesus: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God."

If thou hast left thy first love, and repent not, thy candlestick will be removed; and with it the stars that are in his right hand. No church, no pastor.

To him that does repent and return to do the first works again, to him that overcometh, the barrier that shut Adam and all his descendents out of the garden of Eden, will be broken down. They shall have access to the Tree of Life, not in the paradise of an earthly Eden, but in the Paradise of God. "I am the bread of life which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this he shall live forever." (John 6:51.) He shall eat of the Tree of Life which is in the Paradise of God.

Christian Orphanage

Dead Friends:

Ten Thousand Dollars for the Thanksgiving Offering! More than thirty thousand members of the Christian denomination in the Southern Convention! If every member will make an offering, how easy it will be to raise it. We like the idea of each one having a part.

We take the little boys out to the woods on Saturdays to cut stove wood. We all work together, and at the end of the day we have made quite a showing and have accomplished something. But it was from the fact that every one of us worked. In raising the Thanksgiving Offering in your church, try to get each member of the Sunday School and church to make an offering, whether large or small, but something. Remember you are just investing in 105 dependent little boys and girls. You are helping to give them an opportunity to develop into strong and useful men and women.

Our need has never been so great as it is now. Thanksgiving is looked forward to by our churches and Sunday Schools with delight and a spirit of good will, of cheerfulness, and we want to express our thanks in a generous way by making a liberal offering to help the Christian Orphanage reach its goal of Ten Thousand Dollars for Thanksgiving. Talk Thanksgiving Offering in your church and Sunday School. Get your people interested, and make an offering you will feel happy of. Don't forget the little children, for "a little child shall lead them." (Isa. 11:6.)

The following has been received since our last report:

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches x 3/4 inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket Edition, and the book is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its open quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2 1/2 x 4 1/2 inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3 3/4 x 4 1/2 inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer binding.

MARRIAGES

GILBERT—CHRISLER.

A marriage of much interest to our Roanoke Church occurred recently, when Mr. Otis Gilbert of Roanoke, Ala., led to the altar Miss Verna Chrisler. The church was beautifully decorated, and Miss Nellie R. Sledge played the wedding march. The pastor spoke the words that made them man and wife.

Miss Chrisler is the efficient secretary and treasurer of our local church. They will reside in the city.

May God give them a happy life.

G. D. HUNT.

GIBSON—JONES.

On October 4th, at the home of the bride in Halifax county, Virginia, Mr. Orville Franklin Gibson of Lower Marlboro, Md., and Miss Fannie Ida Jones were united in marriage. Mr. Gibson is a successful farmer of Maryland and Miss Jones has been a successful school teacher for a number of years. In the marriage of Miss Jones, Pleasant Grove Christian Church loses one of its finest young Christian workers, but our loss will be the gain of the Methodist Episcopal church where she unites with her husband. The writer officiated at the wedding and spoke the words that made them one. A number of the intimate friends of the bride attended the wedding and accompanied them to the train which took them on their bridal journey and honeymoon and bade them bon voyage.

OBITUARIES.

SHIRKEY.

Lewis William Shirkey, infant son of Darman and Ursula Shirkey, of Concord Christian Church, was born July 17, 1931, and departed this life September 27, 1931. Age two months and ten days. Funeral services at Fairview Church, September 28, 1931. May God comfort the bereaved ones.

A. W. ANDES.

WATSON.

Mrs. Ellen Watson, aged eighty-nine years, four months and five days, died at Raleigh, N. C., October 26, 1931. She had been a sufferer for about ten years and confined to her bed since last May. She was a member of Providence Christian Church and had been for a number of years. The funeral services were conducted from Union Christian Church by the writer assisted by Dr. G. O. Lankford and her body laid to rest in the church cemetery. May the God of consolation comfort those who mourn.

P. H. FLEMING.

WILKINS.

At his home, Burlington, N. C., route No. 2, J. D. Wilkins fell asleep in death, October 24, 1931; aged seventy years, five months and six days. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, seven sons and other relatives and a host of friends. He was a member of Union Christian Church and a deacon thereof about twenty-five years; and had served the church as superintendent of the Sunday School.

He was devoted to his family and his church and was a well known and good citizen. His family, church and community will miss him. The funeral services were conducted from Union Christian Church by the writer assisted by Dr. G. O. Lankford and the interment was made in the church cemetery. May Jesus, the Healer of broken hearts, comfort the bereaved.

P. H. FLEMING.

TEAGUE.

Mrs. Ada A. Teague passed away at her home in Burlington, N. C., October 23, 1931, being at the time of her departure a little more than seventy-five years of age.

Mrs. Teague was a native of Rockingham County, Virginia, but had lived in Burlington for the past twenty-five years. She was twice married, first to Rev. E. T. Iseley, who died in 1902, and second, to Mr. Edward Teague who passed away in 1919.

Mrs. Teague was an unusual woman. She possessed a remarkable faith in Christ, was peculiarly devoted to the church, and spent much of her time in active Christian service. She was especially interested in the salvation of others. She carried the poor and unfortunate on her heart and ministered to the needy wherever opportunity was possible.

The Burlington Christian church, of which she was a member, will miss her greatly, while it extends sympathy to her loved ones in their sorrow.

Funeral services were held by her pastor in Burlington. The body was taken to Leaksville Christian church in the Valley of Virginia for burial, where another service was conducted by Rev. A. W. Andes, the pastor of that church.

ELON COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

ELON was founded to train Christian leaders for the New South.

ELON has done its task well—one graduate in seven being in the Christian ministry. The other six express Christian leadership in the various professions and vocations. Experience teaches that spiritual leadership must be indigenous.

The South is now a New South ready for an inclusive Church, the type of Church for which Elon has stood for forty years and for which she is prepared to produce capable leadership.

With no Church in the community, save the College Auditorium, ELON has practiced Christian Union for faculty, students, and community for four decades.

Its contribution to Christian Education is nationally known and approved.

Its Christian Education Building, providing laboratory facilities for religious leadership training, is unique and is the first college building of its type in the world.

ELON confines itself to undergraduate liberal arts work with that religious emphasis which befits the Christian College.

In ELON the Congregational-Christian Church has an asset of marvelous hopefulness.

The South needs her Yale, her Oberlin, her Carleton, her Pomona for the intellectual leadership of the United Church. Many regard ELON as strategically located and spiritually endowed to become such a center of illumination and leadership training.

THOMPSON.

Whereas, the angel of death visited our community Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, September 5, 1931, and plucked from our midst one of our most loyal and consecrated members and transplanted it on the other side of the river. That we, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Bethlehem Christian Church offer the following resolutions of respect as a tribute to the memory of our co-worker and sister Mrs. R. A. Thompson.

That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

That in the going of our sister, we feel very keenly our loss but we feel her loss is heaven's gain.

That we seek to emulate her worthy example of gentleness, meekness and devotion to family, friends and church.

That we extend our heartfelt sympathy and love to her husband and sisters, and commend them to the one that can sustain and comfort.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to The Christian Sun for publication, a copy be sent to her family, and a copy be spread on the records of the society.

AUSTIN.

Sadie Knight Austin was born June 6, 1862, and died October 14, 1931. She was converted in early womanhood and united with the Baptist Church, until about thirty years ago when she united with Rock Springs Christian Church where she remained true and faithful till death. She bore her affliction with patience the last four years of her life. As her physical life weakened, her spiritual life grew stronger. Her husband preceded her to yonder world about eighteen years ago. She leaves to mourn their loss one daughter, Mrs. T. J. Clark, with whom she made her home, and three grand-children and a host of friends. Funeral services were held at Rock Springs with her pastor, this writer, in charge assisted by Rev. G. D. Hunt. Interment was made in the cemetery near by.

THE SUN'S OBSERVATIONS

By DR. W. C. WICKER.

AUTO DEATHS MOUNT.—

In the first nine months of this year more than 24,000 persons were killed in automobile accidents in the United States, making the toll the largest ever recorded in a similar period, according to a compilation made by the Travelers Insurance Company. This loss of life brings the fatalities up to an average of nearly ninety daily for the country.

MINISTERS UNION.—

About forty ministers in or near New York have organized themselves into a ministers' union modeled on the lines of labor organizations. This union cuts across all denominational and racial lines, being open alike to Protestants, Catholics and Jews. The organization has been formed by these men primarily to give voice to their belief in the essential justice of labor's cause and with the special purpose of seeking the social and economic application of religious principles. They expect, by making public the facts in any case that may arise, to support all ministers in maintaining freedom of the pulpit.

BROADCAST FOR COLLEGE SUPPORT.—

The Liberal Arts College movement including representatives of all denominations, has arranged in the interest of Liberal Arts colleges, which are for the most part church-related, a national broadcast for November. The broadcast goes out over 120 stations, and will include talks by President Hoover, Dr. John H. Finley, Dr. Robert L. Kelly (executive secretary of the Association of American Colleges), and Mrs. Thomas J. Preston (widow of Grover Cleveland). The second half hour will be given over to the presentation of college interests in nine divisions, each covering several states. The director of the regional broadcast in every case is a president of a Christian college. The broadcast begins at 9 a. m. eastern time. This is a movement that will do a great deal of good and it shows the value placed on Liberal Arts and Christian Colleges.

MEMORIAL TO BURNS.—

In Scotland, which is more devoted to the poet Burns than to any other of her famous sons, a very fitting memorial is quietly growing at Mauchline in the heart of the Burns county. This summer there were opened five additional cottages in furtherance of the scheme inaugurated in 1896 to provide rent-free, tax-free homes for the aged, decent poor. There are now sixteen of these pleasant red sandstone cottages within sight of Mossiel farmhouse where Burns spent some of the brightest years of his life. What more apt memorial could be chosen to the poet of suffering humanity, the author of "The Cottar's Saturday Night"? The tenants are selected from applications all over Scotland, and are given, not only the use of the house, but a small pension as well. The opening ceremony was performed by Mr. George Ian Gowring, a great-great-grandson of the poet.

UNEMPLOYED REGISTERED.—

The Gibson committee, which is the successor to the Prosser committee of last year, has begun the registration of the unemployed. An improvement has been made over the system of last year in that some forty registration centers have been opened instead of the one central place hitherto provided. It is thought that this plan will do much to obviate the long waiting in line which was so distressing last year. However, the lines are still so great that in some of the registration places doors have been broken down. Many of the men look listless and hopeless and there are many evidences of the breakdown of morale. Even at the best, only a part of the married men out of work can be provided for with the three-day-a-week employment, and for the single men there is nothing. To many of us it seems that the emergency is now far beyond the ability of private charity. This is the condition in New York city.

OVERCOMING POVERTY.—

St. Louis has no soup kitchens nor bread lines. The old established cooperative, private and denominational relief agencies, well located, are used. Each agency sends first a personal investigator to ascertain the real need and the occasion of the need. Unemployment, sickness, family misfortune and other causes, where possible are met. Deserving families in need are given assurance, whatever the complications, that once granted assistance, their wants will be cared for until self-help is possible. As far as possible, every preventative and corrective measure is used. Among the fifty-one agencies served by the community fund perhaps one-half are directly preventative and character-forming. The primary service for childhood and youth and in a particular way for the home is designed to knock out poverty and make charity unnecessary. Much of this service is through agencies operative on a twelve months program.

FAVORS CHURCH UNION.—

At the meeting of the Potomac synod of the Reformed Church in the United States, which was held late in October at Huntington, Pa., 177 signatures were secured to the following overture: "That the Synod of the Potomac of the Reformed Church of the United States overture the general synod through its commission on closer relations with other denominations to reopen the matter of merging with the Evangelical Synod of North America. There were 131 ministers present; of this number 123 signed the overture. Many elders also signed. One of the leaders present writes: "This meeting of the synod marked the turning point in its history. A new group of young men have stepped to the front." Church union is in the air, and more and more, churches will give serious consideration to merging the denominations into a greater union until the forces of Christ's Kingdom will be better organized for a solid front against sin. In union there is strength in church as well as in war.

TEMPERANCE INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOL.—

After several years of quiet but intensive effort, the Anti-Alcohol League of Yugoslavia just succeeded in introducing obligatory instruction on the evil effects of alcohol into certain schools. The president of this society is a practicing physician and his first assistant is instructor in hygiene in the schools of mining at the same place. Together the two men have gained the approval of authorities to introduce what they call "anti-alcohol instruction" in all the mining schools of Yugoslavia. This is the right place to begin in combatting the evils of alcohol and if the American schools would follow this method in combatting the opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment, the time would soon come when that opposition would cease. This question should be taken out of politics in America and put into the schools where an intelligent understanding of the evils of alcohol could be obtained in the early childhood and young manhood of our nation. This would settle this important moral question as it should settle upon the merits of the case.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.—

The Chicago council of religious education, of which Prof. W. C. Bower is chairman, conducts a broad and progressive program in the Chicago area. On a recent Monday, the council sponsored the monthly union ministers' meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A., and had as its guest speaker Dr. Harold W. Beales, of Cambridge, England, who spoke on "The Youth Movement in England." He told about the remarkable youth movement in English universities with which he has been associated. At the luncheon meeting which followed Dr. Albert Buckner Coe, pastor First Congregational Church, Oak Park, spoke on "Making Religion Real to Youth." The entire program was taken up with consideration of youth and religion. The question was raised as to whether the time had come to extend week day religious education in Chicago. Over 400 boys and girls are dismissed one hour a week from the public schools in Lakeview district to attend classes in religious education sponsored by the local churches, and this experimental effort is proving very satisfactory.

NOTES-PERSONALS

I count life just a staff to try the soul's strength on—Robert Browning.

Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, till recently pastor of Lynchburg Church, is open for work the coming year and will be glad to correspond with any pastorate desiring his services. His address is Kernersville, N. C.

On Sunday, November 8th, the annual memorial service of Palmetto Post No. 112 of the American Legion, was held in Citadel Square Baptist Church, Charleston, S. C. On this occasion Chaplain H. E. Rountree, who is now located in that city, addressed an audience of over 1,200 on the subject, "Humanity's Call to Freedom." The music for the occasion was furnished by the U. S. Navy Yard Band.

The President of the United States has issued the annual proclamation, calling upon the people of the United States to assemble in their churches and places of prayer and thanksgiving on Thursday, November 26th, and render thanks to Almighty God for the blessings conferred upon our nation and us as individuals and invoke his divine guidance for our daily tasks. Thanksgiving should be duly observed and made a real day of praise and rejoicing because of the goodness of the Lord.

The Christian Missionary Association of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference was revived and steps taken to reorganize at the recent session of the Conference. The Committee to whom the work of reorganizing the Association named by the Conference was W. B. Truitt, Chairman, Greensboro, N. C., Dr. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, N. C., Mr. W. V. Simpson, Greensboro, N. C., Rev. A. W. Hurst, Sec'y-Treas., Elon College, N. C., Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Durham, N. C., and J. O. Atkinson, Elon College, N. C. This committee constituted by the Conference an Executive Committee of the Association, met in First Christian Church, Greensboro, 2:30 p. m., Sunday, the 15th, and provided for the Constitution, By-Laws and other necessary steps in reorganization. Memberships in the Association to the extent of $235.00 had already been taken. The committee voted to make the first appropriation to work at Winston-Salem and pledged cooperation and support of this work.

The canvass to raise $50,000.00 for Elon College between now and January first is being instituted and pushed forward as rapidly as possible, we are advised, by Dr. L. E. Smith, Chairman of Business Administration Committee. His churches have very generously and graciously released Rev. F. C. Lester for a period of a month that he may give himself solely to this work in Eastern Virginia. Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Dr. W. C. Wicker and Mr. W. B. Truitt are planning the work in North Carolina. Elon must have $50,000.00 for immediate needs, and there are many loyal and true souls who, even in this time of depression, are willing to deny themselves for the sake of saving the College. That good man, Dr. W. W. Staley of Suffolk, who has always sacrificed for the College, leads off by negotiating a loan and donating to the College $1,000.00 in cash. If we had forty-nine more men like Dr. Staley, the work would be quickly done. There are others willing and anxious to give as they can, and these too will do their best in the present emergency.

A PERSONAL LETTER.

Mt. Bethel Church, where the North Carolina and Virginia Conference met last week, is a small rural congregation, but has an ancient and honorable history. This one church, though among the smallest in membership of the conference, has given to the conference and to the world more ministers of the gospel in the last few years than any two or three of the larger churches of the conference. Of this number, two young men are prominent in our church activities of the present: Rev. F. C. Lester, president of the Board of Religious Education of the Southern Christian Convention, and Rev. J. G. Truitt, of the Walnut Hills Congregational Christian Church of Dayton, Ohio. At the session of the conference last week, the following letter had been received by the president of the conference, Dr. C. H. Rowland, who asked the privilege of having the letter read to the conference. It was so much appreciated by the conference, though quite personal, THE SUN's editor felt that its contents would be enjoyed by others who were not at the conference, and it is herewith submitted.—J. O. A. (Editor).

My dear Dr. Rowland:

Will you please say to your great conference in session at Mt. Bethel Christian Church, that I am praying for its success. Tell the folks that I wish very much that I could be present. It is the conference of my childhood, youth and manhood. It is the conference that ordained me to preach the Gospel. It is the conference that helped me in a financial way to go through college. I am very happy to say that I gratefully returned to the conference every cent that I borrowed from it. It is the conference that gave me the pastors of my childhood, Revs. L. I. Cox and Peter T. Klapp. Their memory is an undying blessing to me. May your conference still maintain such manhood and devotion as was characterized in them!

Your conference is meeting in my home church! The little white church of my childhood memory and love. The dear old church where I sought salvation at its altar, and found a companionship with an unseen Christ more beautiful than words can describe. The church of my father and my sainted mother. Sweet and green are the memories of the mother who used to stand in that church and witness for the Lord. Tears of joy used to stain her big, red cheeks, and a smile that would not wear away decorated her honest face as she used to ask God's children to pray for her and her family!

Her family were taught both by precept and example to love the church your conference is assembling in. Members of her family were taught to pray and to read God's Word; to render whatever service they could as helpers in the church; and to give of their little meagre earnings liberally. She thought that the church was one of the sweetest places on earth, and now she sleeps in its churchyard. The ground on which your conference now walks is to some of us holy ground.

Among the ministers that I know who worshipped here in their childhood, are the late Rev. John W. Knight, a true knight of the Cross; Rev. George W. Williams, Rev. Fletcher Cummings, Lester, my brothers, Howard and Reuben, and myself. There may be others.

But ministers are not all, for there are scores of good men and women throughout the country that learned their lessons of life and love in this little place. What Sunday School teachers that little church had! How I wish I could mention all of them to you. I shall not refrain from mentioning the names of Mrs. J. Q. Barham, known in our childhood day as "Aunt Jane," a great teacher of children; and D. I. Cummings, a great teacher of men and women. Mt. Bethel will not soon forget them, nor will it forget John W. Knight. In his earlier years, how he used to sing and teach and pray in that sacred old place!

Yours is a great conference—great for the things it has done, is doing, and will do; great for the men and women who make up its membership in this present session; but greater still in the thousands of little boys and girls in humble homes throughout its borders. Plan well your policies and programs for their sakes; and for the sakes of the fine folks who are trying to lead them in trying times—as others have led us in trying times—to God. May the little old church which is the home of your conference today be the Gate Beautiful to greater achievements in the future of every pastor, teacher, and member, throughout your entire constituency.

With kindest personal greetings to you, and to each member of the conference, I am,

Yours most sincerely,
JOHN G. TRUITT.

Dayton, Ohio.

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.
Miami Beach, Fla.

We sometimes wonder just what the average church member thinks of the church. We do not mean the church as a religious institution, but the church as a piece of property, or as a home place. In one sense the church belongs to its members and is a real home. If that be true, then a sense of proprietorship should be felt. And if we do feel that close relation we ought to act the way we feel. People coming in are our guests and should be treated as such. Visitors ought to be welcomed and made to feel at home. I read the following extract from a parish paper the other day:

"Did it ever occur to you that you have a responsibility to the church akin to the responsibility in your home? What do you do at home when you see a book lying on the floor? or pieces of paper scattered about? or a picture hanging topsy-turvy on the wall? How do you receive guests when they call? Do you take the best rocker, place it in the doorway, and permit the guests to climb over you? At dinner do you make a grab for the soup before your guests are served? Do you leave the table before your guests have completed their meal, rush out of the house and down the street? Preposterous! Nonsense! you say."

The article goes on to say, "This is precisely what some people do at their church home. Come, wake up! The church is yours, get under your responsibility, be at home to strangers and visitors who attend. Be as courteous to every other member of the church family as you are to members of your own family in your own home."

That sort of "Training in Church Manners" is rather sharp and plain, but it was actually printed in a church paper in Missouri. There is much truth in it, though, because we are inclined to forget our responsibility in the smaller courtesies of church life. We should be as proud of our church as of our own home. We should desire to see it clean and attractive, and not leave the upkeep to a paid janitor or some person who just gets by with the cleaning. A touch of home in the church helps to make the church winsome and a friendly center to which people like to come. In some churches there are committees that look after these courtesy matters. It is an important matter in the practice of our religion.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

G. N. EDWARDS, Charleston, S. C., is a busy pastor. During the last quarter, he has broadcasted seven services in his city, assisted by his choir; preached once at Columbia; given several talks at Blueridge and sanatorium services at Pinehaven; was moderator at the ordination of George Penn, at Albemarle, N. C.;—all of this besides his usual ministry to his own people. This is the way busy ministers give themselves to the calls to service.

COLLEGESIDE CHURCH, Nashville, Tennessee, Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, minister, holds a discussion class for college students in the Collegeside house on Sunday mornings at 10 o'clock, during November, which is under the leadership of Dr. Charles S. Pendleton of Peabody College. His subject is "Glimpses of Life on the Other Side of the World." The church held a "Student's Informal" on a recent Sunday evening for college and university students. There was fellowship, a buffet supper and a surprise program. There are also regular Friday night socials for college students under a committee of students. The pastor is giving a series of Sunday morning sermons on "Religious Confessions of Eminent Living Men," among them being such oriental leaders as HuShih and Toyohiko Kagawa.

DR. JUNIPER CALLED TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Dr. Kerrison Juniper has been called to the pastorate of the First Congregational Church of San Francisco, and has accepted the call and presented his resignation as pastor of the church at St. Petersburg, Florida. This news comes to the Congregational people of Florida with sincere regret, and at the same time his host of friends will wish him the abundant success in his new field that he has achieved in St. Petersburg.

Dr. Juniper came to his present church just thirteen years ago, and he has made it the leading church of our order in Florida, and one of the great churches of the southeast. During his ministry, the church auditorium has been doubled in size and the large Sunday School and recreational building has been built. One of the largest organs in the State was installed, and the church has featured beautiful music and great entertainment programs.

But the feature of his success has been his vital preaching of an optimistic but challenging gospel, real messages to the hearts of his hearers. During the winter season, it is common for his church, seating two thousand, to be filled, and not infrequently people are turned away. Dr. Juniper is a man of engaging personality, makes friends with all, is deeply interested in the welfare of the city and state, has been popular in the civic organizations of the city, and has always been outspoken for moral reforms and for world peace. He has been a leader in our Florida Conference, having been Moderator, and for two years was president of the Board of Directors of the State Conference.

THE FLORIDA SOUTH ASSOCIATION.

The First Church of Tampa royally entertained the fortieth annual meeting of this association on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 3rd and 4th. The meeting was opened by the retiring moderator, Mr. E. S. Galt of Winter Park. Rev. Walter Metcalf, the pastor of the entertaining church, was elected moderator, and Rev. A. P. Vaughn of Avon Park was elected scribe. Mr. E. S. Burleigh, who has served the association for twenty-six years as registrar and treasurer, resigned because of ill health, and Rev. Ralph Krout of New Port Richey, was elected to fill the vacancy. Rev. O. T. Anderson of Fort Myers, was elected to succeed Rev. Kerrison Juniper, to represent the association as director of the State Conference.

The topic of the association meeting was "Putting Religion into Life." Dr. E. C. Gillette and Miss Pattie Lee Coghill spoke on "Religion and Our Common Task." The sermon was preached by Rev. J. Bernard Root of Sanford, and the worship periods were conducted by Rev. A. Craig Bowdish of Babson Park and Rev. Kerrison Juniper of St Petersburg, the latter speaking on "The Power of the Inner Life." Dr. A. P. Vaughn of Avon Park, spoke on "Effective Church Worship," and Rev. Ralph Krout of New Port Richey, on "Personal Evangelism." The closing address on "Carrying the Message Home," was given by Dr. C. A. Vincent of Winter Park.

Dr. Frank E. Henry, editorial and field secretary of the Church Extension Boards, was the guest speaker, using as his topic "Our Expanding Horizons." A pleasant feature was the supper, which was made interesting by the presence of young people from several churches, twenty-six of whom had been to Camp Immokalee and several had been to Blue Ridge. The church also entertained the guests at a free breakfast. A visit was made to the mission for Cubans at West Tampa, where Rev. Carl Corwin, pastor, and Miss Hall, one of the teachers, gave interesting descriptions of the work. A quartette from the mission sang at one of the sessions of the association.

Delegates were present from nearly every church, and all were beautifully entertained by the friends of the Tampa Church.

SOUTHEAST COAST ASSOCIATION.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Southeast Coast Association of Florida Congregational Churches was held with the Union Congregational Church of West Palm Beach, on Thursday, November 5th. The topic of the meeting was "The Church at Work."

The meeting opened with an address of welcome by Rev. Frank Atkinson, who has recently become pastor of the entertaining church. The response was given by Rev. Frederick Held of Jupiter, who was moderator of the association for this year. Rev. James E. Parker of Palm City was elected scribe. Rev. Harley R. Core, who has served the association for a number of years was reelected registrar and treasurer, and the moderator elected for next year was Mr. W. J. Von-Behren.

The reports of the churches given indicated very satisfactory conditions, except that all faced financial difficulties. At the morning session there were addresses by Superintendent Gillette, Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, and Rev. Frank E. Henry of New York, representing the Congregational Church Extension Boards, and a devotional service led by Rev. Helen F. Lanham in the afternoon.

Dr. Elisha A. King gave an account of the General Council at Seattle, and there was a symposium on Young People's work. The first talk was given by Mr. Ralph W. Hills, director of young people's work of the Miami Beach Church, his subject being "Special Summer Plans in the Sunday School." Rev. Frederick Held, of Jupiter, spoke on "Church Plans for Young People." Jerrold F. Jacob of Lake Worth, gave an interesting account of life and work at Camp Immokalee. The closing address of the afternoon was given by Dr. Lillian B. Fulton on the subject, "How Shall the Church Meet the Present Day Challenge." The ladies of the church served a delightful luncheon and supper. Following the luncheon, there were several brief and interesting talks.

A Service of Recognition for the new pastor was held in the evening. Rev. Frank Atkinson, formerly pastor of the Congregational Church at Houston, Texas, began his service as pastor of the West Palm Beach Church in August. This service was one of welcome and was something in the nature of an installation service. The moderator of the association, Rev. Frederick Held, presided. Rev. Edwin C. Gillette, Superintendent for Florida, gave the address to the church, which was followed by an address by Rev. Frank Henry on "The Church and the World," and an address to the minister was given by Dr. J. Delman Kuykendall of Cocanut Grove. The service closed with remarks by the incoming pastor, expressive of his hopes and aspirations in the ministry of that church. The service was an impressive one, and such services would serve to dignify the ministerial relation, and we recommend them to more of our churches.

This association was well attended, and the association voted to hold the meeting next year with the church at Palm City. This will be the first meeting of the association in the beautiful little church that was built out of the relief fund of the denomination following the destruction of their church in the hurricane of 1928.

A LAYMAN'S NOTABLE SERVICE.

Mr. E. S. Burleigh of Tavares, Florida, has found it necessary, because of ill health, to resign as registrar of the Florida South Association. This office he has filled most efficiently for twenty-six years. This is undoubtedly a record that would be hard to beat. Continuity in this office is of especial value, and the service that he has rendered to the association and to Congregational life in Florida is of uncalculable value.

Mr. Burleigh has been a leader in many ways, as has Mrs. Burleigh, whose leadership in the women's work in Florida has also been recognized and appreciated. Mr. Burleigh was for several years a trustee of Rollins College and of the West Tampa Institute. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College. The South Association, at its recent meeting, passed resolutions of appreciation of this long service and of best wishes for recovery of his health.

TITHING IN HARD TIMES.

Now you can plan A Tithing Campaign and save money by using the church bulletins we furnish, including one especially written for this hour: "Tithing in Hard Times." The Laymen Bulletins, now 32 in number, are printed in the regular two-page church bulletin size, with two pages blank for your own Bulletin material. This saves one-half of your printing cost, not counting cost of paper.

Send for price list and samples, which include pamphlet, "Teaching the Church to Tithe," containing full directions for a ten weeks' program of silent, church-wide education at trifling expense. Non-profit, non-sectarian, non-legalistic, but simple, clear and workable.

Please mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN, also give your denomination.

- (1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.
- (2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.
- (3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.
- (4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.
- (5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA CONFERENCE.

This is one of our oldest conferences, and the session at Mt. Bethel Church, November 10th, 11th and 12th, was the 106th annual meeting, and was largely attended, harmonious throughout, optimistic in tone and progressive in attitude. All churches reported by delegate or letter, with remittances to Conference save two. Despite the depression, the amount sent up to conference was about the same this year as last. Dr. C. H. Rowland was again elected president of the conference, Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, secretary, and Dr. Waldo Boone of Durham, treasurer.

Dr. Rowland's annual address, as president, "The Challenge of a Great Task," was delivered with the vigor and earnestness of a man thoroughly acquainted with his conference, and the conditions that obtain in the churches, and the homes of those constituting the conference. The speaker maintained that it was no time for "bargain hunting" nor for seeking easy places. The task before the church now was greater than in normal times, and required energy and consecration not needed for success under normal conditions. The church now has an opportunity of growing spiritually and of becoming a power in the minds and hearts of the people generally. The church is more than a financial institution, it is a spiritual store-house, and if the spirituality of the church is developed and cared for, there need be no fear as to the financial results. One reason why many people do not respond more readily to church calls and needs is because they are lacking in spirituality, in consecration to God, and in devotion to Him who gave all on the cross. This conference keeps up the good custom of celebrating the Lord's Supper, and it was very fitting, after Dr. Rowland's timely address, with its highly spiritual note, that this sacred ordinance of the church be observed. Dr. P. H. Fleming and Rev. C. E. Newman administered the sacrament to the spiritual edification of the great audience.

The afternoon service was interesting because of the departure from the ordinary routine of the program. Under the Report of the Committee on Sunday Schools and Christian Endeavor, Rev. S. A. Bennett, of the Department of Christian Education, Elon College, after making a brief address on "Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Work," introduced four young people from the class in Religious Education in Elon College, products of the department under discussion. These four young people delighted the conference with telling words from their own experience and aspiration in and for the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor. They, each, told of "What Sunday School or What Christian Endeavor Means to Me." It was certainly a program worth while and greatly edified the conference. Mr. W. B. Truitt, president of the Sunday School Convention, made a very emphatic and timely presentation of "The Place of the Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Convention in the Work of Our Churches." Brother Truitt has seen the convention over which he presides, grow from a very small and indifferent body to a large and very active organization. His personality and persuasive presentation of Sunday School and Christian Endeavor have been large factors in building a real convention, and to him the conference owes a debt of gratitude for real constructive work and a service worthwhile in kingdom growth.

Rev. A. W. Hurst presented a very concise and informative report for the Committee on Stewardship, and Rev. W. T. Scott made an address on that topic that enlightened the conference in the essential matter of Stewardship.

The evening program was presented in Bethany High School building nearby. It was a Young People's program presided over by Mr. Herman Truitt, president of Youth Fellowship. It was not the writer's privilege to be in this session, but the great audience that attended, possibly the largest of the entire session, was enthusiastic over the meeting and the method of the young people in conducting the same.

The second day of the conference was exceedingly full and interesting throughout. The committee reports began with "Religious Literature," presented by Rev. J. H. Dollar, chairman, followed with addresses by Mrs. C. H. Rowland, Mr. C. D. Johnston, circulation manager, J. O. Atkinson, editor of THE SUN, Dr. W. H. Boone and others. The conference was brought face to face with the needs of THE SUN and with the invaluable contribution that THE SUN is making to the church. THE SUN's columns each week carry contributions about our churches, institutions and enterprises that every home in the Christian Church should have. Rev. C. E. Newman made the report of committee on Foreign Missions, in which it was stated that the Foreign Mission interests of the Christian and Congregational Churches had been completely merged, and that we together had work in thirteen different overseas countries. And while this conference was a part of this great work, the men and the Sunday Schools of the conference contributed no more the past year to the Foreign mission work than did the Women's societies. Brother Newman's thesis was that churches and Sunday Schools and people give to Missions not in proportion to their wealth and worth, but in proportion to their willingness and interest. The Missionary Secretary discussed the items of the report under the topic, "Missions, A Spiritual Task." Before the report was voted upon, Rev. J. S. Carden of Durham addressed the conference, declaring that there was no better time to show interest in the matter before us than at present, and we could show that interest by making an offering, and a freewill offering was taken, amounting to $47.05.

Mrs. C. H. Rowland, president of the N. C. Woman's Conference, reported the work for the women the past year, which report revealed that the women in the few societies of the conference were actually doing more for Missions than the entire conference outside of these societies.

In the afternoon, Rev. G. C. Crutchfield, chairman, reported for the Committee on Moral Reform, in which report the conference declared itself in a most emphatic term as favorable to prohibition and prohibition enforcement, and the body was pledged to help in every way possible to enforce prohibition laws and keep prohibition laws on our statute books. Prof. A. R. VanCleave of Elon College delivered a great address, the thesis of which was that there was in our time evidences of a moral break-down among women as well as men, and that the only hope was for the development of a high, moral sense on the part of the individual, each individual being responsible to society and to God for the moral condition of himself and those about him. The report of Committee on Education, presented by the chairman, J. O. Atkinson, highly commended Elon College for the invaluable contribution it had made to the church and the world, ratified the action of the Board of Trustees in electing Dr. L. E. Smith and called upon the conference to rally to its support at this time of its great need. The report also recommended the ordination of Rev. Dale O. Sander, and soon after the report was adopted, Brother Sander was ordained to the Christian ministry. Other licentiates were continued as licentiates for another year. Prof. J. W. Barney, chairman of the Faculty, made a very impressive talk to the conference on the topic, "Our Church and Our College." Others made talks on the topic of "Christian Education and the Contribution of Elon to the Church," and a vote of thanks was given to the several professors from the college who were in attendance upon and addressed the conference.

The evening session at the Bethany High School building was given to the "Christian Orphanage." A brief address by the superintendent, C. D. Johnston, followed by a most entertaining program presented by eight members of the Orphanage family, and this was followed by a most impressive missionary pageant, "Children of all Nations," presented by the Missionary Societies of New Lebanon and Mt. Bethel Churches.

The outstanding feature of the third and last day of the conference was the act of the Committee on Home Missions recommending the re-organization of the Christian Missionary Association of the conference. There were applications to the conference for Home Mission funds for work within the bounds of the conference, and there being no funds, it was recommended that the Association be re-organized, the Home Mission Board being given authority by the conference to proceed to organize the Association and conduct the affairs thereof during the year, and that with the first money coming in the work be started at Winston-Salem. Quite a few memberships in the Association were immediately obtained, and the Home Mission Board of the conference hopes to prosecute the same so that an all-time preacher for Winston-Salem may be provided within a few weeks.

Mr. J. C. McAdams, chairman, in a very emphatic and convincing plea, presented the report of Committee on Apportionments, urging the churches to keep up the payments of their conference claims as called for in the report, which report represented the mature deliberation and wisdom of the committee.

The third day session was given to routine work of the conference and to many delightful, personal remarks and helpful suggestions for the good of the conference.

It was voted that the next session of the conference be held at Mt. Zion Church near Mebane, N. C. which church is near the spot where the Rev. Daniel W. Kerr edited the first number of THE CHRISTIAN SUN in 1844.

Mt. Bethel Church and community entertained the conference with warm, cordial and abundant hospitality, and a member of the church spoke for the church their expression of gratitude to the conference for holding their session with Mt. Bethel, the member declaring that the church had received far more than it had given and felt greatly blessed and benefited by the session. At the conclusion of the conference, expressions were freely made on all sides that this was one of the very best sessions for many, many years.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES AND OUR ELON.

Although the Board of Trustees at their own charges had met several times since last May, eighteen of the number came together in called session at the College November 13th. The object of this called session was to take steps to meet the immediate crisis and to lay further plans for projecting the campaign to raise $50,000.00 by January first. It was reported by the chairman of the Business Administrative Committee, Dr. L. E. Smith, that the plans for the campaign set up by the Executive Committee of the Convention were well under way, and that the actual work of solicitation of individuals for gifts would begin at an early date. Reports from every angle of our brotherhood were that our people were desperately in earnest about supporting the College and were ready and willing to make real sacrifices in order to save the College in its present desperate straits, and to reclaim it from the financial difficulties in which it finds itself in this period of general depression. One member of the Board—that good soul who never fails in any need and call of his church, Dr. W. W. Staley—said he had already made arrangements with a bank to borrow $1,000 and he should personally borrow and donate to the College within a day or two after the meeting this $1,000 as an evidence of his continued devotion to the College and this determination, so far as he was concerned, to see to it that our College should be put on a permanent financial basis and should carry on. Others expressed a willingness to do their best with individual donations, and then having done this, to go out and do what they could in assisting the campaign to an early and successful conclusion. There was not a pessimistic note struck during the entire session of the trustees, and every member, who expressed himself, declared that the College should and must be made safe for the present and the future at all hazards and whatever the sacrifices. Our people were never more determined, so far as reports and evidences were concerned, that the College should be safe, than they are at this present moment, and the spirit of loyal devotion was never more in evidence and emphatically demonstrated than at present. The trustees were of unanimous opinion that the campaign to raise $50,000.00 for immediate relief could and would be carried to a successful conclusion by January first, even if money is very hard to get and though depression obtains. The trustees realize that the crisis is upon us and only the heroic spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion can save the institution, and this, they believe, was never more apparent and well fixed than at the present moment. Loyal souls of the Christian Church recognize that Elon College is essential and vital to our existence as a church, a denomination and a convention, and for the College to close up or cease is unthinkable, is entirely beside the question, and that the College must be maintained, and put on a solid basis that confidence in the institution cannot be shaken.

Dr. Smith is having the struggle of his life in trying to decide the all-important question of what his duty to his church and to his God is. The trustees sympathize with him in his struggle and are trying to help him, believing, as they do, that he is the man of the hour, chosen not of themselves only, but of God for just such a time as this, to relieve the situation and to lead to greater things for Elon than we have yet achieved. He promised to give answer at the very earliest possible date. The trustees reported to Dr. Smith that from all quarters and in every direction, the entire church was looking to him and were unanimous in their verdict that he was the man, the chosen one, to bear the burden of the present hour, and undertake the task of saving this good and great institution to a people who believe in him and whose liberal and loyal support he may expect. Dr. Smith's great church, Christian Temple, feels that it needs him now and has been unable thus far to see its way to releasing him. A committee of the Board of Trustees was appointed, and a like committee was requested from the Mission Board of the Southern Convention, to meet with the official Board of Christian Temple, that they might get together discuss the situation and thus make clear to Dr. Smith, if possible, by unanimous decision, as to what his duty is in the face of the facts from the three organizations named. This meeting was appointed for Monday night, November 16th. Mr. S. C. Heindel, business manager, who has been with the college for more than a year, presented his resignation, which was accepted to take place December first. Mr. Heindel has shown himself a man of worth, merit, integrity and ability, and the College with reluctance loses his valuable services. Mr. C. M. Cannon, present registrar of the College, was asked, with such clerical help as he may need, to act as business manager until further and permanent arrangements shall be made.

It was a great session of the Board and, as stated above, no meeting was more determined and optimistic, for the trustees fully realized the gravity of the situation, and are willing to share with the church the burden of saving the college by real sacrifice, and in the determination most emphatically expressed that this college shall not close, that its work is not done, and its need was never more felt than at present, and that it must and shall carry on its great work of Christian Education to which it had been dedicated and consecrated by the prayers and sacrifice of a great and loyal people.

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

III.

Turkey grows on you. The new spirit that possesses the land grips the mind and wrenches your thinking. The unspeakable Turk ceases to be unspeakable. He is a normal human being—a man for all his centuries of perverted training and interests.

In coming into a new country, the first consideration should be to understand how it got to be what it is and why it persists in its ways—ways awkwardly strange to us, but perfectly rational and amazingly satisfactory to them. Every custom in every land has come through the crucible of experience to have legitimate value, or at least an understandable cause. To say that the Turk is lazy is to state a fact, but not to evidence an enlightened understanding as to the reason for his laziness. He does not have the economic urge. His main interest is in life, not in material possessions. He is content with bread, bread alone or with grapes, or onions, or a curd of cheese, or cooked porridge made from his crushed whole wheat. He loves his family and friends and herds. He wants to commend himself to the hadja, or religious teacher. Lacking the acquisitive urge, he is lazy. The Gazi, the Victorious One, the great president-dictator of the Republic, is doing his best to inoculate him with the virus of thrift, to give him a new attitude toward the satisfactions of material prosperity. If he succeeds, the Turk will get over his laziness and perhaps one of nature's simple-hearted races will be spoiled at heart in the transition.

But the lack of the economic urge does not wholly explain the Turk's laziness. There are other causative factors too. His herdman's life, his village living quarters, his vine dressing, fig growing, nut gathering, and primitive agricultural methods all contribute to the same end. Industrialism and investment as we know them are meaningless to them. His very modes of travel—donkey, camel, on foot—conduce to a leisurely, unhurried type of life. But above all his religion exerts the most potent influence.

In his T'marian ancestral home in the heart of central Asia the Turk was a pagan and worshipped the white wolf. At first his disposition was to move eastward into Manchuria and China. He was denied this outlet for his questful spirit when the Chinese barricaded themselves behind their famous wall. Turning westward, some Turks went as far as Hungary and became Christians. But the most of them turned south and settling what is known as Asia Minor, Syria, and Palestine, became Moslems. The typical Turk of the so-called unspeakable variety is a Moslem and takes his religion of formalism quite seriously. Islam is a strange admixture of reverent worship of the monotheistic God, Allah, with a superstition, fanaticism, and fatalism. He believes that Allah wills everything—good and evil. If his child is sick, Allah wills it. This trustful fatalistic attitude has become so much a part of him that he feels under no compulsion to bestir himself to improve his condition. The spirit of progress is not in his religion and it is not in him. We Christians are prone to forget that the whole concept of progress as we understand the term is the by-product of Christ's teaching with regard to personality—the individual's worth and means for enhancing it. We have perverted the doctrine into materialism in Christian lands, but the Moslem world is stagnant without materialism. Surely we Christians will yet learn how to serve God in the midst of our material prosperity—to serve God with Mammon.

Time simply does not count in Turkey. People never hurry. As you drive along the roads, frequently you will see groups of men who have gathered from a vineyard or a field or from grazing their flocks, sitting on the ground, playing cards or backgammon, in the shadow of a "rock in a weary land." Your porter or guide to some historic place will wait hours for your return, hoping to earn a few pennies, eating nothing meanwhile. Regularity simply does not enter into his thinking.

He lives from hand to mouth and builds the same way. If stone is convenient, he will build his hovel of it. If not, he will dig the soil from his scanty fields and build of mud. His roads are poor. He does not appreciate the need for repairs and so good roads built by the Germans or French during the war rapidly deteriorate. His donkeys and camels do not require good roads and in dry weather, they go across fields rather than along the roads. All the mountains are de-

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The annual meeting of the Western district of the Young People's Congress of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference was held in the Sunday School auditorium of the Suffolk Christian Church on Friday night, November 6th. Mr. James Lewter, vice-chairman, presided at the meeting. The churches were well represented, more than 200 people were present and the interest was intense from the opening to the closing exercises.

The invocation was offered by Rev. R. E. Brittle, pastor of Cypress Chapel Church. Miss Doris Eure of Suffolk delivered the welcome address. The theme of the session was "Adventures in the Christian Quest," and a song "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult," was rendered in a spiritual way. Devotionals were conducted by Miss Mary Rawles Jones. Miss Susie Powell sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. I. W. Johnson. The Young People's Congress was explained by Mr. C. E. Warrington.

The chart which portrayed the work of the year was explained by Miss Irene Cotten of Dendron. Then followed the presentation of charts and recognition of churches.

A business session was held and, after that, an offering was taken.

A Cypress Chapel Quartet rendered a charming piece which was greatly appreciated by the large audience.

A motion was unanimously passed that the Congress put on a drive to get renewals and new subscriptions for the CHRISTIAN SUN. Miss Elizabeth Sharpe, of Waverly, was put in charge of the drive, and about fifteen young people volunteered to work under her direction. Rev. F. C. Lester, pastor of Waverly Church, delivered an address of great merit on the subject of the church paper. There was unusual interest in THE CHRISTIAN SUN apparent in what was said and the atmosphere created by the discussion. Those young people are now at work and success is being realized by the workers. It is hoped that this movement will result in many renewals and in many new subscriptions for THE SUN, which is so useful in the Southern Christian Convention, the Conferences and the local churches.

A violin solo was rendered by George Earl Rogers, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. I. W. Johnson.

The chief address of the evening was delivered by Dr. W. M. Jay, pastor of the Holland Church, who spoke on the "Activities of Young People in the Religious World." On account of the lateness of the hour, Dr. Jay abbreviated his address, but it was fine.

Miss Doris Eure of Suffolk was chosen chairman for the coming year. G. G. Overman was elected vice-chairman; Beryl Barrett, secretary, and Miss Knoller, treasurer.

If people who say that the young people of this day are worse than in years gone by, would attend the Young People's Congress, and Missionary Rallies, they would change their minds or, at least, what they say. Really young people take more interest in Christian worship and work than in any age of Christianity; and what they need is opportunity and encouragement in Christian work. They are better educated than in generations past, are therefore more competent to do religious work, and they are willing to help the church carry on the work. There is a marked improvement in the atmosphere of the Young People's Congress compared with the first meetings of that organization. Young people must do something; give them the chance to work for the Lord and the Church. W. W. STALEY.

ELON LETTER.

We received a letter a few days ago from an Elon graduate, in which she inquired about the college and asked for a copy of our catalogue. The writer, a preacher's wife, expressed the desire that her daughter, who is a senior in high school this year, should enter Elon next year.

The spirit of the letter encouraged us. The mother graduated more than twenty years ago, but her interest in and her love for her Alma Mater have deepened with the passing years; and she looks forward to her daughter's becoming a student here with as much eagerness as she felt when she herself entered as a girl.

And so, we believe, it should be. Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and many others of our colleges and universities, carry on their rosters of students, family names that have appeared there for generations. It is considered only the natural thing for John Jones, Jr., to go to the college from which John Jones, Sr., graduated, and to add honor to the tradition attached to the name of Jones in that institution.

And in so far as it is customary for the sons and daughters of college graduates to attend the college of their father's and mother's choice, in so far as that college strengthened, its influence increased and the most desirable traditions created. There is a reality, a power, in college loyalty that can neither be analyzed nor denied. How fortunate the institution that enjoys that loyalty.

Now is the time for the expression of loyalty on the part of every former student of Elon. Loyalty in word and in deed. We sing:

"Here's to men and women who've come and gone, Singing the victor's song of Old Elon."

Let us think also of the men and women who are, or should be, here now and who should, in years to come, go forth from Elon College to brighten and bless the world because of the training they have received here. I can think of no better concluding sentence than that given by our college pastor at a recent mid-week prayer service—"Love and loyalty can lift the load."

J. W. BARNEY.

HERE AND THERE IN THE VALLEY.

During the recent weeks it has been my privilege to visit a few of our churches in the Virginia Valley and see just what was going on.

Among those first visits, I recall one to Whistler's Chapel, near Quicksburg. Here we discovered a most interesting group of workers. At the Sunday School, and also the preaching service that autumn afternoon, all those present manifested a great deal of interest. Their pastor Rev. B. J. Earp, brought a most inspiring message, expressed in such simple language that the youngest had no difficulty in understanding.

Some weeks ago, as already announced in THE SUN, the Women's Missionary Conference of the Valley, held a rally at the Dry Run Church, near Seven Fountains. The program was chock full of both informational and inspirational material for all who are the least bit interested in missions. That Saturday was truly a great day for missions.

It has been our privilege to spend two or three week-ends in Winchester, thus giving an opportunity to observe the work in our church there. We notice that a wider interest is being shown in both Sunday School and Christian Endeavor work than has been evident for a number of years.

The Rally Day Program at the Winchester Church was a rare occasion, the like of which is seldom enjoyed. So much more true worship was included than one usually finds in a program of that type. We are delighted to find the young people renewing their interest in church work.

Revival services are occupying the interest and time of a number of our pastors at this time. Rev. B. J. Earp has been unusually busy in meetings for many weeks past. He will close a well attended meeting at Mayland Friday night. Previous to this meeting, Mr. Earp assisted Bro. G. C. Crutchfield in a meeting at Lynchburg.

Last Sunday there were five young men who started in the choir, but could not find room. This shows that the young people are willing to share the duties and privileges of worshipping in God's house.

Rev. A. W. Andes has just closed a very fine meeting at Leaksville. He had Rev. G. C. Crutchfield of Lynchburg assisting him part of the time. Due to his participation in the Leaksville meeting, Mr. Andes did not fill his appointment at Dry Run Church on Sunday night, but his place was supplied by Rev. Gaylon Wine of Forestville, who is teaching in Fort Valley this year. Mr. Wine is a graduate of Bridgewater College and is one of the youngest United Brethren ministers in the county.

ROSEMONT CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

A special series of meetings were conducted in the Rosemont Christian Church from November 1st to 15th. The services (except the night services on the 8th), were conducted by the pastor, the rest of the preaching was done by that well-known and much beloved minister, Dr. I. W. Johnson, of Suffolk, Va. No one has brought us here at Rosemont more practical and helpful sermons than did Dr. Johnson, and Rosemont learned to love him anew, and to hold him in high esteem, and of course will welcome him back again any time he can come.

The attendance during the meeting was fair, and the interest was good, but visible results were not as good as we would have liked to see, but we feel that much good was done, and we are grateful.

Among the ministers who attended the service were, Dr. W. W. Staley, Rev. O. D. Poythress, with a fine delegation from his church, Rev. H. C. Caviness, Rev. J. H. Warren, Rev. L. L. Lassiter, all of the Christian Church, and Rev. Ira S. Harrell and Rev. Sudrey Tomlinson, of the Baptist Church, and Rev. J. R. Timberlake of the Methodist Church, South.

The work at Rosemont is holding up very well, and we have many good people here, and we hope to do more in the interest of the kingdom in the days that are to come. The church carried up its conference apportionments in full, and also reported a splendid increase in membership during last year.

NOTICE.

We are open for a pastor at Liberty (Vance) the coming year. We have a parsonage right near the church. We will want services on the third and fourth Sundays. We cannot pay as much as we have been paying, but will be glad to correspond with available pastor.

Respectfully,

J. D. NEWMAN, Secretary,

MARTHA OR MARY.

A special service of prayer had been announced for a group of women who had banded themselves together to fight against the evils of intemperence. Each one was a member of a local church, yet when the hour came only one met with the hostess. This had happened before, but they waited hoping that others might come and in the interim discussed the need of effectual, fervent prayer in the life of individuals and Christian organizations. As no one else came the prayer service was held for they were agreed and claimed the promise. The hostess, who was a paid worker in the local church, said as we were leaving, "We do not want women to neglect their homes to come to the prayer services, but O how necessary that they see beyond the confines of their own homes."

Jesus the Christ noted the same condition in the home of Martha and Mary, for Martha was cumbered about much serving, so cumbered that she found fault with Mary because she, Mary, had chosen and was enjoying that good part.

Certain things must be done in the home and so many times there is no one to help the busy housewife who is sorely tempted to be cumbered with much serving and to forget the better part. The strain and stress of the busy days too often result in over wrought nerves and critical remarks are made in an un-Christian manner, many times to those who are just as busy yet who choose to spend a part of their time in the Master's service.

Our first requirement as Christian women is to be Christ-like; the home is the second consideration. Without Christ the most beautiful house is not a home and though hours are spent to keep it beautiful it fails of its purpose. Putting God first brings all things into adjustment and instead of hurry and worry there will be time for quietly sitting at the feet of Jesus as Mary did and learning the lesson of patience and love. Love to our Lord which also radiates to our fellow men creating a desire in our hearts that they may know Him whom to know aright is life eternal. Then we can see what things are filling the time that we should be giving to His service, for they might not be as essential as we think.

The Mary of whom we speak had a very precious possession, an alabaster box of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and one day she broke the box and anointed her Lord and Saviour. The disciples thought it a great waste of good material but Jesus did not think so. Sometimes I think that our precious possession is the time which we have when we choose to do the things that we want to do. It may be to read a new book or to do some fancy work and we feel that we have earned the leisure and should use it as we please, but there is an insistent call which will not be still until we put aside our desires and go forth to do that which we may not want to do. Yet there is a blessing awaiting us in the doing of that very thing and we come back to our duties with glowing hearts and the duties seem a joy instead of a burden.

There was another Mary whom God called to the highest privilege ever given to woman; she could not understand the why or wherefore of God's will for her, yet in sweet humility and obedience she answered, "Be it unto me according to Thy word."

Oh, the lessons we might learn from the Marys of the Bible; lessons of adoration, service and perfect abandonment to the will of God. May we seek to learn them all using all we have for the highest purpose, the glory of our Christ and the salvation of immortal souls.

"O busy ones, whose souls grow faint,
Whose tasks seem longer than the day,
It doesn't take a cloistered saint
To find a little time to pray."

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

Father of Love, Thou knowest our frames, of ourselves so faulty and incapable, yielded to Thee so susceptible of grace and victory and power. Through defenceless night whether of body or soul, Thou dost cover and keep each committed life for the day of endeavor unto whatsoever Thou hast appointed. More and more grant us clear insight unto the chambers of Thy will and make us obedient. Showing us the leanness of normal allegiance, lift Thy children into the realm of positive partnership with Thee for Thy dear Son's sake. Amen. "L."

ANNIVERSARY OF "HAYSTACK PRAYER MEETING."

The 125th anniversary of the "Haystack Prayer Meeting," which marked the beginning of the organized foreign missionary movement in North America was observed in Congregational and Christian Churches throughout the United States on Sunday, November 15th.

A prayer meeting held on the lee side of a great haystack during a thunder storm in 1806, by five students of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., led four years later to the formation of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the first of the 152 boards and societies which today have a force of 15,644 American missionaries, "ambassadors pre-eminent of peace, good-will and international and inter-racial understanding" in eighty-seven countries of Asia, Oceania, Africa and Latin America, and in other countries of eastern and southern Europe and among the Eskimos, Orientals and Indians in the United States and Canada.

The American Board was organized by the General Association of Congregational Churches of Massachusetts. During its early years it was supported by Presbyterians and Reformed, as well as by Congregational Churches. It is now the agency of the Congregational and Christian Churches of the United States.

The first missionaries, comprising three men and their wives and two single men, were commissioned at service in the Tabernacle Church, Salem, Mass., and sailed for India in the spring of 1812. During the voyage three of the group, Adoniram Judson and his wife and Luther Rice, decided to become Baptists. Rice returned to the United States and, in 1814, secured the organization of what is now known as the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. The foreign mission work of the Methodist Episcopal Church began in 1819, and that of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1820. In 1832, the Reformed Church in America, and in 1837, the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., organized their own foreign boards.

The centennial of the "haystack prayer meeting" was commemorated on November 15, 1906, by an all-day prayer meeting in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City. Resolutions then adopted resulted in the formation of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, an interdenominational organization, which is credited with the introduction of new business methods, including the every-member canvass of church parishes, into missionary finance. The every-member canvass idea was adopted and applied on a community scale for the world war "drives" and is now used for community fund and other philanthropic campaigns such as that for unemployment relief.

The Williams College students who held the memorable haystack meeting, had been studying the geography of Asia and the need of its people for spiritual enlightenment. Their feeling of helplessness to meet the need was followed by a resolve, expressed by their leader, Samuel J. Mills, "We can do it if we will." They later pledged themselves "to effect a mission or missions to the heathen" and formed a society called "The Brethren." It was the insistence of "The Brethren" that brought about the organization of the American Board. Mills died on shipboard in 1818 from fever contracted in Africa.

The work started by these students is shown by the statistics of the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada to have become a great enterprise. The total number of organized churches in the foreign fields of the American churches, excluding work in Europe, is 12,349. These mission churches report a communicant membership of 1,309,596, and an affiliated constituency of 3,275,000. The amount annually raised by the mission churches has increased to $3,800,000.

The nationals of the respective foreign countries employed in the mission work number 67,769, of whom 5,562 are ordained ministers.

In the educational work conducted by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada, are enrolled 801,080 pupils and students. The work includes 68 colleges with 12,827 students; 274 theological seminaries and Bible training schools with 8,147 students; 16 medical schools with 904 students; and 52 nurses' training schools with 837 students.

The women among these students number 2,007 in the colleges; 2,330 in the seminaries and Bible training schools; 174 in the medical schools, and 664 in the nurses' training schools.

In the medical work of the foreign mission boards of the United States are engaged 717 American physicians of whom 190 are women, and 483 American nurses. The mission physicians who are nationals of the foreign countries number 441 of whom 84 are women; the national nurses number 1,350 men and 1,150 women. The total medical force is 4,541.

The foreign mission hospitals number 451 and the dispensaries 1,343, treating annually over 3,000,000 individuals. Major operations reported in a year number 31,180.

Philanthropic work reported by the foreign mission boards of the United States and Canada comprises: 186 orphanages with 8,909 children; 41 leper asylums with 4,322 patients; 12 homes for untainted children of lepers with 338 children; 15 institutions for the blind and deaf with 436 pupils; and 45 other institutions for varied work with 1,420 inmates.

"TWO DAYS A WEEK WITHOUT FOOD."

"Working for a cent a day,"—"Two days a week without food,"—"Three quarters of our people without work,"—"The hardest year I have ever known."—so ran the expressions that greeted Dr. C. Stanley Vaughan and members of a relief committee in Manamadura, India, appointed to tour the stricken fields by the Church Council. "In every case we found pastor and people ready to forego their pay in order to carry on," writes Dr. Vaughan, "They still have faith in the American Board and the American people and look for the day when things will return to normal and the Churches will help them bear the overwhelming burdens which conditions have thrust upon this young Indian Church. In the meantime, much heroism and Christian sacrifice are being called forth. But we shrink from trying to gauge the results of a further cut in appropriations coupled with an almost inevitable shrinkage in Government grants.

MOVIES WIN FRIEND FOR INDIA.

A moving picture machine presented by an American church member in memory of her mother, to Inanda Seminary, Natal, South Africa, has resulted in winning the friendship of an influential Zulu leader. Prior to his first visit to see the "movies" this man had not encouraged Christian education. After examining the buildings, equipment and watching the girls at work, he went away deeply interested. "Thus the movies have won us a friend," writes Principal Margaret E. Walbridge.

A speaker once said: "Some people have just enough religion to make them miserable." Such folks do not have enough religion to do them any good. Their religion is all negative. Negative religion is not the Bible kind. Bible religion is not something you feel. Neither is it something you know. It is something you do. "Pure religion and undefiled before God the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world." That sort of religion never did make anybody unhappy, and never will. Genuine Christians are happy.—Baxter.

HELP ABOLISH WAR.

To members of religious groups in America:
Dear Friends:

The American Friends Service Committee, a National Committee of the Society of Friends (Quakers), sends you greeting.

We are constrained to believe that the General Disarmament Conference to open in Geneva in February, 1932, can be made to mark a turning point in human affairs. Never before, in the history of mankind, have the devastating results of war been so clearly indicated and so generally recognized. Past generations, indifferent to the warning of prophets, economists and statesmen, have consistently prepared for war, have regarded war as the natural arbiter of international affairs, and have proceeded from one conflict to another. It would now seem that the peoples of the world have reached the limit of their power to recuperate from the disaster of war. Hand in hand with a vast increase in man's power of destruction has gone an equal increase in the effect of war upon a more complex social order. President Hoover in his recent speech to the convention of the American Legion voiced the growing conviction of millions of men, when he said that the present worldwide economic crisis is the result of the World War. In our present delicately adjusted, interdependent world, the destiny of every people, however strong or weak, is inextricably linked with the fears and fortunes of the world. The law of love, the teachings of Hebrew prophets and of Jesus, are being fulfilled in the sweep of world affairs. Men are beginning to realize that they must cooperate or perish, materially as well as spiritually.

We cannot contemplate, therefore, with indifference, the persistent preparation for war throughout most of the world. Least important is the fiscal question of how the nations should spend their public revenue,—whether to spend billions of dollars annually in subsidizing makers of war material and the military personnel or upon purposes more closely related to the needs of suffering humanity. It is the menace of future wars with which we are chiefly concerned. Armaments are the expression of a philosophy of international conduct and their very existence tends to perpetuate this philosophy. War is not inevitable except as armament tend to make it so. It is not rational or natural for a civilization to attempt to destroy itself, but this disaster is likely to happen if men continue irrationally to think about it and plan for it.

The Disarmament Conference of 1932 will meet under unique conditions. Never before have peoples of the world so clearly recognized that their opportunity for normal living depends upon the constant maintenance of international peace. If the use of armaments may destroy the civilization that has prepared them, it is worse than folly to continue them. The issue is not now one of limitation; it is one of abolition. We believe that the time has come, in the evolution of public opinion, to free mankind from the fiscal burden, the political menace and the spiritual decay incident to military preparation. The Kellogg Pact, the world-wide crisis, the growth of public opinion as to the effects of war, constitute a setting in which such a program of abolition can reasonably be inaugurated.

Are the religious forces of the world content to wait until economic necessity has impelled the results foretold by prophetic vision? It is our hope that the day of freedom from the menace of war may be hastened through the dynamic of religious faith. The churches of America could devote this period to a great crusade of the abolition of war preparation. Such a crusade could definitely affect the results at Geneva and could thereby change the course of human affairs.

ADVENTURES IN YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

"Youth at Work in the Church."
JEWEL TRUITT, Editor, Glen Raven, N. C.

C. E. WORK IN THE VIRGINIA VALLEY.

Christian Endeavor work in the Virginia Valley Conference is receiving due attention. On a certain afternoon, not many weeks ago, a small, but intensely interested group of young people, met at Bethlehem Church, near Broadway, to discuss the approaching Western District C. E. Convention. Several short talks were given and music was rendered. A splendid C. E. spirit of fellowship prevailed throughout. Each person who attended this meeting left the church with a great desire to attend the convention at Covington two weeks later.

Two weeks passed, and the time for our District Convention was at hand. The drive over the mountains was a wonderful experience. No one could help but recognize the omnipotent hand of a great Creator in the beauty of these mountains, trees, and leaves, as the reflection of a golden sun fell upon them that gorgeous autumnal afternoon.

Not only was the scenery a rare treat. The convention itself was another of those few mountain peak experiences enjoyed by men. It was with a feeling of sincere brotherhood that those hundred young people gathered around the banquet table on Saturday night. Among the group present were at least a dozen from our own Valley Conference. These included Margaret Richards, State president, Irene Mathews, Western District president, Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Larrick, the former being president of the Winchester Union; Mrs. K. H. Sale, junior superintendent of the city of Winchester; Irene Headley, president and Emma Cain, secretary of the Winchester Congregational Christian Society, and K. B. Hook, all members of the church at Winchester.

The convention program was filled with good things for the betterment of Christian Endeavor work. Many nationally known C. E. workers were there, each contributing his share toward making it the best convention Western District has ever had. The convention will meet at Strasburg next year.

K. B. HOOK.

CHATTANOOGA COMRADES' MEETING.

The fourth meeting of the Congregational Comrades of the Chattanooga District was held at Daisy, Tenn., October 24th and 25th. This conference, held a year after the organization of the Comrades, was the best of all. The young people voted to continue their policy of quarterly meetings and elected a new staff of officers: chairman, James Larrimore, of Daisy; vice-chairman, Alexander Ferguson of Union Church, East Lake; secretary, Miss Azilee Johnston of Pilgrim Church of Chattanooga. The winter session is to be entertained at Pilgrim Church.

The Daisy meeting was a "Daisy," and the gatherings there, especially those held in the cozy cabin, will not be forgotten by the fine group of over fifty delegates, not counting the hosts. For the first time Grand View was represented, and in style, too, with fourteen delegates. Pleasant Hill and Crossville were the only members of the fellowship unable to attend.

For once the weather beamed upon us, as if to make up for its unfriendliness at all our previous conferences. The many out-door meetings were a joy to all who attended. The trip to the Daisy pottery and the bon-fire supper on Saturday night, the Sunrise Service and breakfast on Sunday, and the Vesper Services at the Rock Quarry facing the autumn glory of the hills.

The theme of the conference was "Brotherhood" and inspirational messages from Rev. J. W. Davenport, Dr. C. R. Raymond, Dr. F. P. Ensminger, Dr. M. S. Freeman, Rev. M. T. Murphy, and Rev. G. W. Blount, effectively brought out the various phases of this most important and timely subject. Discussions led by Rev. A. L. DeJarnette and Miss Marguerite Davison, gave the young people opportunity to express themselves. Each delegation led a worship service and presented a stunt and in so doing felt some measure of responsibility for the success of the whole program. A very fitting close for the conference was the play, "The Color Line," presented by the East Lake young people. This brought home to all the actual extent of our "brotherly" feeling toward other races in America, and challenged us to take stock of ourselves.

YOUNG PEOPLE AT CONFERENCE.

At the Tennessee State Conference, held on October 27th to 29th, a goodly number of young people were present as delegates representing their societies in the local churches. They gave excellent reports of conditions and work accomplished. Their presence at the sessions and their interest in large issues before the church marked a considerable stride forward in our scheme of sharing responsibility with all ages in the church.

The special young people's banquet served by the Nashville Church was a treat. A group of about thirty-five young folks, with a few older folks, enjoyed a happy fellowship at Collegeside House. After the supper, the Hallowe'en witch and her court presided over the reports of all the saints congregated there. The questions and answers provided information and merriment for all.

Miss Birdie Rowland was elected president of a youth organization in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference on the evening of November 10th, at a splendid rally of the young people of the conference. Miss Clarice Gunn of the Happy Home Church and Miss Mabel Smith of the Greensboro Church, were elected vice-president and secretary of the organization. Fullest cooperation between this new organization and the conference was pledged in addresses by young people and leaders of the annual conference.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

November 29, 1931.

"WHERE ARE MISSIONARIES NEEDED IN THIS COUNTRY."

LESSON: Revelations 3:14-22.

America is still a mission field. One half of the population is not a member of any church, Jewish, Catholic or Protestant. Thousands of youths do not know the name of Jesus in any real sense, and many have never heard His name. This thought may be staggering, but it is true. One has only to become better acquainted with his country to learn that it is so. The call "to come over and help us" comes from every corner of the land today. There has never been a time when interest was greater in Christ and His Way of Life than it is today. It is a rare privilege to live in this day and to be able to share in spreading the Gospel to those who know Him not.

Weary and worn men and women, bowed down from long hours of tiresome work, for which they cannot make enough money to buy necessary food and clothing, and ignorant little children call from hundreds of mining camps, mountain homes, city homes, country homes, immigrant homes, mill homes. No type of home comes clear of needing the story of Jesus. The story of Jesus can be heard to advantage in many homes and places of work. We could answer the question asked by the topic by saying "Everywhere." The need cannot be confined to any one group of people. It is hard sometimes to distinguish between the greatness of the need for Christ in some far away place or in our own community.

The call comes today to every Christian youth to live the very best possible Christian life, for others are reading the Gospel according to our lives. If we would do our greatest service for Christ, we may not have to go to some other country to tell the story of Jesus, we may not even go to another State or city. It may be that we can best tell the story of Jesus by living at home, wherever we are. The greatest challenge that comes to Christian people today is to be Christian in our thinking, in our acting, and in our ideals, motives, and attitudes. We must dedicate our whole lives to the service of Christ in our every day living.

ENVIRONMENT.

Many fathers and mothers take no account of the difference in environment in different kinds of colleges. They do not see that the fact that the teachers in one college are Christians and those in another are mainly unchristian—some of them anti-christian—would of necessity make a difference in conduct and in attitude toward things that are sacred and fundamental. Environment is often as powerful a factor in the life of a young person as is instruction in the class room. Many parents also fail to see that an institution in which dancing and general revelry is considered in good taste or considered lightly is a poorer environment than an institution where these things are considered wrong and condemned, not only by the teachers, but by the majority of the students. Many parents fail to see that a school, most of whose students do not attend the church of Christ, a majority of them not attending religious services at all, offers a poorer environment than a school whose students, with few exceptions, attend the church regularly and enjoy the worship.—Gospel Advocate.

PAUL'S LETTER TO PHILEMON.

LESSON IX.—NOVEMBER 29, 1931.

LESSON TEXT: Philemon 1:4-20.

GOLDEN TEXT: "There can be neither bond nor free . . . for ye all are one man in Christ Jesus."—Gal. 3:28.

Introduction.

Paul made good use of the time at Rome. While he awaited trial he could teach others of the Christ who had set him free spiritually. Though a prisoner in bonds, he sought to give joy and release to others.

Our own sorrows are made lighter as we render service to others. Self pity makes our own condition all the more keenly felt. The helpful service to others lifts the burdens for all. Paul had learned the Christian secret of joy in service. Some time during the period of his Roman imprisonment he had pointed the way of salvation to a slave, who had run away from his master.

Ancient Slavery.

In ancient times human slavery was quite general. The slave was the property of his master. There are abundant records of kindness and abundant records of cruelty in the treatment of slaves. In all human relationships human nature is capable of rising toward the heights or sinking to the depths.

At Colossae lived a slave named Onesimus. He ran away from his master and drifted into Rome. There he met Paul and became a Christian. What should a runaway slave do when he became converted by the Christian gospel. He decided to go back to his master.

Philemon, the Christian.

His master was Philemon, a prominent member of the church at Colossae. Paul knew him. Probably he had learned the Christian way from Paul while he worked at Ephesus. At any rate, Paul felt that Philemon was spiritually indebted to him. Paul would trust this Christian gentleman to deal with the runaway slave on a plane far above the common standards of the time.

Christian Ethics.

Christianity inherited a wonderful ethics from Judaism. The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man extend the finest ethics of the family to the farthest reaches of human relations. The sermon on the mount has an ethical vigor that cannot be duplicated in any other like body of material. How could Paul and the slave handle the ethical problem with the master and with society. The law demanded the return of the slave. It would permit most any degree of punishment for his crime, even to the penalty of death. Paul appealed to the higher law—the law of Christian brotherhood.

Brothers in Christ.

As a slave who had run away, Onesimus was to return to his master. He conformed to the law of the land. Philemon was to receive him as a brother in the Lord. Paul appealed to the higher principle, and in that principle was finally found the solution to the perplexing social problem.

Society has numerous problems that are still pressing for solution. Social legislation always lags behind the clear findings of those who seek the higher principles of brotherhood. Many vexing problems still await a brotherly solution. Human relations are so complex in the world

RELIGIOUS BOOKS

Reviewed by

W. A. HARPER, BOOK EDITOR.

(Any book reviewed in this Department may be had of The Christian Sun at the publisher's price.)

SOME PSYCHOLOGY. By Mabel C. Williams Kemmerer. Badger. pp. 229. $2.00.

This is not a book for experts, but an introduction to psychology for every one. In this day of many psychologies, a book of this type fills a real need.

SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY. By John Jeffrey Smith. Badger. pp. 468. $2.00.

The author has tested out his conclusions in three years of classroom experience. He has written a very readable volume on the sentiments as central in psychology—the psychology of attraction and repulsion.

THE HARVEST AND THE REAPERS. By H. M. North. Cokesbury. pp. 207. $1.25.

Dr. North has written a book on evangelism that is as sane and practical and straightforward as he is, and he has done it well. He is certainly right in his general approach, that the common people will win the world for Christ. The book is most heartily commended to all—ministers and laymen alike.

THE VISION OF VICTORY. By Richard H. Nelson. Morehouse. pp. 212. $2.50.

Bishop Nelson in this posthumous work gives a fresh and suggestive treatment of the Book of Revelations. The author's purpose is practical with especial emphasis on the present values of this last book of our Bible, and not historical or critical. It is calculated to strengthen men's hearts in their quest for God.

THE ESSENTIALS OF LEADERSHIP. By Herman Harrell Horne. Cokesbury. pp. 136. $1.00.

Dr. Horne is one of our keenest thinkers in education and philosophy and likewise one of our most prolific and intriguing writers. Any book from his pen is an event in productive scholarship. His incisive treatment of the essentials of leadership is up to his high standard. He explores the type of leadership that should prove effective in morals, religion, and education, and does it with a master hand. His appraisal of religious education is especially keen and refreshing.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN
1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

ANTI-SOCIAL.

"The whole law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Read Galatians 5:13-18.

A sociologist analyzes the eighteen causes of automobile accidents, and finds that they are all due to anti-social behavior. The careless motorist is an anti-social being. He is living for himself, without due regard to others. "Anti-social" is a modern and popular term; the old-fashioned word is just plain "selfish."

Heaven is all social, no anti-social person gets there. The true church on earth is all social. The early Christians had all things common. No one hogged the road. No one passed on the wrong side. No one hit and ran. If there had been automobiles in Jerusalem at that time, no accident would have been due to the Christians, for none of them were anti-social.

Prayer—Help us to be unselfish, our heavenly Brother, Thou the most unselfish of all. May each of us put others before himself. Amen.

TUESDAY.

CHRISTIAN TELETYPESETTERS.

"Necessity is laid upon me, for woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel." Read I. Corinthians 9:16-23.

The new contrivance, the typesetter, has proven its usefulness by setting up type for seven newspapers simultaneously from the central plant in White Plains, N. Y. As the copy is typed it punches holes in a paper ribbon like that of a piano-player. At the other end similar holes are punched in another strip of paper, which is fed into the linotype machine, thus working the machine in place of an operative as an automatic piano is played.

Is that the Christian idea of religious work? It is, if the mechanical can be humanized. Paul was able to extend his inspired and inspiring personality all over the Roman Empire by his heroic travels and evangelizing in the first place, and then by his wonderful letters. We can not be Pauls, but we can all have the presence and power of the Holy Spirit who energized Paul. We can all reach out with our influence much farther than we do, and then farther, and even farther, to the limit of Christ's will for us. We can all be Christian typesetters.

Prayer—Give us a holy ambition, Lord Jesus! Make us eager to make the most of the powers and the truth Thou hast granted us. May our service be as extensive as Thy design for us and through us. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE SUN STILL WITH US.

"Jacob tarried there all night, because the sun was set.

And the sun rose upon him as he passed over Peniel." Read Genesis 28:10-11; 32:31.

It has been found that when clerks must work under artificial light, the more nearly it is colored to imitate sunlight the better they will work, and if this artificial sunlight reaches the clerks through the ordinary windows of the room, they will work better still.

God's arrangements are the best. We do our best work when we work under His arrangements. It is not well to turn day into night by our late sleeping nor night into day by our late dissipation. God has planned the world for His children, and the more nearly we conform to nature, the more nearly we accomplish all that we are meant to accomplish.

Every sin breaks into the natural order, and so weakens and distresses us. Every sin robs us of sleep, robs us of digestion, robs us of money, robs us of reputation, robs us of peace of mind. Nothing is so costly as sin. And, on the other hand, nothing is so happy, so fruitful, so peaceful, as conformity to God's laws. The Christian observes the rising and setting of the Sun of righteousness. The Christian moves by the divine order.

Prayer—Our Creator, we are fashioned by Thy will that we may live in accordance with that will. May we guide our acts by Thy wise designs. May our days be Thy days and our nights Thy nights. Amen.

THURSDAY.

COMPLETE THANKSGIVING.

"Jehovah is good to all, and His tender mercies are over all His works." Read Psalm 145:1-9.

On this Thanksgiving Day it is good to remember the alls of Christian gratitude. All God's works praise Him, and not merely a part of them. God is good to all, and not only to a few favored ones. God's tender mercies are over all His works, and not just a portion of them.

Think of what William Law once wrote so forcefully: "If any one would tell you the shortest, surest way to all happiness and all perfection, he must tell you to make it a rule to yourself to think and praise God for everything that happens to you. For it is certain that whatever seeming calamity happens to you, if you thank and praise God for it, you turn it into a blessing."

Prayer—We will anticipate that heavenly understanding now, dear Father. We will begin now to render entire thanksgiving. From this day we will know that Thy tender mercy is shown in all that Thou dost do. Amen.

FRIDAY.

TAUGHT BY THE PINTHIS.

"Christ . . . though he was a Son, yet learned obedience by the things which He suffered." Read Hebrews 4:1-10.

The terrible collision between the steamer Fairfax and the tanker Pinthis resulted in the loss of forty-nine lives. Inspector-General Hoover, speaking of this event, says that "every disaster has its lesson," and there are several lessons to be learned from this disaster.

Whoever does not learn from experience will not learn at all to any helpful purpose. Experience is the God-ordained teacher of mankind. Even Christ, we are told, learned obedience from His sufferings.

Day by day we are in Christ's school. There is no recess, no vacation, nor do we want any. For we are getting priceless knowledge, if we are faithful students, the knowledge which means eternal happiness and peace. No disaster—yes, and no blessing—can come to us which does not bear a rich cargo of instruction.

Prayer—May we never throw away, Thou blessed Teacher, the lessons Thou art sending us. May we store them up as priceless treasure. May we constantly put them to use. Thus may our lives be full of learning as they are full of Thy love. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE SUBMARINE ELEVATOR.

"Thou, O Jehovah, art . . . the lifter up of my head." Read Psalm 3:1-8.

What fate is more terrible than to be buried alive in a disabled submarine, sunk to the bottom of the sea? But man's ingenuity is wrestling with the problem of rescue from such disaster, and the latest device is what is described as a "submarine elevator," which is a kind of buoy lowered to the point of peril. It receives one of the crew, raised to the surface where the passenger is taken aboard the rescue ship, then returns for another, and so on till all the submarine crew are saved.

"Never despair," is a Christian motto. No matter how far a soul is sunk in the murky waters of sin, he may be reached and saved. Our Redeemer is omnipotent. Those who trust in Him and use His power can pierce through all obstacles to get to an endangered soul, and can bring him up to light and air and safety.

No sinner is too vile to be rescued. No impediment is too heavy to be surmounted. No difficulty is too severe to be met. Satan has many devices, but the Lord of glory has many more.

Prayer—Thou, O Christ, art the Lifter-up of my head. When I am most likely to drown, Thy hand is outstretched to save. Ah, may I find it before it is evermore too late! Amen.

SUNDAY.

BAD HOMES.

"And He went down with them, and came to Nazareth; and He was subject unto them; and His mother kept all these sayings in her heart." Read Luke 2:40-52.

Our Lord had a good home—no better home ever existed. It was a home of piety, of love, of obedience and order and industry, a home in which the Bible ruled and where prayer was as the breath of life.

Criminals are made before the Sunday Schools have a chance at them. The way to Christianize a nation is to Christianize the parents; and the grandparents, for the matter of that. Crime must be cured before it starts. The boy and girl must be reformed before they are born. When the spirit of that Nazareth home permeates our Springfields and Thomasvilles, our Chicagos and New Yorks, then we can dismiss our policemen and close our jails, and not till then.

Prayer—Abide in our home, Lord Jesus! Work with us there, pray and play with us there. May Thy Holy Spirit inhabit every corner of the house until it is a home indeed. Amen.

I bought a railroad ticket the other day, and on the coupon read these words: "Not good if detached."

Strange thing about that coupon! It was made of the same material as the ticket, printed with the same kind of ink, and was about the same size and shape, but it was not good if detached! Its value was dependent upon its relation to the rest of the ticket.

Ever think of the little gem of philosophy contained in these words, "Not good if detached"?

How many things are valuable when related to something else, and not so valuable when detached!

In the fifteenth chapter of John, the Savior teaches the lesson of the vine and the branches. In Christ the Christian can work and do good; but out of Christ—detached—the worker is worthless, and has no promise of eternal reward.—Ex.

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THANKSGIVING IN THE SCRIPTURES.

By H. H. SMITH, Ashland, Va.

"I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hast given me wisdom and might."—Daniel 2:23.

Praise and thanksgiving are not identical in meaning, but as used in the scriptures, the two words often blend in thought. It is a sense of gratitude that leads one to praise God. When the Psalmist, and others mentioned in the Bible, praise God for His character—for what He is—or for His blessings—for what He does, they are really expressing thanksgiving as well as praise. Daniel uses the two words in the same sentence: "I thank Thee and praise Thee, O thou God of my fathers, who has given me wisdom and might." Praise and thanksgiving are the predominant themes of the Psalms. Grateful for the manifold blessings of God, the Psalmist exclaims: "O that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for His wonderful works unto the children of men." To herald the praises of Jehovah, every musical instrument known was to be employed: trumpet, psaltery, harp, timbrel, the stringed instruments, the pipe, cymbals, and high-sounding cymbals—all are to be used in the sacred service of praising the God of Israel. Mindful of the fact that God's blessings are extended to all His creatures, even the lowliest, the Psalmist utters a clarion call: "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."

I.

But even this did not satisfy the grateful Psalmist. He calls upon inanimate things to praise God. "Praise ye Him, sun and moon, stars and light, heaven of heavens, and ye waters that are above the heavens, ye dragons and all deeps, fire and hail, snow and vapor, stormy wind, mountains and all hills, fruitful fields and all cedars—let them praise the name of the Lord."

It would be well for us to pray that we may yet experience some such feeling of gratitude to God. A young preacher once related this bit of personal experience: "As a young preacher, I began my ministry feeling my utter lack of equipment, mentally and spiritually, and my constant prayer was for a full baptism of the Spirit that would endue me with power, and enable me to preach the Word to the glory of God and the salvation of sinners. I threw myself wholly upon God and, as far as I knew how, dedicated myself fully unto Him. This was my longing for days and weeks. The answer came in an unexpected way while I was preaching on the work of the Holy Spirit. Utterly broken and melted down by the mighty power of the Spirit, I stopped preaching and began to praise God. I called upon the congregation to join me in praising God. I longed for the whole world to join me in praising God. I felt that if all the voices of all the people in the world could unite in one mighty volume of praise to God, I should be the happiest man in the world. I then understood what I did not understand as a boy, when I saw the old-time people get happy and shout and call to each other, 'Help me praise the Lord.'"

II.

When we think of the manifold mercies and blessings bestowed upon all mankind, and the meagre acknowledgement and expression of gratitude to the Giver of all, we wonder if the Master did not state the true proportion of the grateful when He said: "Were not the ten cleansed, but where are the nine? Were there none found that returned to give glory to God save this stranger?" We feel that there could be no excuse for these nine ungrateful lepers, but are we not likewise ungrateful today? We often fail to show our gratitude because of the mistaken idea—all unconscious, it may be—that all our possessions and achievements are the result of our own efforts, independent of divine help. This is a very common fault of humanity in general, and the Jews were warned to be on their guard against it at the very beginning of their career. The language is plain and forceful: "For the Lord, thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths, springing forth in valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley, and vines and fig trees and pomegranates; a land of oil olives and honey; a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it; . . . and thou shalt eat and be full, and thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which He has given thee. Beware lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein, . . . thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of my hand hath gotten me this wealth. But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth." (Deut. 8:7-18.)

III.

Here we find an enumeration of the blessings bestowed upon them directly by the good providence of God. It is interesting to read the catalogue of blessings for which the Psalmist gives thanks to God. To name them all would be almost to repeat the psalter. Among this long list we find these: For His all-seeing providence for the truth of His word, for answered prayer, for saving Israel in affliction, for food and raiment, for the law of God, for miraculous deliverances, for the majesty of God, for His glorious works, for His covenant and favor, for the prosperity of Zion, for the forgiveness of sins, for the happiness of the godly, for restoration of religious joy, and for the hope of immortality. If we are unmindful of the blessings that have crowned our lives, let us review the blessings for which the Psalmist offered thanksgiving. It is surprising how many of them are the very things for which we should be thankful today.

As Thanksgiving Day returns year by year, we often feel the need of being aroused to a deeper sense of gratitude. Nothing will do more to meet this need than the study of the Scriptures with reference to this subject.—The Christian Evangelist.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

For fifteen years we have come to you on Thanksgiving and asked you to make an offering for the Christian Orphanage. For fifteen years you have been loyal and true. Whether the weather was good or bad, you have made your offerings liberal and the Orphanage has been able to carry on. Through your offerings to support the Christian Orphanage, you have given a chance in life to many dependent boys and girls. Perhaps they would still be dependent if you had not made it possible for them to be trained in their young and tender years. You helped them when they were dependent, helpless and homeless and needed a friend. Do you regret a single dollar you have invested? We believe you will stand loyally by us this Thanksgiving season and make your offerings as liberal as possible. In order to make your offering as large as possible, make a personal canvass of your church people and give each and every one an opportunity to make a contribution. If you will do this in your church and Sunday School, I feel sure you will be surprised as to the results. Try it in your church. Ten thousand dollars to raise for the Thanksgiving offering. Can it be done? If each one will do his or her part it will be done. Come on and put your shoulder to the wheel and help us push. If the wheel does not roll, then you failed to push. But the wheel is going to roll because I will not believe you will fail us now when we need you to push so badly. I know you love these little boys and girls and you will divide with them at Thanksgiving, won't you?

today that the personal factor is often very obscure. It is hard to discern the right in some of the perplexities of our social structure.

We are Debtors.

The apostle reminds Philemon that he is a debtor to him and to Christ. Onesimus is a spiritual son of the apostle. All are spiritually free in Christ, but debtors all the more.

This personal letter of Paul to Philemon is a gem among the writings of antiquity. In the practical solution of a vexing problem, he called upon a great universal principle. As men give themselves over to the example and teaching of Jesus, they gradually find the practical solutions for their perplexing problems.

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

unded of trees, because the Turk does not take thought for the morrow. An exception is the care of the vines and trees that yield him food—a sort of natural reaction to the urge for existence.

It is evident, therefore, that not much can be done to Westernize the peasant or Moslem Turk till his religion is changed. The intellectuals among the Turks are mostly agnostics or anti-religious. It will be a pity for the masses to become either. Missions in Turkey face the most difficult situation conceivable. The Moslem who becomes a Christian is outlawed, and any Moslem who desires can kill him. This is called fanaticism. The law of Turkey recognizes religious freedom, but Islam does not recognize any right to one of its adherents to change his religion. On the other hand, missions have the widest open door to the Turks which has ever been known. Everything a Christian does in Turkey counts positively or negatively for Christ. No wonder our missionaries are such saintly people. They are real ambassadors for the King and can never escape the sense of their responsibility. By demonstrating Christianity as a way of life in personal and social contacts, in the school room, in the hospital and the hour of sickness, on the playground, in village towns, in farm projects, in house to house visitation, through the printed page, through the preached word, our missionaries will peacefully penetrate this Moslem land and eventually bring it into the Kingdom. It will take time, and our people at home must not get impatient for results. Missionary work in Turkey is not to be a matter of baptisms and head-countings, but a matter of spirit and spiritual uplift for life. If we can have the faith to support our workers, within a generation a new spirit will animate the Turkish Republic, and it will be the spirit of Christ. Our missionaries are doing all they can do. They cannot in any institution directly evangelize, but they are evangelizing through the far more effective method of peaceful penetration and active good will.

We in America have no difficulty understanding disinterested service or good will without expectation of gain. But the Turk has great difficulty with this idea. His whole training and experience are against it. When you do him a favor, he suspects your motive. In many places missionaries are regarded as political propagandists from their countries or as persons who have come over to escape military service or as men and women who failed to succeed at home and are trying out again in a new situation. But these ideas are gradually changing. Active goodwill eventually will win its way to their hearts, and then Islam's doom will be sounded.

Islam cannot stand the tests of enlightened scholarship. The scientific method will undermine its teachings. But scholarship and the scientific method will not lead Moslems to Christ. They will only make them agnostics and anti-religionists. Only active goodwill, only disinterested service, only love divinely self-sacrificing, can lead them to Christ. This our missionaries have, this they are beautifully exemplifying. Given support, their ultimate triumph is assured. Turkey is alert and susceptible to this type of gospel. Our missionaries know it, and by every legitimate method, are giving them a beautiful demonstration of Christianity as a way of life—the very thing our Master said He wanted His children to be—an institution for a more abundant life.

To help Turkey realize her democratic ideals by supplying spiritual support for the political system—that is the challenging cry of the young republic to Christian America. America will not fail to respond to that cry. W. A. HARPER.

STUDIES IN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION. By P. H. Lotz and L. W. Crawford, Editors. Cokesbury, pp. 702. $3.50.

Twenty-nine persons, supposed to be expert each in his particular realm, have written this monumental book long needed in this youngest of the major disciplines of modern education. The viewpoints of the writers differ, as is to be expected in a symposium, where each person is responsible for his own contribution. This is particularly noteworthy with reference to the curriculum and the teaching process. When almost every chapter is a genuine masterpiece, it would seem gratuitous to single out any particular utterance for special praise. Yet if this is to be done, the reader will almost certainly select the chapter by Dr. W. C. Bower, entitled, "The Nature, Content, and Form of the Curriculum." Dr. Bower has written much on the Curriculum, but here is his ripest wisdom and most comprehensive description of the experience-centered curriculum which has become associated with the name and in which he is the acknowledged leader. The book will undoubtedly take high rank as basic text in college and seminary classes and in leadership training on the higher levels.

ELON was founded to train Christian leaders for the New South.

ELON has done its task well—one graduate in seven being in the Christian ministry. The other six express Christian leadership in the various professions and vocations. Experience teaches that spiritual leadership must be indigenous.

The South is now a New South ready for an inclusive Church, the type of Church for which Elon has stood for forty years and for which she is prepared to produce capable leadership.

With no Church in the community, save the College Auditorium, ELON has practiced Christian Union for faculty, students, and community for four decades.

Its contribution to Christian Education is nationally known and approved.

Its Christian Education Building, providing laboratory facilities for religious leadership training, is unique and is the first college building of its type in the world.

ELON confines itself to undergraduate liberal arts work with that religious emphasis which befits the Christian College.

In ELON the Congregational-Christian Church has an asset of marvelous hopefulness.

The South needs her Yale, her Oberlin, her Carleton, her Pomona for the intellectual leadership of the United Church. Many regard ELON as strategically located and spiritually endowed to become such a center of illumination and leadership training.

OBITUARIES.

HUFFINES.

Martha Klapp Huffines, wife of Cicero Huffines, and a sister of the late Rev. P. T. Klapp, died at her home near Gibsonville, October 20, 1931, in her seventy-fourth year.

For more than fifty years she had been a consistent member of Apple's Chapel church and lived an exemplary Christian life. Her husband and three children survive her.

Funeral services were held in Friedens Church, conducted by her pastor, and Rev. Enoch Hite, pastor of Friedens Church, October 22nd, and her body laid to rest in the Church cemetery. May the sorrowing ones bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father.

R. A. WHITTEN.

LILLARD.

Mrs. Emma S. Lillard was born February 5, 1870, and died at her late home near Stephens City, Va., September 29, 1931. Her age was 61 years, 7 months and 24 days. She was a native of Page County, Va., and her remains were taken to Leaksville where the services were held October 1, 1931.

Sister Lillard was a faithful member of the Leaksville Church, even though away from it most of the time.

Surviving are one son, two daughters, and nine grand-children.

Truly a good woman has gone.

A. W. ANDES.

LAYMAN.

Mrs. Hannah Jane Layman was born November 9, 1850, and died October 2, 1931, aged eighty years, ten months and twenty-three days. She was a highly respected woman and loved by a large circle of friends. Death occurred at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Layman, near Mayland, where she had made her home for several years.

Surviving are one son, three daughters, and twenty-one grand-children. Funeral services were held October 5, 1931.

KAGAWA PLEASES.—

Toyohiko Kagawa, Christian labor leader from Japan, thrilled Philadelphians gathered in the First Presbyterian Church, as he told how Christ has been changing the life of Japan, made life real, brought purity and respect for women and children, and ameliorated labor conditions, saying, "When Japan took Christ seriously something changed in the home life." This New Testament Christian, as he called himself, stressed three needs of America today: prayer, reading and love. "You do not realize the meaning of prayer here," he observed. "Without prayer you can do nothing. You have no time to read a book, but there are thousands of automobiles. Love each other and care to bear the cross."

FEDERAL COUNCIL ASKS PRAYER.—

The Federal council of churches is asking the churches of the country to make a Sunday a special day of prayer for the disarmament conference held in Geneva this coming February. The council points out that if this conference fails a righteous and brotherly world order will be long delayed; if it succeeds a long step will have been taken toward economic recovery and world peace. It is confidently expected that the churches in the several denominations will follow the suggestion and if they have not already held such a day of prayer, that they will do so and use their influence wherever they can to promote this peace movement. The Prince of Peace will bless every movement toward the consummation of his purpose and program for world peace in the salvation of all mankind.

GANDHI ON INDIA AND ALCOHOL.—

This Indian statesman has been meeting all sorts and conditions of our people, among them the Temperance council of the churches. To them he describes the position of the drink and opium traffic in India. He showed how the interest of the provincial governments in this traffic hindered temperance reform. He described also what had been done by Indian women who picketed the liquor shops. Alcohol drinking was not an accepted thing in Indian society; indeed in many circles it was tabooed. Some of his hearers had a suspicion that a certain measure of the nationalist propaganda against alcohol was due to the fact that this fitted into their political program. But for the most part the mahatma won the sympathy of the company, as he does of every company with which he comes face to face.

PRAYER FOR UNEMPLOYED.—

A pastoral letter to the 452 churches of the archdiocese of New York, signed by Cardinal Hayes calls for a crusade of prayer for the unemployed. In the words of the letter, "That by our compassion for the needy, expressed in prayer and alms, we may move our divine Saviour to pour out the compassion of His sacred heart on the multitude of the unemployed wage earners and lead all of us out of the gloom and despondency of depression into the light and happiness of better and more peaceful days." If people would pray more for the distressed and then follow the divine leading to relieve the unfortunate in this time of depression, there would be more religion realized in the life of our people. Everybody will suffer more or less from the conditions that exist, but what we suffer in material things, we shall regain in spiritual values and become more abundantly enriched in spiritual life.

DRY POLICEMEN.—

The moral forces of Minneapolis are happy in the fact that in William A. Anderson they have a mayor who has convictions and courage to act in accordance with those convictions. As head of the police force of the city, Mayor Anderson recently issued an order that all police officers of the city must refrain from the use of intoxicating liquors when off duty as well as when on duty. One officer has been dismissed recently for intoxication, and certain investigations are under way relative to alleged protection of vice by city officials. In this investigation, as well as in other problems of a moral nature, Mayor Anderson is evidencing a real desire to clean up the city, and, also, an ability to cope with these difficult problems. He is a member of the Methodist Church and active in various church enterprises. We need more Christian people at the head of our municipal, County, State and National governments. The righteous should rule the earth by doing their duty in civic obligations.

RELIGIOUS EDITORS DISCUSS UNION.—

Officers of the Editorial Council of the religious press are calling a special meeting of religious editors, at a luncheon held in Philadelphia Dec. 2nd; the primary purpose of the meeting being to afford an opportunity for Dr. H. Paul Douglass, representing the Institute of Social and Religious research, to take counsel with the editors concerning the advantages and disadvantages of church union. The editors are being invited by Douglass to cooperate with him by securing through their columns a ballot as to the attitude of their readers toward union. The spirit of church union is in the air, and many churches are receiving members from all the other churches and denominations without making them over thus creating church union by the individual if not by the mass. Church union breathes the very spirit of Christ and even though those entering into the union do hold the mental theological views but find fellowship together, they show more of the spirit of Christ by this difference in union.

SERMONS ON THE AIR.—

Last summer when the Columbia broadcasting station changed its policy in regard to the radioing of religious services, Dr. Keigwin of the West End Presbyterian Church of New York city had to cease the broadcasting of his morning services. This was a great disappointment to a host of people, for these services had become widely known. It is good news to learn that the broadcasting of these services is to be resumed over station WOR, and those who cannot attend divine services can have the opportunity to hear the services in the home. Nothing else can take the place of the actual attendance on divine services for the social contact, the group spirit, the Christian fellowship, the participation in the service, the living presence of the speaker, and the gathering together of two or three or the multitude creates a situation in which Christ has promised to be in their midst. He never promised to fly with the radio message though this will be helpful to those who are shut in hospitals, sick rooms and other places, but we should not forget to assemble ourselves together in divine services on Sunday to worship Him who gave us the gospel and salvation in Christian fellowship.

HOPE IN WORLD SITUATION.—

In a recent sermon, Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin had much to say concerning the present world situation. Today's problems, he said, are not new and strange, nor is the situation anything to be alarmed over. Other peoples in history have been stricken with like fears. He referred to the time when the Jewish state was being sacked, and its leaders were wondering what was in store for them; also to the age of the French and American revolutions. During the renaissance, he said, "men's minds were turned topsyturvy." Today the world is undergoing another such period of change. Few seem sure of God, and many declare him a projection of men's wistful thinking. "But on the path there are millions of footsteps pointing toward God, and a mere handful of footprints of folk returning disappointed that they arrived nowhere. Would these millions of footprints have been made day after day, generation after generation, all in the way of Christ towards God, if followers of Jesus had really been cheated?" "Today there are social movements which enlist our Christian sympathy, movements for international justice and peace, for wider distribution of wealth in each nation, for a re-ordering of the basic motive in industry, which shall consider first the men produced in our business world, and second the goods they manufacture."

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. G. C. Crutchfield has moved his address from Lynchburg, Va., to Kernersville, N. C.

"You can write down, first of all, Impossible; then, Difficult; then, if you are a Christian, Done."—J. Hudson Taylor.

Rev. R. A. Whitten changes his address from Reidsville to Henderson, N. C. He is to give his time to the Henderson Church pastorate.

We note that Rev. J. H. Dollar has changed his pastorate from Reidsville, N. C., to LaGrange, Ga., and his new address is given as 1501 Elm Street, LaGrange, Ga.

Rev. H. E. Crutchfield changes his address from Henderson, N. C., to Paces, Va., from which place he will serve as pastor of Ingram Christian Church and Apples Chapel.

"The Word and Way" states that a survey made in London, England, a little over a year ago, revealed that 85 per cent of the population was neglecting public worship, and that 2,000,000 persons were following their ordinary occupations every Sunday—one out of eight of the adult population.

Rev. R. Lee House writes: "I am now beginning to settle down to work. I like Newport News very much. The future here looks brighter than I had dared to hope for. We have a good congregation at each service. I have been agreeably surprised to find that people go to church Sunday night as well as Sunday morning."

Rev. E. B. White, pastor of the Windsor Christian church called at the SUN office today. Brother White is chairman of the Health and Sanitary Committee of the Windsor Community League, and is a delegate from the League to the Governor's Conference on Childhood and Youth. He reports a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting.

A thrill of joy, satisfaction and delight will go out to all the churches with the announcement that Dr. L. E. Smith of Norfolk, Va., accepts the presidency of Elon College. The trustees were unanimous in his election and everywhere in the church since that time, there has been most hearty approval of the choice. Under Dr. Smith's able leadership, Elon will go on in its career of ever increasing usefulness and power in educational and religious world.

Rev. Elwood W. Jones, pastor, Webster Community Church, Havre de Grace, Md., has been extended a call to Franklin Christian Church, Franklin, Va., and has accepted the pastorate as successor to Rev. J. W. Fix, who is now in the pastorate at Urbana, Ill. We welcome Brother Jones to this closer fellowship and to this field for fruitful service, and wish him well in the good and great task that awaits him.

The Sermon this week is from the pen of Rev. M. A. Matthews, D. D., who was born in Calhoun County, Georgia. After service in Georgia and Tennessee, he was called to the First Presbyterian Church of Seattle, Washington, in 1902. At that time this church had 400 members, at the time this sermon was written, he had over 9,000 in his pastorate. The sermon was sent in by Rev.

E. B. White of Windsor, who found it among some old papers and thought it well worth while.

After cutting $300,000 from their 1931 missionary budget and curtailing the work to the hurting point because of decreased income, the Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, according to the General Secretary, W. G. Cram, of the Board of Missions, faces a deficit of approximately $391,000. Because of this distressing condition and because our Methodist brethren say they must not and cannot retreat even in such a time as this, the Bishops of the church and the Executive Committee of the General Commission on Benevolences have joined the Board of Missions in appealing for a great emergency relief offering to be raised in all Methodist Churches, South, on November 29th or December 6th. All of this reminds us that our own Mission Board was never more in need of funds to meet its deficit than at present because of the depression, since it is with us as with our Methodist brethren, so very easy to excuse ourselves and retrench from our missionary task, because it seems to many so far off and thus can be easily detached, its spiritual privilege and power thus being ignored and lost. An evangelistic awakening and a new passion for souls about us will follow. The missionary awakening, and the consciousness that Missions is not of human but divine origin, and bears the stamp, not of man-made imprint or command, but that of divine hand and heart. The Son of God is the source and the dynamic of missionary activity. Because it is divine and spiritual, we, as human and temporal beings, find it easy to sidestep, to ignore and to disregard.

The Eastern N. C. Christian Conference was in its 106th annual session at Shallow Well Church, Lee County, North Carolina, November 17th, 18th and 19th. Dr. W. C. Wicker, Elon College, was president; Rev. J. Lee Johnson, Fuquay Springs, vice-president; Prof. L. L. Vaughan, State College, Raleigh, secretary; and Brother W. J. Ballentine, Fuquay Springs, treasurer. And these capable and competent officials were re-elected for the coming year. It was the writer's privilege to attend this Conference during the first day only, when there was much routine and clerical work with a few important reports and discussions. The delegation was large, the Conference was well attended, the churches were well represented, and Rev. R. A. Whitten, who had been chosen to preach the opening sermon, did so to the delight and edification of the great audience, using as his subject, "Exceeding Righteousness." Rev. E. M. Carter in the afternoon presented the report on Foreign Missions, and after brief remarks the Conference listened to a report and an appeal from Mrs. W. R. Sellers of the Woman's Board of North Carolina Conference. The Mission Secretary, J. O. Atkinson, spoke briefly on "Missions, A Spiritual Task." Rev. H. E. Crutchfield presented the report on Religious Literature and appealed to the Conference in behalf of THE CHRISTIAN SUN; and Rev. Herbert Scholz, chairman, made a concise and compelling report on Social Service. Shallow Well entertained the Conference in royal style, and we were advised that the attendance was large throughout. The apportionment sent up to the Conference being about equal to that of last year, and the spirit of fellowship and brotherly love prevailed throughout.

NOTICE.

It is requested that all ministers and laymen throughout the Southern Christian Convention, who know of anyone living in Richmond who belongs to the Congregational or Christian Church elsewhere, will send their name to Rev. J. E. McCauley, 3206 Grove Avenue, Richmond, Va.

AWAKENED FOR A PURPOSE.

Proverbs and maxims have long sung the praise of early rising; the following for example: "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise;" and another by Franklin: "If you rise late, you may trot all day and not catch up with your work." Turning to the words of the scriptures we read: "How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? When wilt thou arise out of thy sleep? Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep: so shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth, and thy want as an armed man." (Prov. 6:9-11.)

Sound sleep is a blessing, and not to be despised, nor treated as a thief of time, but too much of it may do just as what the wise man quoted above said it would. It may clog the wheels of life to such an extent that they do not turn with a purpose. We would like, if we could do it and get away with it, to really waken some folks up—physically, mentally and spiritually. We would like to shake them and show them what to see and hear and enjoy in this wonderful world of ours, to brush the cobwebs out of their heads and get the creaking wheels of the mind to turning, and get them to move into some of the rooms of the mental and spiritual realm long vacant.

But it is in the spiritual realm that the torpors of life do their most deadly work. "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light," writes Saint Paul to the Ephesians. To bring about such an awakening is one of the greatest tasks of the Church, co-operating with the power of God. To become a nominal Christian is a mere nothing compared with the real work of grace that starts with Bible awakening. To unite with a church as the terms of getting religion, to be baptized, to make formal profession of religion, to acquire some knowledge of doctrine and church polity—these are terms that churches, both Protestant and Catholic, find convenient to substitute for the life-giving faith that really begins a Christian life.

Consider the case of the Philippian jailer in Saint Paul's ministry. The earthquake awakened him, both physically and spiritually. Fearing that the prisoners had fled, and his life would be in danger or forfeited to the government, he was at the point of suicide. But when Paul's answer set him at rest on that matter, the cry of his soul was heard in the words: "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" He was awakened and ready to do business with God on the reasonable terms of the Gospel. Suppose Paul's answer had been given a few days before this event, and without the upspringing desire of soul that now crowded out all other considerations. No greater task is given to the Church than this leading of the people we would help through awakening and repentance into the saving grace of God by faith. The baptism of the jailer and the doing of good works followed in due course of time, (and in this incident speedily and the same night), but Paul was careful that these things did not get in the way of the definite salvation of the soul, and so should we. Doubtless church membership and a knowledge of Christian doctrines came on apace, under Paul's ministry, and through such a fine body as the Philippian Church.—Wesleyan Methodist.

NOTICE.

We are open for a pastor at Liberty (Vance) the coming year. We have a parsonage right near the church. We will want services on the third and fourth Sundays. We cannot pay as much as we have been paying, but will be glad to correspond with available pastor.

Respectfully,
J. D. NEWMAN, Secretary,
R. 6, Henderson, N. C.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

A RECEPTION was held on Saturday evening, November 14th, at the Congregational Church, honoring Dr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Vincent, on their forty-third wedding anniversary. All friends of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent, in the church and the community, were invited to come to meet them and offer congratulations.

MELBOURNE, FLORIDA. The new pastor of this church, Rev. Orville D. Ullom, recently received seven new members into the church. He reports that the congregations are steadily increasing and also that the attendance in Sunday School and Christian Endeavor meetings is averaging very well. The Christian Endeavor Society recently had a picnic at Vero Beach.

Miss HELEN DIZNEY, a nurse in our hospital at Taiku, Shansi, China, and who was a native of this region, spent some days recently in Chattanooga, Tennessee, speaking at the Union Church in East Lake and at the regular Thank-Offering meeting of the Woman's Guild at Pilgrim Church. Miss Dizney is visiting churches in the southwest where the churches are all interested in her work.

Prof. LESLIE PERCY, Piedmont College, took a car load of students out to Dawsonville Church on November 8th, and enjoyed a full house and fine hospitality. This church is out in the country, perhaps eight miles from Piedmont, but the enthusiasm was so marked that Prof. Percy dated the pastor-at-large for April 2, 1932, for another service. On account of the rural roads, services for the winter will not be attempted.

Rev. LAWRENCE STANLEY of the Barnesville Larger Parish, reports large evening congregations at all his churches: Fredonia 200, Meansville 150, Jones Chapel, Woodbury, 100, and Bethany 50. This is a fine average. During the last quarter a new service car has been secured by the combined efforts of the Extension Boards and Mr. Stanley, who turned in his old car and otherwise helped. It is a fine car and a fine parish in which to make it serve.

ALAN T. JONES will be ordained at the Whitehall Church, near Waycross, Georgia, November 29th. A forecast of the program indicates that the following ministers will share in the services: Rev. G. N. Smith, Rev. W. C. Carpenter, Rev. T. L. Richter, Rev. G. J. Pearson, and Rev. M. J. Deen. Miss Annie Campbell, extension worker, will also have a part in this service as well as being in charge of the Young People's Conference, which follows in the afternoon. It will be a great day in the history of this church.

Rev. GILBERT G. WALTON, a charter member of Pilgrim Congregational Church, Chattanooga, Tennessee, who has lived for some years with his wife at Graysville, died on November 2nd, and the funeral services were held in Pilgrim Church on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Walton was for sixteen years a field superintendent for the American Missionary Association, and planted Sunday Schools and churches throughout the mountain regions of Tennessee and Kentucky. He was ordained in the Congregational ministry in the church at Robbins, Tennessee. Multitudes of men and women remember his labors with affection and gratitude.

Rev. HOWELL E. NEWTON, aged minister, living at Atlanta, Ga., passed to his reward on November 10th. He was beloved by all who knew him. He was one of thirty-six farmer preachers of years ago. Only two of these are now living, Rev. G. N. Smith of Baxley, and Rev. Gideon Horn of Meansville. In the early days when Rev. J. F. Blackburn of Atlanta, was in charge of the work in Georgia, these men were among the earnest ministers who labored for the progress of the Kingdom of God. Mr. Newton has one son living, Rev. R. Esten Newton, pastor of the church at Pomona, Florida. He was present at the funeral, which was conducted by Rev. Carl Parker, pastor of the deceased. The men now living, who knew Mr. Newton in his early days, and the last days as well, will honor his memory. The younger ones will emulate his good works.

COLUMBIA, S. C., is very happy with Rev. F. L. Squires as pastor. The fact that the pastor has had the misfortune to break her arm the first week of her pastorate, did not retard the spirit of the people. Things moved right along, but all were glad when the bone was healed, and with full strength the work came up to normal and even surpassed it. The pastor missed only one Sunday's services. She preached every Sunday but the first. That demonstrates courage and fidelity worthy of emulation. Sixty-one calls have been made and the report is that conditions, industrial, home, school, etc., are very bad in this section of the city. Mrs. Squires is not only caring for this parish, but is called upon to serve with the Bishop of the Episcopal Church on the National Council for Prevention of War, and she also helped to draw the resolution for the Convention of the Disciples Church on Law Enforcement. She says: "There are many doors opening for me when my arm becomes stronger." Strength to your arm, says THE SUN.

FLORIDA EAST COAST ASSOCIATION.

The thirty-third annual meeting of the East Coast Association of Congregational Churches of Florida was held with the Union Congregational Church, Jacksonville, November 10th and 11th. Dr. H. Samuel Fritsch, the pastor of the entertaining church gave the address of welcome. The response was given by Rev. H. G. Fithian, pastor of the Community Church at Port Orange. The registrar and scribe of the association is Rev. R. Esten Newton of Pomona. Mr. Newton was called away in the midst of the meeting because of the death of his father in Atlanta, and Rev. Robert G. Harbutt of Penny Farms was appointed to serve during the balance of the session.

Delegates were present from all but two of the churches of the association. The sermon was preached by Rev. George D. Owen of Ormond, on the subject, "The Higher Friendship." Addresses were given by Rev. Frank E. Henry of New York, Field Secretary of the Congregational Extension Boards; Rev. Edwin C. Gillette, Superintendent for Florida; Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Director of Religious Education, speaking upon the subject, "Keeping Young with the Young People." Rev. Watson L. Lewis of New Smyrna, spoke upon "The Problem of Financing the Church in the Present Business Depression," and Rev. C. Author Lincoln of Daytona Beach, gave the closing message.

The devotional periods were conducted by Dr.

Fritsch of the Jacksonville Church, Rev. Benjamin Stock of the South Jacksonville Church, and Rev. Thomas H. Derrick, pastor of the Orange City Church.

Rev. C. DeW. Brower of Interlachen, was elected moderator, and Rev. R. E. Newton was continued as registrar. The committees appointed were as follows: Credentials, Rev. H. Samuel Fritsch, Rev. Watson L. Lewis and Rev. R. E. Brown; Revision of the Constitution, Dr. L. H. Keller, Rev. George D. Owen and Rev. C. A. Lincoln.

A committee consisting of the Rev. R. G. Harbutt of Penny Farms, Dr. Keller and Mrs. C. A. Lincoln of Daytona Beach, presented resolutions expressing appreciation for the hospitality shown by the Union Congregational Church, host for registrar, Rev. R. E. Newton, in the sudden death of his beloved and honored father, and also the following resolution touching upon present conditions and problems:

Resolved that the present national and world crisis and depression are a challenge to the Church and every Christian to prove to the world the sustaining and victorious power of faith, and to show that the invisible forces of the Spirit are equal to any and all emergencies that may arise in world affairs or individual life. There is nothing greater in earth or heaven than God, nor to faith in Him can there be overwhelming disaster or defeat.

Resolved that we are sympathetically aware of the anxiety and discouragement attending the work of our pastors and churches, under present conditions, commending to them the splendid Apostolic slogan, "Be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might"; and the fraternal promise of the Master, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the age." Times of financial stringency, or of stress and difficulty in service are no excuse for spiritual bankruptcy, but its opportunity.

Resolved that in the present national and international crisis, it is the duty of every citizen to subordinate all minor issues, political, industrial, religious or racial, and to stand solidly and unitedly behind our president and the national government in all sincere efforts to solve the critical questions confronting the world problems of unemployment, lawlessness, the liquor issue, reduction of armaments and the outlawing of war and the ushering in of world peace and brotherhood.

Resolved that there is imperative call for every good citizen to reprobate and help expose the scandalous mis-statements and lying propaganda by which it is sought to discredit the 18th amendment and its enforcement, especially the attitude of a large number of newspapers, short story writers, and cartoonists, who seem to be in a conspiracy to mis-represent the state of affairs. Notably we would repudiate the recent utterances and activities of the Mayor of Atlanta, as reported, misjudging facts and advocating discredited alternatives. Further we urge return to educational methods, teaching the hideous history of the liquor traffic and informing the million and more who will vote for the first time and who have never seen the open saloon, the damnable evils it wrought in the past.

Respectfully submitted,

THE RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE.

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE CHURCH SCHOOL.

Education is not enough. Our prisons prove that. The superintendent of the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta is reported to have declared awhile ago that if all the faculty, including the president, of a great university were to resign, he could fill every place with a qualified and competent teacher from the list of convicts then serving time. So far as education scholarship, culture are concerned, our great prisons can supply the persons necessary for the professorships and all the official positions of a great university. These convicts have the education, but they haven't the character, the Christianity, to direct their learning. Knowledge is power, but knowledge without control is worse than ignorance.

One hundred years ago that great man of learning, James Mill, declared that one century of universal schooling would solve all the major problems of the human race. But today, after the most marvelous educational century of all time, the human race has more difficult problems than ever before. Note some of these major problems:

Education has not solved, but made more acute, the problem of poverty. Education, it is true, has made the masses feel more keenly the problem of poverty and unemployment, but it has not solved the problem nor even modified it, and the world is talking about unemployment and poverty and feeling it today as never before. One hundred years of general public education has not solved but only complicated the problem of poverty.

Education has not solved the liquor problem.

It has brought it into bold relief, and there are many highly cultured and mentally trained and economically successful men who are antagonizing the laws of prohibition and protection to the home and the family and are crying for laws that would bring chaos and pandemonium."

A century of public education has not abolished war, it has only made war more deadly and exasperating. The World War was prepared, propagated and perpetrated by educated leaders in educated nations. Education, intellectual achievement, invented more deadly poisonous gasses, planes and guns than were ever used before for the destruction of man.

Surely mass education has not relieved the major problems for the masses. This does not argue against education, and is not evidence that we should abolish schools and close up colleges. It simply means that education must have the right dynamic; that education is not enough; that education must have control; that education must be directed; and that the greatest Educator that ever visited our planet was the Man of Nazareth, Who said of Himself, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life." Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, three of the greatest intellectual lights of all time, covered a total period of teaching of about one hundred and fifty years. The Teacher of Nazareth covered a period of three years, and yet His teaching has done more to enlighten the mind, to clarify the thinking, and to change the lives, hearts and destinies of men than the combined efforts of the three scholars named, or any other three, that ever taught. The Teacher of Nazareth not only had learning, but He had control; He not only had knowledge, but He had wisdom; He not only had culture, but He had character. Again we say education is not enough, only Christian Education is sufficient. And the only hope of Christian Education in our day, or in any day, is that in, of, and through the Church College. The Church College is left free to teach, to inculcate and to implant in the minds, hearts and lives of its pupils, the whole truth; the truth that makes men free; the truth that not only gives enlightenment, but inspiration; that gives not only knowledge, but wisdom; that not only produces power, but gives control. If poverty is ever abolished, if war is ever done away with, if the deadly work of alcohol is stayed in its devastating power, it will be because of the life and the teachings of the Man of Nazareth, which life and which teaching only the Church School is in position to give to the world. The Church College was never more essential than at the present. If our civilization is to be saved from crass materialism, and our culture and scholarship are to be directed to personal and social redemption and salvation, it must be because of the teaching, the life, the contribution of the church school.

THE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING.

When this issue of THE CHRISTIAN SUN reaches its readers, our annual day of Thanksgiving will be over, but the spirit of thanksgiving should still be not only in the air, but in the hearts and souls of our readers. We do not give thanks enough. We are not sufficiently grateful. We do too little to develop the grace of gratitude. All too frequently do we praise and thank God for love, for life, for loved ones, for friends, for the hands about us that help carry our load, for the souls around who comfort and inspire us, for the love that lifts, and for the life of love and service that thrills and edifies. Pain comes, troubles overtake us, tears flow, sorrows and agony ring the heart, but far beyond all these we have innumerable blessings and benefits, bounties and beatitudes, for which we should be thankful; for which we should give praise and thanks. With this day and period of Thanksgiving we can, if we will, easily and helpfully lend ourselves to thoughts of thankfulness and to the grace of gratitude. Can we not, all of us, join with that unknown author who penned these lines of life and love:

Thank God for Life!

E'en though it brings much bitterness and strife,
And all our fairest hopes be wrecked and lost,
E'en though there be more ill than good in life,
We cling to life and reckon not the cost.

Thank God for Life!

Thank God for Love!

For though sometimes grief follows in its wake,
Still we forget love's sorrow in love's joy,
And cherish tears with smiles for love's dear sake,
Only in heaven is bliss without alloy.

Thank God for Love!

J. O. A.

A MAN AND HIS BOOK.

The writer of these lines has recently been reading a book. He cannot say that every volume that comes to his table claims his time. The volume now in mind is not only a great book, but it is a masterpiece of a great mind, and a great man. Emerson said, "If you do this, you cannot do that; if you read this, you cannot read that; if your time is given to this, it cannot be given to that." That was Emerson's way of saying that we must choose with discretion and wisdom the books we would read and the way in which we would spend our precious hours. If our readers take the time to read a great many other books and spend their money for a great many volumes that are clamoring for their attention, they would possibly not read "The Present-Day Summons," by John Mott. Here, indeed, is a man; here, indeed, is a book. When one spends a few evenings with this book, one will rejoice that his evenings were spent at this and not at that; with this man and not with the other; over this volume and not over that. John R. Mott, world's statesman, advisor and counsellor of kings, of princes and of presidents; John R. Mott, scholar, author, world figure, known and honored in all nations and by multitudes of all peoples of the earth, has trained his seasoned pen, his great Christian power and passion upon this volume in which he sets forth the "World Mission of Christianity." In this book, Mott has done his best, condensing and concentrating here a whole life-time of study, observation, analysis and Christian experience. Twenty-one years ago, this same fruitful author and scholar wrote and published "The Decisive Hour of Christian Missions," which volume possibly did more than any other dozen volumes at the time to create a great forward movement in international brotherhood and understanding.

This present volume, whose full title is, "The Present-Day Summons to the World Mission of Christianity," will, we predict, be equally as effectual, if not more so, in giving impetus to the movement for international brotherhood and for exalting in the minds of the peoples and of the nations the power of the Cross, the call and challenge of our Lord, and the cause for which there are ten great chapters, each of them a volume in itself, with such topics as "World Trends;" "The Summons of Industry;" "The Summons of Race;" "The Summons to Serve;" and then coming to a grand and glorious climax in chapter ten, titled "The Leadership for this Momentous Day." Mott's contention is that the only hope of safe leadership is that of the Christ, and the light that gleams from the life offered on Calvary. The volume is published by the Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tenn., and if $2.50 can purchase more food for the soul, thought for the thinker, statesmanship for the politician, and truth for the seeker after truth, given to the public through the press in the past year or two years, we do not know where to find it. John R. Mott in this volume has made a contribution that will endure as a monument to one of the greatest Christian statesmen of our time.

HOW TO CHOOSE FOR LIFE.

The act of choosing is universal, and the result of choosing varies in numberless cases. Decision, selection, choosing, involves so much more than the average person seems to think. A few conditions enter into permanent choices. In some persons special gifts suggest what one's life-work should be; and life choices are the most important. Musical talent may suggest special work in the field of music, either as a side service or as a life profession. It would be foolish for a person with no music talent to try to be a music teacher, an organist, or a choir leader, or a soloist. Talent and conditions should be factors in choosing a musical field for service. The same is true in mechanics, teaching school, literature, medicine, nursing or any other field; or, as it is in Mark 14: 34, "to every man his work." There is ordinary work that requires no special gift or skill and, in such fields, any person can render useful and acceptable service. But in special lines of service as professions and callings, it is all important to find out what field God wants one to fill.

What is true in many fields is especially true and important in the ministry and, also, in marriage. Fancy or gain should never enter into life choices. A deep conviction generated in the heart by the Holy Spirit, weighed and decided, should determine choices. Without such guidance the ministry should not be entered. A good rule is, "not to go into the ministry, if you can keep out of it." The urge should be a deep spiritual conviction and the decision should include self-surrender to the will of God. In marriage, a similar course should be pursued and a life-surrender made. In such unions there would be permanence and peace.

The most difficult thing in life is to make wise decisions. Even in business, where judgment is most used, the choice of business, partners, investments, put to the test the capacity and the character of the agent. It is not safe to place too much confidence in others, though the world could not go and be safe without confidence in men and undertakings. The farmer must have confidence in soil, seed, seasons, and labor. Faith is at the bottom of all life. "Without faith, it is impossible to please Him." Heb. 11:6. And without faith, it is impossible to please ourselves. Life work based on an inner conviction of duty, and the exercise of a triple faith in God, self, and others, will make a life worthwhile in the service of man, the church, and God.

THE CROSS, A STUMBLING BLOCK.

The very nature of the cross was repulsive until Christ made the change. Death by way of the cross was not used by the Jews until a heathen nation had introduced it into the Jewish Sanhedrin. It was even more cruel in its pangs of death than the gruesome torture of burning at the stake which was adopted during the dark ages. The person condemned to death by the cross usually suffered from two to three days. It was adopted because of its long drawn-out, agonizing process of death. Such cruel methods were used only in case of the worst offenders of the law.

The usual custom of putting to death by the cross was as follows: The cross was made of timber just small enough to hold the offender. This made it more burdensome than the cross of large timbers which we usually see. The victim of the cross was laid upon it. His hands were tied, his feet nailed, and a pen was put in the middle of the cross or between the legs to partly support the body so that life might be prolonged and agony added to. When this was done, the cross was then raised and dropped into the socket with such a jolt that additional suffering was brought about. As an instrument of death the cross was detested by the Jews. It was not any the less horrible to the Romans. Let the very name of the cross be far away not only from the body of a Roman citizen, but even from his thoughts, his eyes and his ears. The Roman citizen was exempt from this form of death, it being considered the death of a slave. Such punishment was meted out for such crimes as treason, desertion while facing the enemy, robbery, piracy and sedition. Among the Romans, crucifixion was preceded by scourging, undoubtedly to hasten impending death. The victim then bore his own cross or at least the upright beam, to the place of execution. It was the strenuousness of the passion week with lack of rest, and his last night on earth and the sins of the world that bore so heavily upon his heart that caused Christ to faint underneath the cross. During the long hours of excruciating agony, no one administered a single thing to relieve the torture of physical suffering. The condemned man was left alone to die of starvation, thirst and writhing in pain. Think of the tropical heat pouring down upon the swollen wounds with their attending convulsions, added to the burden of pain till at last the bodily forces were exhausted and the victim sank to unconsciousness and death. "Such treatment brought about a suffering so frightful that, 'even among the raging passions of war, pity was sometimes excited.'" It was the horrors of a death like this, that made the cross of Christ a Stumbling-Block to all mankind.

DR. SMITH ACCEPTS.

Dr. Leon Edgar Smith, pastor of the Christian Temple of Norfolk, Va., and a graduate of Elon College in the class of 1910, has accepted the presidency of Elon College on certain definite conditions the details of which are to be worked out.

Dr. Smith read his resignation to the members of his church at Norfolk Sunday morning, November 22nd, at the 11:00 o'clock service. In his resignation he stated that to him the urgent call from the membership of the church at large was such that he would have to yield and assume the leadership of the college. It is understood that Dr. Smith will begin his work for the college immediately and that his first duties will be to head up and put into operation the $50,000.00 campaign which the church is undertaking to raise immediately for the college, and that Dr. Smith will come to the college and take active charge here next week.

Dr. Smith will be the fifth president of the college during its 42 years of operation, and succeeds Dr. W. A. Harper who had been president of the institution for the last 20 years and had resigned last spring. He was unanimously elected to the presidency by the Board of Trustees, of which Dr. E. L. Moffitt of Asheboro is the chairman, on October 20th at a meeting at Burlington following the extra-ordinary session of the Southern Christian Convention in that city on the same date. He has since that time been considering the matter and only today gave the college and the trustees his answer which had been postponed from time to time due to the reluctance of the members of his church to release him from the pastorate there.

Following his election the students and faculty of the college unanimously approved the choice of the board of trustees and sent Dr. Smith messages urging him to accept the post to which he had been called. The Christian conferences in North Carolina, and in Virginia, also, have passed resolutions calling upon him to accept.

His decision to do this was received at Elon with great satisfaction on the part of all those at the college and also on the part of those throughout the entire denomination who are vitally interested in the college.

As president of the Southern Christian Convention for many years, which body controls the college, Dr. Smith has been especially active in all phases of the institutional work of the church, and has for a long time been a member of the Board of Trustees of the College, and is at present chairman of the Business Administrative committee which has had direct charge of the operation of the college since last June. Dr. Smith was one of the leaders in the recent merger of the Christian and Congregational churches and his influence was largely responsible for the Southern section of the church so readily falling in line with the national movement for the merger.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Christian Orphanage, located at Elon College, N. C., is an institution now in its twenty-fifth year. It owns more than two hundred acres of land, three good buildings for children, a splendid barn, with good farm equipment, and a good dairy. It cares for over a hundred children, gives them home-like attention, sends them to school, and gives them work on the farm and in the buildings, gives them regular Sunday School and church opportunities and develops them into Christian and useful men and women. It is a lesson in benevolent service for those who visit the institution and see the orphanage in its regular work.

The income from all sources, Sunday Schools, churches, endowments, and personal friends, runs around thirty-five thousand dollars a year; and the operating expenses run a small sum below the receipts. It has been managed by Superintendent Charles D. Johnston in a very careful way, and he has been able to keep out of debt. That should encourage all who contribute to its support to continue their liberal contributions to the maintenance of this Christian institution. We are nearing the time for the annual Thanksgiving offering, and that should be prayerfully and liberally supported this year.

Mr. J. M. Darden and Superintendent Chas. D. Johnston, with Miss Breckfield, matron of the orphanage, and Mr. Wagoner, with the following children, Dorothy Miller, Ethel Rodgers, Jewell Saunders, Kathleen Miller, Doris Renigar, Ruby Long, and Rebecca Maynor, made a full day on Sunday, November 15, 1931, in the following Eastern Virginia Churches; singing and recitations by the girls accompanied by Miss Breckfield: Rosemont Christian Church, 9:45 A. M.; South Norfolk, 11:00 A. M.; Berea (Norfolk County), in the afternoon; and the Suffolk Church at 7:30 P. M. They had, also, given concerts at Holland and Windsor before Sunday. They were entertained by J. M. Darden at his club, and were taken to Newport News on Saturday to witness a ship launching.

The meeting in Suffolk on Sunday night was attended by five hundred people, who were much pleased with the appearance, recitations, and singing of the children. Before the concert, Superintendent Johnston delivered a brief but interesting address on the history and results of the orphanage; and, at the close, J. M. Darden expressed his appreciation of the large audience and the beautiful attention given to the concert. The audience rose to its feet as an expression of their appreciation of the fine entertainment given by Miss Breckfield and her eight well-trained girls. The impression, from start to finish, was religious and appealing; and the silence and attention of the large congregation expressed the surprise and the satisfaction which the children created by their simple, well trained voices, and movements to and from the platform.

At the close of the sweet service, most of the great congregation went forward to shake hands with the sweet girls and to express how much they had enjoyed the concert.

It was a good message from the orphanage to the congregation, and a spiritual return for what they have been giving to the support of this Christian institution. W. W. STALEY.

ROANOKE, ALABAMA.

I have just completed my first monthly round to my churches since conference. I think we have made a favorable beginning, and we have our program at each church ready for work.

I visited the church at New Hope the last fourth Saturday and Sunday, and had good services on both days. New Hope is the oldest church we have in Alabama, yet she has a fine group of young people who are trying to do things for the Kingdom. Brother E. C. Stevens is the faithful teacher of the young people's class, which has more than twenty names on roll. We have here a faithful Woman's Missionary Society, that can always be counted on to do their best to keep the missionary spirit alive in the church. A Christian Endeavor society affords the young people an opportunity for religious expression and service.

Last first Saturday and Sunday, we held services at Pleasant Grove Church. It was real cool weather, but we had a good service. This is one of our older churches, but it has an advantage over some others. Standing close by the building is a consolidated school building, which is largely patronized, and they have a fine body of teachers and pupils. The teachers are very loyal to our church and faithful workers in our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor. Surely this church has a fine future, and some day it will be a strong and useful church.

The third Sunday is our regular day at Roanoke, and we also preach here the first and fourth Sunday nights. Our little church here has grown to be a very busy church now. We number 100 members, 25 of whom were added last year. We have a very fine Sunday School and a Christian Endeavor society. There are also a Woman's Missionary Society, a band of Willing Workers and a cradle roll. Every department of the work seems to be growing, and the fellowship is fine. We are hoping that in the future we will have a nice brick church here, and if God permits we will. The interest here will demand it, for though our people are all laboring people, they are loyal.

On the second Sunday we met the church at Antioch in a fine service. A good crowd and good attention. The church, through Brother J. F. Beaird, senior deacon, gave us a royal welcome. We were glad to greet old friends and to make new ones. This church has a fine group of young people, and much interest is manifested by them in every department of work. A great future awaits them.

My churches have all adopted substantially the same program, as follows:

First. A committee to visit and report the sick and needy of the community.

Second. A committee to decorate the church building.

Third. A committee to arrange for the musical programs of the church.

Fourth. A committee to provide all missionary programs for the church.

Fifth. A committee on finance and plans.

These have all been appointed, and we are now ready to do business for the King.

STATE UNDERGRADUATE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION MEETS.

A representative group of thirty-eight Ministerial students, on May 10, 1930, from Elon College, High Point, Catawba, Guilford, and Lenoir Rhyne Colleges, met together at the First Methodist Protestant Church of High Point, N. C., for the purpose of forming a State Undergraduate Ministerial Association of North Carolina. We were successful in the attempt, and the association has been meeting annually since its formation.

The third annual meeting of the association was held at Catawba College, Saturday, November 14, 1931, the following being represented at the convention: Elon, Catawba, Guilford, and Lenoir Rhyne.

A very interesting program was rendered, which was greatly enjoyed by every member of the association present. The central theme of the program was "Conquest." The important figures that appeared on the program were: Rev. Banks Peeler, pastor of the Reformed Church, Salisbury, who led the morning devotionals; Rev. Milton Whitener, secretary-treasurer of Catawba College, who gave an address upon the subject, "An Age of Conquest,"; Dr. A. K. Faust, Dean of men at Catawba College, who led the evening devotionals, and Dr. D. E. Faust, professor of Bible and History at Catawba College, who gave an inspiring address upon the subject, "Winning the World for Christ."

At 6:30 o'clock, the association moved to the Yodkin Hotel of Salisbury, where the members of the association present greatly enjoyed a formal banquet. Following the banquet, an address was given by Dr. H. R. Omwake, new president of Catawba College, upon the subject, "The Conquest of Tomorrow."

The following officers for the incoming year were elected: J. Ray Dickens, president, Elon College; J. S. Higgins, vice-president, Guilford College; Porter Serwell, corresponding secretary, Catawba College, W. M. Howard, recording secretary, High Point College, and L. H. Jeffcoat, treasurer, Lenoir Rhyne College.

The association will meet with Guilford College next year, and its members are looking forward to a great year of growth and development for the association. J. RAY DICKENS.

"WHEN TO BEGIN."

The editorial in a recent issue of THE SUN, on the above subject, by Dr. Staley, is timely and touches a vital point. The best time for the local church to begin to raise the conference apportionment is at the first meeting after conference. It will be easier done and much more likely to be done than to wait till the close of the year.

There is another suggestion that might well be considered in this connection: When is the best time to begin to pay this apportionment? Churches that use the duplex envelope system and thus pay weekly their benevolent obligations, will find within a few months from $50.00 to $200.00, or more, in the benevolence treasury. Why should this money lie there, idly, until the end of the conference year? If there is no use for it in the conference till the end of the year, would not the conference treasury be a more logical place for this fund to accumulate?

It is the writer's opinion that if this fund could be sent to the conference quarterly, or at least semi-annually, churches would not be so hard pressed in making up large deficits at the close of the year. The temptation to make temporary use of these funds for other purposes, which sometimes results in permanent use, would largely be removed.

To send such money to the conference treasury semi-annually would be better than waiting till conference meets, and to send it in quarterly is better still. This plan would be of particular advantage to churches that raise their conference funds regularly through the year. It would seem that churches ought to have that privilege, and even to be encouraged by the conference authorities to use this plan.

The Scriptures teach us the best way of living, the noblest way of suffering, and the most comfortable way of dying.—Flavel.

Is it not possible that part of the cause, at least, for not raising the conference apportionment, is due to the plan of collecting it from the churches?

W. M. JAY.

MT. OLIVET (G).

The Christian Endeavor Society at Mt. Olivet held a very fine meeting on November 8th. The topic was "World Peace." The devotional reading was found in Isa. 2:2-4, and was read by Knight, Carroll Vernon and W. A. Crawford. The closing song was "Take the Name of Jesus with You." The speakers said in part, that if a man would devote as much time, thought and energy to building peace, and measures that make for peace, as he had for war, he would succeed in having peace, as he had succeeded in making war. Progress is achieved when we take an ideal such as the abolition of slavery or the liquor traffic, and embody it in our laws. The Hague Court of Arbitration offers an opportunity to settle disputes without war, and such disputes stay steeled, while war never settles anything. If our great country would spend as much to convert the other nations as it does on war, universal peace would soon come. See what the Bible says. Read Psalm 46.

LOUISE DYE.

NOTICE.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference will meet with the Christian Church, Waverly, Va., on Tuesday, December 8th, at 10:30 A. M.

A totally different and entirely unique program, in the opinion of the program committee, has been arranged, and it is hoped that a larger delegation than is customary will attend this session of the association. Matters of extreme importance are to be discussed and settled, and all members should, therefore, be present.

In making our gifts to God, may the Spirit of the Lord Jesus actuate us. He, "though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor," and has left us an example that we should follow. The giving which entails sacrifice has in it a wealth which increases the assets of God. "And He (the Lord Jesus) looked up and saw the rich men casting their gifts into the treasury, and He saw also a certain poor widow casting in thither two mites, and He said, Of a truth, I say unto you that this poor widow hath cast in more than they all, for all these have of their abundance cast in unto the offering of God; but she of her poverty hath cast in all the living that she had." (Luke 21:1-4.)

Poverty made a contribution more than they all, so after all there is a great compensation in poverty—if an honest penury—if we minister as this widow ministered to the Lord. Let it, too, be remembered that she gave her gift to a decadent temple worship, presided over by those who had stripped Israel of the last vestige of spirituality, and who promised nothing in return, yet she gave her all. How much more should we give to an institution rich in accomplishments and the guarantor of greater dividends.

Memberships in the association for men are $10.00 per annum, also for churches, classes and auxiliaries; for women and children, $5.00 per annum. See your pastor and pay such sum in membership dues at once if possible.

H. C. CAVINESS,
President.

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

A PRAYER.

Father of Love, Thou knowest our frames, of ourselves so faulty and incapable, yielded to Thee so susceptible of grace and victory and power. Through defenceless night whether of body or soul, Thou dost cover and keep each committed life for the day of endeavor unto whatsoever Thou hast appointed. More and more grant us clear insight into the chambers of Thy will and make us obedient. Showing us the leanness of nominal allegiance, lift Thy children into the realm of positive partnership with Thee for Thy dear Son's sake. Amen. "L."

MEN AND MISSIONS.

Some years ago we ventured to appeal to a certain well known pastor of a great metropolitan church for the names and addresses of prominent parishioners who might be induced to take the Missionary Herald.

He sent in a list of twenty-six—all women!

We gathered from this that either the noted divine thought it wiser to approach men indirectly through the women, or that in the last analysis the missionary work of his church was preeminently if not wholly a job for the women. In either case, the success of the enterprise, to his mind, lay in the hands of the feminine sex.

During the years intervening, we have often found ourselves wondering if he was not right after all. Certainly the women are today, as in the past, the sustaining force of the missionary movement. They keep things going at home; they are the life of the work abroad; they are said to raise much more than half of the money required for the task. Some believe, in fact, that if our women's organizations, home and foreign, had been left intact up to the present, the gifts from the living would not now be so many hundreds of thousands of dollars behind the receipts of the period before the mergers.

In all fairness we must place them far ahead of the men, and must continue to look to them for the material as well as spiritual goods required to bring us safely through this crucial period.

But what of the men?

Back in the days of the beginning of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, the refrain ran thus:

"In the world's broad field of action,
In the bivouac of life,
You will find the Christian soldier Represented by his wife."

If this was generally true twenty-five years ago, it is doubtless true today, though we seem to be better organized to refute the charge than we were then. Certainly there never was a time when the missionary enterprise was in such urgent need of the masculine mind and of masculine vigor as at the present.

And we believe that none recognize this better than the women themselves.—Missionary Herald.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS.

DECEMBER, 1931.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.

For the Women's Missionary Societies, the following program based on the little booklet, "Our Congregational-Christian Body at Work" is suggested. This little booklet contains all of the necessary information to carry out the four programs which it contains, and it may be obtained by addressing the Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., and enclosing 10c.

PROGRAM I.

"The General Council—The Head."

Worship Helps.

Hymn—"Faith of Our Fathers."

Scripture—Hebrews 11:13-16, 32-40; 12:1.

Prayer—Thanksgiving. For the faith of our early fathers, who dared face persecution, banishment, privation and death for religious liberty. "Oh God, may faith to us be given to follow in their train."

Talk or paper—"The Congregationalists."

Special Music.

Talk or paper—"The Christian Fellowship."

Third Speaker—"The General Council—The Head."

This would be unique if carried out as a wedding. Try it.

Hymn—"Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES.

"GOD AND THE CENSUS."

Theme—"The Perfect Gift."

I.—Business Period.

II.—Study Period.

Chapter III.—"There Had to be Schools."

1. Maggie Fleming and the Mission School.—Told by one of the young girls, pp. 30-34.

2. The Value of a Mission School—A member, pp. 35-38.

3. Leader may summarize chapter and tell when a mission school should withdraw.

III.—Worship Period.

1. Call to Worship—"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given."

2. Prayer.

3. Hymn—"Joy to the World."

4. Monologue—"The Christmas List." (Can be obtained from Lutheran Literature Department.)

5. Solo—"Holy Night, Peaceful Night."

6. Offertory.

7. Hymn—"Hark! the Herald Angels Sing."

8. Scripture—Luke 2: 4-20.

9. Benediction.

WILLING WORKERS' SOCIETIES.Theme—"The Christ Child."

1. Leader—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men."

2. —"And when they were come unto the house, they saw the young Child with Mary, His mother, and fell down and worshipped Him: and when they opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts, and frankincense, and myrrh."

3. Song—"Joy to the World."

4. White Gift Program:

(a) "White Gifts for the King."

(b) Christmas Plays. (This contains three Christmas plays.)

5. Benediction—The Pastor.

NOTE.—As December is the month for the Juniors to pack a box for the Christian Orphanage, it is suggested that a special program be given at the Sunday School hour. Have gifts brought at this time. Copies of the programs referred to above may be gotten from the Woman's Mission Board, C. P. A. Bld'g, Dayton, Ohio.

MISSIONARY NEWS ITEMS.

MRS. W. M. JAY, Editor

The following news from Georgia is very encouraging and shows that they are an earnest group of women with plenty of determination.

This splendid society was organized on September 29, 1930, in the Vanceville Church, with 13 charter members, and has 16 at present. They have used the programs outlined by the general board, which appeared in the news bulletin as long as it was published, and those outlined in the "Guest Book." As study books they used "The Dawn of a New Day," "My Church and Its Widening Horizon," and "A Cloud of Witnesses."

They have had regular meetings every month, with a good attendance, and they are succeeding in enlisting the help and interest of the men.

The total amount raised for the year was $51.04.

This society is really a Missionary-Aid Society, for they do a great deal of work for their local church besides the missionary part. Mrs. W. A. Hand is the wide-awake secretary and is pushing the work with all of her might. We will expect to hear more from this society in the future, and hope this item will stimulate other societies to write to THE SUN.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

We are a Missionary Society organized in the Vanceville Church, and we want our "men-folks" all to join. If they are interested, it will help us out so much, as we do not like to work alone.

If the men could only see the great help that they could be and how much their contribution, their kind words and suggestions and advice would help, they would aid us in helping send "the gospel to all nations." This is one of Christ's commands, and so there is work for each of us to do. If we all work together, we can do much for our Lord, for in unity there is strength. Let us use our every talent and obey the Master's command.

We are very small in number and cannot do much, but the Lord will bless each willing hand, if we will awake from slumber and do our part.

MRS. W. A. HAND.

VICTORY OVER IRRITATIONS.

Life on earth would not be worth much if every source of irritation were removed. Yet most of us rebel against the things that irritate us, and count as heavy loss what ought to be rich gain. We are told that the oyster is wiser; that when an irritating object, like a bit of sand, gets under the "mantle" of his shell, he simply covers it with the most precious part of his being and makes of it a pearl. The irritation that it was causing is stopped by encrusting it with the pearly formation. A true pearl is, therefore, simply a victory over irritation. Every irritation that gets into our lives today is an opportunity for pearl culture. The more irritations the devil flings at us, the more pearls we may have. We need only to welcome them and cover them completely with love, that most precious part of us, and the irritation will be smothered out as the pearl comes into being. What a store of pearls we may have, if we will!—Selected.

Another Challenge.

The Christian Church has offered a challenge. It has challenged a man to give up his life work—the work for which he has studied, labored and prayed—to accept a post of leadership in another field. It has challenged his local church to release him to the church at large—to sacrifice their interest, that larger interests may be satisfied. The challenge has been accepted. On Sunday, November 22nd, Dr. L. E. Smith made the following statement to his congregation:

"After many sleepless hours, much prayer and great anxiety, I have come to a decision. I will accept the Presidency of Elon College, conditioned by the support of the Church, at large.

The Board of Trustees of the College has elected me, and urged my acceptance; every conference in the Southern Convention, meeting since the Board's election, has endorsed their action; individuals throughout the Church have urged me to accept; the College faculty and student body have pledged their united support.

"In response to the universal call of my Church at large, I offer to serve as President until January 15th. If, at that date, the efforts, the energy, and the gifts on the part of the Church and the friends, warrant, I will resign as Pastor of the Christian Temple and continue as President; otherwise, I will return to the pastorate.

L. E. SMITH.

Now a challenge is offered the Church. Will we accept it. There is no time for quibbling. We must answer "Yes" or "No"! The Southern Christian Convention has called upon its constituency to raise not less than $50,000.00 in the next fifty days. (We should raise $100,000.00.) Are we going to do it? Less than $2.00 each—who will dare say it cannot be done? Certainly there are 500 men or women in the Christian Church and among Elon's Alumni who will give or guarantee $100.00 now! Dr. W. W. Staley has started the campaign with a gift of $1,000.00. Who will follow?

Pray for your College, and then give as God directs you. What it needs is YOUR gift, whether it be large or small. It is your College, and the future of your Church calls for your sacrificial support. Will you meet the challenge!

ARMISTICE DAY ADDRESS.

By THOMAS COOPER, ESQ.

Elon College Auditorium, November 11, 1931.

Thirteen years ago today, the Krupp guns of Germany ceased firing. Thirteen years ago today marked the release of pent-up emotions such as the world had never before felt and known. We know from history that nations and peoples had theretofore experienced the end of wars, bloody and costly wars, and had felt the thrill which comes to the victor or the despair which was the lot of the vanquished. But, for my own part, if I might allude to it, I found little in the demonstration on Armistice Day, thirteen years ago, that marked gleeful victory or age-old anticipation of reducing to practical servitude the defeated. Rather sensed about me joyous relief at the end of a world-wide conflagration. I have often wondered about and wished for first hand knowledge of the demonstrations in our own country that I might compare them with the demonstrations abroad.

Whenever I have asked concerning the public state of mind at home preceding and at the end of the World War, I have received answers that emphasized the pride of our people in the no unimportant part that the American army played in bringing the war to an end. I was told of the excitement and celebrations following news from the front concerning the advances made by the Americans in the Argonne Forest, at St. Mihiel, and through the Hindenberg Line. The immediate families of some two million of us made of us dashing heroes rather than war weary and worn soldiers. That, of course, was natural, and I shall never forget the glad welcome that was extended us by our people; but neither will I ever forget the scene upon which I looked, thirteen years ago today, at about this hour, on one of the principal streets of the City of Lyon, France—a seething tumult of people, literally gone mad for the moment, with the snap of the strain of four years of modern warfare, which they had lived and breathed every day. It was not across the sea from them; it was daily upon them, and thousands had become physical, mental and spiritual wrecks. And I am speaking now of civilians only.

May I mention another contrast? It was my fortune to be among the first American troops returned to a southern harbor, Charleston, S. C., from where we proceeded to Charlotte, two days after landing, for a parade and celebration. As we marched down the streets, I was on the extreme left flank of my column, near the curb, and I observed from the corners of my eyes the sea of faces there. There was something in the air not wholly understood, for while the bands played and there was cheering, a prevalent stillness filled the air, and one face after another passing by my own, portrayed a questioning look. Finally, a lady ejaculated aloud, and quite near my ear, "Please, why don't they smile?" As I have said in effect, we knew of little about which to smile, other than the wholehearted and generous welcome that awaited us here and the relieved faces "over there."

Perhaps we, too, as Erich Maria Remarque expresses it in "All Quiet on the Western Front," had become disillusioned with the first downpour of shell fire. Perhaps we, too, had barely escaped, though our service was comparatively short to the service of the European troops, from that generation of men, who even though they may have escaped its shells, were destroyed by the war. And so it is that the theme of any remarks that I might make on Armistice Day can be said to be likened to and in emulation of the noted address of Private Peat, called "The Inexcusable Lie."

I do not want to be gloomy, merely to be different, perhaps, on a day which we have been taught should be gladsome. I am not a "peace at any price" propagandist. I am in perfect harmony with celebrations on days such as this, when we celebrate peace rather than victory, for I have seen enough to be thankful rather than glad.

Private Peat, internationally known lecturer, was among those Canadians who first saw Death stalking in the form of poisonous gases at Ypres, where later I witnessed the hundreds upon hundreds of skeletons submerged in the moat surrounding the western limits of the city. He calls the "inexcusable lie" the misguided teaching of a younger generation that warfare is filled with glamour and romance, and he holds that wars must end where they begin—in the classrooms of the world. I subscribe to this belief, for I well remember my own ambition to become a soldier, I remember my history book filled with colorful and spectacular episodes of courage and gallantry, and a history book which did not record, and would not have recorded any war in which my country might have been the aggressor. I remember the beautiful poems of self-sacrifice, the painting of the dying hero with a fresh white shirt, opened at the neck, holding a silk flag of his country, a sister of mercy kneeling beside him while upon his lips there murmured a last endearing term to a loved one. My friends, they don't die that way, as more than a million of us in this country alone well know. If the truth would be known, the painting should be made over to depict the following: The hero has not faced a man in hand-to-hand combat, his skill and prowess has not been tested in a spectacular engagement, but unseen, and unheard until too late, a fragment of shrapnel has torn away a limb or found a vulnerable spot with a dull, sickening thud; he falls into a muddy shell hole or among prickly barbed wire or among the already dead. He has not shaved for a week, has had no bath for a month, his clothes are dirty and torn, and bloody and filled with vermin, he has a rifle or revolver in his hand, which he has had no chance to use, and he dies with a curse upon his lips.

If you can find glamour and romance in helplessly watching a seventeen year old boy coughing up his lungs in clots, if you can find heroism in observing a muscular athlete blown literally to bits or gone stark mad and reduced to blubbering like an idiot with shell shock, then, and only then, will you be able to retain a belief that warfare holds promise of high adventure. Most particularly is this so with regard to modern warfare, and it is with modern warfare that we are now concerned.

I have no quarrel with the history of those undoubted deeds of heroism and marked courage of an earlier age. At that time it was quite probable that the winner of an engagement was that man or division of men fired with the zeal of a righteous cause, to make them strong and overpowering in personal combat. The savage charge of cavalry against malignant invaders, man against man, is a picture of rare courage and the will of self-sacrifice. And at that time it was necessary. The picture of a brave stand by an early settler against a horde of Indians, and in defense of his family is not to be despised. But we have passed the age when self-defense is an every day affair, and we have entered a season of law and order. Moreover, should we not be disposed to observe law and order, science has advanced to such extent in modern warfare as to prove the futility of further engagement. I subscribe to the belief that right makes might, but I don't want to be armed with only robes of purity, while the other fellow has a Browning automatic rifle. Fortunate is he today in modern warfare whose country is possessed of the most munition plants and natural resources, for man power alone is only incidental to operation of bombing planes, submarines, the continual bombardment of 20-inch guns of unbelievable range, and the spread of disease and poisonous gases.

The only incident about which I heard in the World War where the older methods prevailed is the story of the infantryman of one of our colored divisions. It is said that this outfit changed the order of things one morning as it prepared to go over the top. The soldiers of color became somewhat apprehensive as the zero hour drew near, for they were unschooled in the use of the Springfield rifle and bayonet. As the charge began, they are said to have frantically discarded their rifles and draw forth their classic weapon—the razor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

DECEMBER 1, 1931.

HOW JESUS REVEALS GOD'S LOVE.

The Program.

Piano Prelude—Music to "God is Love, His Mercy Brightens."

Call to Worship—John 3:16.

Hymn—"Love Divine."

Psalm 23 in unison.

Story—"Where Love Is, There God Is," written by Tolstoy.

Sentence Prayers.

Scripture—John 14:1-11.

Discussion of the Topic.

For that part of the program the leader should make preparation well in advance. Ask members of the society to be prepared to speak on the following topics: "The Characteristics of the God of the Hebrew Nation;" "Jesus' Concept of God as a Loving Heavenly Father;" "What Jesus Taught About God's Love;" "How Jesus Revealed God's Love by His Own Living;" "God's Love to Man;" "God So Loved That He Gave." Brief well prepared talks on these topics will pave the way for a general discussion to be entered into by the whole group.

Closing Hymn—"There's a Wideness in God's Mercy." If the tune is not known, use tune for "What a Friend." During the singing of this hymn, just before the stanza beginning with "If our love were but more simple" ask those who wish to reconsecrate themselves to living more earnestly the simple life of trusting love as Jesus revealed that our lives should be, to signify it by the uplifted hand. Pause just a moment for this, and continue the song.

Prayer of Consecration, closing with the Mizpah in concert.

Daily Reading.

November 30, Matthew 9:35-38.

December 1, John 6:1-14.

December 2, John 3:13-21.

December 3, John 13:1-5.

December 4, Matthew 20:20-28.

December 5, Romans 5:6-11.

Sunday School Lesson

ROME AND BEYOND.

LESSON X.—DECEMBER 6, 1931.

LESSON TEXT: II. Timothy 4:6-18.

GOLDEN TEXT: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith."—II. Timothy 4:7.

Introduction.

Imprisonment and chains could fetter the body of Paul and check the free missionary work of the great apostle. The spirit of the man still followed the missionary task to the limits of his ability to promote it. He could still direct the work, through the workers who visited him and through letters that he sent to the various fields. A prisoner at Rome wielded an influence that was felt far beyond.

The Pastor's Heart.

Paul had a true pastor's heart. The shepherd Psalm 23, shows the pastor's care of his flock, and the appreciation of the sheep for the pastor's care. Jesus saw the people scattered as sheep not having a shepherd. He longed to care for them and guide them. He is the Good Shepherd, He has the pastor's heart. The true pastor joyously and sacrificially serves because he loves his flock and seeks their welfare. The church always needs men with the pastor's heart of love and service.

Pastoral Instruction.

The life mature in pastoral love and service is qualified to give sound pastoral instruction. It is this kind of advice that has been assembled in the Pastoral Epistles, Timothy and Titus. This valuable instruction has endured through many centuries. The pastoral charge in II. Timothy is generally used in ministerial councils today.

A Glorious Finish.

Compare Samuel's defense of his ministerial functions of honesty and fairness, as described in I. Samuel 12:1-5. Compare Ezekiel's moral responsibility of the watchman in Ezekiel 3: 16-21. See also Jeremiah's fidelity to his prophetic function, Jeremiah 20:7-13, and notice Malachi's standard for the priestly office, Malachi 2:1-9.

Jesus finished the work God gave him to do. Paul finished the course. But it was a glorious life, a glorious service, and a glorious finish for these ministerial leaders because they had been true to their charge, they had kept the faith. They finished the course with spiritual integrity and honor. Such living and service are immortal. The values inherent are too great to perish with a worn out or martyred body.

Enduring Qualities.

Study the paragraphs referred to above and find the qualities that made the characters great and their souls immortal. Why do they, being dead, still speak? Why did the mission cause go forward and continue more vigorously now than ever before. Enduring moral and religious values necessitate the universal Kingdom of God. The faith that is kept endures eternally—beyond space and beyond time.

ARMISTICE DAY ADDRESS.

I repeat that we have entered an age of law and order that needs must become world-wide. Heretofore, as invention and improvements have brought the ends of the earth closer together, by swifter mode of travel and communication, man first policed communities, then states, then nations. The time has come when there must exist a world police force, through the means of an international court, call it the League of Nations, the World Court, or whatever you may. I hold that today a nation may be an outlaw and a menace to society the same as an individual, and should likewise be subject to a higher tribunal and discipline. I further hold that the outbreak of another international war is an admission of the utter failure of statesmanship, and example of inexcusable stupidity, and the decline of civilization. The mailed fist of a nation among the people of the world must pass as did the hip-armed gunman when our western frontier became civilized. And it seems to me that if we truly celebrate Armistice Day, it is to recall the end in view for which so great a sacrifice was made, with renewed conviction that henceforth it be not only foolhardy, but impossible for any nation to precipitate a world wide massacre, not alone of the combatants, but of innocent women and children as well.

Upon those of you now enrolled in institutions of higher learning will particularly devolve this duty of avoidance. You will go out from here and choose your vocation, settle and become an influence in the community in which you reside. Once that you and those who follow after you have learned not only the lack of romance and glamour in modern warfare, but have realized the colossal stupidity, not to mention the stupendous cost in the way of taxation for years to come; once you and those who follow after you have found the call for the romance, courage and heroism in peacetime pursuits, rather than the call of adventure believed to exist in camouflaged carnage and butchery, the question will be solved.

TITHING IN HARD TIMES.

Now you can plan A Tithing Campaign and save money by using the church bulletins we furnish, including one especially written for this hour: "Tithing in Hard Times." The Laymen Bulletins, now 32 in number, are printed in the regular two-page church bulletin size, with two pages blank for your own Bulletin material. This saves one-half of your printing cost, not counting cost of paper.

Send for price list and samples, which include pamphlet, "Teaching the Church to Tithe," containing full directions for a ten weeks' program of silent, church-wide education at trifling expense. Non-profit, non-sectarian, non-legalistic, but simple, clear and workable.

Please mention THE CHRISTIAN SUN, also give your denomination.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

A GOOD CITIZEN.

LESSON: Romans 13:1-7.

"The powers that be are ordained of God." Verse 1.

The first duty of the government is justice, and a good ruler administers the law without partiality, wielding a strong arm for those that are oppressed, and for the execution of judgment on evil doers.

Such a government is a great blessing. Perhaps none of us can ever know how much we owe our God for good and just magistrates and other persons in authority. Pray for them.

Prayer—Dear Lord, help us to do our part in obedience to Thy laws, and for Jesus' sake to obey the laws of the land. Give us the true spirit in all things. Amen.

TUESDAY.

MEMBERS OF A COMMON WEAL.

LESSON: Matt. 17:24-27.

"If any man will come after me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." Matt. 16:24.

Jesus being the Son of God, it was no more His duty to pay tribute to the temple, which belonged to His Father, than it is the duty of a royal prince on earth to pay tribute to the king. But Jesus pays tribute nevertheless. This is heaven's example of loving, humble subjection to habits of citizenship which strengthens social order. Jesus thus made himself a member of human society in the common bond of a common citizenship.

So is every one who wishes to be more than Christians in name only. True Christianity is willing to share the common weal and bear its share of the burdens of society.

Prayer—Dear Lord, draw us after Thee and train us to follow after Thee. Help us to put on Thy mind in all things and to follow Thee faithfully. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

RELIGION AND STATE.

LESSON: I. Tim. 2:1-7.

Paul here teaches us that one of the first duties of all Christians is to pray for all men. As one God embraces us all in His love, so we are to love all, and pray for them with trust in Him who loves us. It is in that oneness that we are part and parcel of one another, a unit with all men.

"To be sure, the government does not concern itself with the Gospel, and does not care for souls," and yet the salvation of souls is the ultimate purpose of the civic order of the world, and this is the kingdom of God. It is for this reason that Paul declared: "We must pray for those in authority, that we may lead a quiet, godly and honest life, for this is pleasing in the sight of God, who will have all men to be saved, and to come into the knowledge of the truth." In this,

He establishes a relation of course and effect between civic government and a godly life. He who does not take the Christ Spirit into his relation to the laws that govern him, goes directly against God and violates the love which he should have for the salvation of souls, thus he burdens the Kingdom of God.

It is one of the highest expressions of love that we honestly and earnestly are interested in the welfare of others and honestly lay before God their needs, as it were our own.

Prayer—We thank Thee, O Lord, for Thy wisdom and goodness. We thank Thee for the good government which Thou hast given us, and we humbly ask Thee to bless it, preserve it, and strengthen it unto every good work. Give us grace, we pray Thee, to live in all godliness and honesty; make our lives acceptable in Thy sight. In Christ's name we ask it. Amen.

THURSDAY.

LEST WE FORGET.

LESSON: Psalm 116:10-19

"I will take the cup of salvation." Verse 11.

We have a thousand things for which to thank the Lord, but we forget to do it. In times of peace and prosperity, we fall into a sense of security; and when we are in danger, we are always prone to put our trust in human strength, and failure follows. It is then necessary for us to learn the lesson of trust by some affliction falling upon us, as it did upon David. May we be like him likewise in this: when chastened and afflicted turn to God all the more.

Prayer—O Lord God, let us never complain, and let us never put our trust in the power of man, but let us believe in Thee, take the cup of salvation, call upon thy name, thank Thee and bless Thee. Amen.

FRIDAY.

FAITH MADE COMPLETE.

LESSON: Matt. 9:18-26.

"Be not afraid, only believe."—Mark 5:36.

To us, death is certain. So long as thoughts are contracted by laws of reason, we must surrender to death unconditionally, whether one be good or bad.

To Jesus, however, death is a sleep, from which He is able to awaken us at will. Through faith, only are we able to grasp this. But we can do it as well as others have done it. It was blind faith that brought the woman to Jesus believing that she would be made whole. It was sheer faith that led the ruler to Jesus believing that if He would come and touch his daughter, she would be restored.

Has any man who believed in the Lord and put his trust in Him implicitly, been deceived? We are talking about that faith not born of reason but faith that trusts in the Lord's word and builds on His promises without seeing.

It is in this faith that death is not death, no matter how much we feel to the contrary. Death is the gateway to life, and the Lord holds us fast; there is no power that can separate us from Him.

Of course, it is to be admitted that faith in a sinful world, has many infirmities, but can it not be strengthened in the Lord? The faith of the woman wavered, but she came to Jesus just the same. Jairus was on the point of despair and dark unbelief, but assured by Jesus to "be not afraid, only believe," he came on to Him.

Neither sin nor distress should keep us away from the Lord; but rather let these things, yea, even our weaknesses, impel us to come to Him.

Prayer—Lord, let thy Holy Spirit enlighten us with His gifts. Help thou our unbelief. Help us to come wholly. Amen.

SATURDAY.

PAUL'S PRAYER.

LESSON: Cal 1:9-14.

"Worthy and faithful in every good work."

Faithful children of the Lord are delivered from the kingdom of darkness; they are new creatures dwelling in the kingdom of the Son of God; their thoughts, their intentions, and their dwelling are in heavenly peace. For this they give thanks and rejoice. What they lack in this world they shall receive in Glory. Such is their hope, for the Father hath made them "partakers of the inheritance of the saints" of His realm.

It is hard to enter upon such a life, perhaps, but a beginning means an increase in godliness; and the spirit of God gives wisdom and understanding as his children go along. He enables them to see at greater depths in the mystery of Christ and religion. He adds more strength that they may walk in His way; and He anoints the eyes to see more clearly. Thus they are enabled to "walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, fruitful in every good work, knowing God," and walking with Him.

Prayer—Dear Lord, we are, alas! too far away from thee. Stretch out thy strong arm to us and help us to lead a holy life. Amen.

SUNDAY.

A NEW HONOR.

LESSON: Jno. 6:37-40.

"All that the Father giveth me shall come to me." Verse 37.

Every one who comes to Jesus and abides with Him is a gift from the Father to the Son, for "no man come to me," saith He, "except the Father draws him." Had you thought what an honor it is that the Father bestows upon His Son through the gift of His children? Matthew records Jesus as saying "He shall send his angels, and they shall gather together His elect." And Paul declares that nobody "shall lay anything to the charge of His elect;" and Peter affirms that "we are the elect according to the foreknowledge of God." This gift of God to His Son, in true children, reflects that election of ours and affords us wonderful assurance of our salvation in Him. In this, salvation is made perfect in us and we have everlasting life. It is in this that "death is swallowed up in Victory."

Prayer—Dear heavenly Father, draw us to thy Son, and give us grace and power to believe the love with which thou hast loved us, that we may overcome our unbeliefs and sins, and the fear of death. O God, thou knowest our sinfulness, our waywardness, our foolishness; have mercy on us, forbid it, steady, persistent strivings for the mastery in Christian living every day, and perfect thou our holiness in the day of reckoning. Amen.

A Christian worker in the mountains of Kentucky found a man imprisoned for murder. He tried to reach his heart with the gospel story, but without avail. On one visit the man spoke of his little boy. The evangelist saw his opportunity. "What would you be willing to do for that child of yours?" he asked. Like a flash came the answer, "I'd stand between that boy and hell!" "Well," quietly replied the other, "that's exactly what Jesus has done for you." Do you want to know what salvation means—the mystery of Christ's substitution? There you have it.—Ex.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THE GREAT FOUNDATION.

By REV. M. A. MATTHEWS, D. D.

"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Every man's work shall be made manifest for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."—I. Cor. 3:11 and 13.

The essential thing in every superstructure is the foundation. This text is discussing primarily the work of the Gospel teacher and preacher. It has a general application which includes the work of every Christian, the life and character of every believer. Whether you apply it strictly to the teacher and preacher, or whether you include all that could possibly be included under its application, there is one essential fact in both applications; namely, the foundation. The text plainly states that no other foundation has been laid, no other foundation can be laid, and no other foundation ever will be laid. There is but one foundation.

The text also teaches that two kinds of superstructures may be erected upon this one essential foundation.

First.—The superstructure in which indestructible materials are used, the materials corresponding with the foundation. The foundation, the materials, the labor, and the future of that building are indestructible. They will stand the test. The flames cannot reach them.

Second.—A superstructure built of combustible materials may be erected upon this foundation. The foundation will last, and therefore the builder will be saved and escape as by fire, but the superficial work, the faulty material and the straw mansion will be destroyed.

Third.—These two figures, when applied to the preacher and teacher, present very convincing arguments in favor of the fundamental course of teaching and preaching. The materials classified as gold, precious gems, precious stones, marbles and other such solid material represent the great doctrinal truths, having their inherent existence in the person and life of Jesus Christ. The stubble, straw and superficial materials mentioned represent the false doctrines, false interpretations and erroneous deductions from Scripture and from the life of Christ. They shall be destroyed.

Fourth.—The important consideration is the foundation, which is the Person of Christ—Christ Himself. The determining factor in Christianity is the Person of Jesus Christ. That is the absolute and essential thing. Christianity is not a system of doctrine, nor is it a beautifully wrought out ethical code. It is the Person of Jesus Christ. Everything about Christianity depends upon that Person.

And He is the Son of God—not a dead personality, but the living second member of the Trinity. Christianity does not exist because of the teachings of Christ, but because of His Personality. It does not exist because He was a marvelous character and became a historical force, but because He is the Divine Person. That is the distinguishing, unique factor about Christianity. He is the Son of God, the living, pulsating Son of God.

Christ is the Redeemer because He is the Son of God. He did not come as a prophet to foretell God or to tell us about God, but He came as God—the Eternal Son of God—to redeem us.

Our redemption is essentially in the person of Christ and our experiences are due to His living personality. As prophet He brings to us in glorious manifestation the Personality of God. As priest, He stands between us and God, offering Himself as a sufficient sacrifice for our redemption. As king, He is Lord and Master, the absolute sovereign of our redeemed souls and lives. He shall reign, absolutely!

This is the foundation, the eternal, everlasting, and only foundation on which we must build and on which we must rest, if our lives, characters and superstructures are to stand the test.

Let us study the superstructure.

First.—The Church. Jesus Christ announced that He would build the Church on Himself as the eternal rock, and that the gates of hell should not prevail against it. The Church, the real body of Christ, is being built by Christ Himself. It is being erected upon Him and out of His own Personality as the essential and everlasting material. It is impossible for the Church to be destroyed or for any member of His Body to be destroyed. Christ will present it to His Father as His masterpiece. It will stand the fires of all ages, and the last conflagration shall not touch it.

The same thing is true of the individual church whose members are in the Body of Christ. There is but one foundation for the local Church; namely, Jesus Christ. A Church organization is not a mere aggregation of people; it is a composite body of saints. If the local Church is to exist, and to everlastingly exist, it must be of Christ, and built upon Him as its foundation.

Second.—The Teaching. There is but one subject to be taught; namely, Jesus Christ. There is but one great fact to be presented; namely, Jesus Christ. There is but one great doctrine to be expounded; namely, the Deity of Jesus Christ. It is not philosophizing about Christ, but it is presenting the fact of Christ that makes real preaching.

What are the essential and controlling doctrines, resting in Him, to be taught?

(a) The pre-existence of Christ; He exists with the Father in all the glory of the Godhead.

(b) His Incarnation; born of the Virgin Mary. His virgin birth was possible only on the ground of His pre-existence, His Deity and the fact that He was to be God manifest in the flesh. His virgin birth was essential.

(c) His Crucifixion; Justice had to be satisfied. The moral government of God had to be sustained. Mercy had to be released.

To satisfy justice, sustain the moral government, punish sin, release mercy, and redeem the criminal all in the same act required the supernatural Personality of Jesus Christ. The Crucifixion was logical.

(d) The Resurrection was the confirmation of His pre-existence, of His Incarnation, of God's acceptance of His crucifixion, and it was a guarantee that He would be received at the right hand of God as our mediator; and that He would return for us.

(e) The Ascension was a divine promise of His mediatorial office.

All these things are possible only because Jesus Christ is who He is; namely, the Eternal Son of God.

Justification by faith is not a doctrine, it is an act. It rests entirely upon belief; no belief in a historical statement about Christ, but in the Personality of Christ, in Jesus Christ as the Second Person of the Trinity, in Jesus Christ the Second Person of God, in whom the power of the Godhead rests. That is the reason salvation rests exclusively upon belief, not upon works, (Continued on page 15.)

THE CHRISTIAN SUN

1536 East Broad Street, - - Richmond, Virginia

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

The children in the Singing Class have had a number of enjoyable trips since they have been visiting the churches, but they had one the week-end of November 15th that they will never forget. We were invited to give a program at the Holland, Virginia, Christian Church on Friday evening. Mr. J. M. Darden met us there at six o'clock, we had dinner together, rendered the program at 7:30, and then Mr. Darden carried us to his camp on the James River, where we were entertained during our entire trip.

On Saturday, Mr. Darden carried us in his nice gasoline boat near the shipyards at Newport News, where the children got the thrill of seeing a ship launched. This was something new to all of us.

We fished several hours which was a thrill to the children, as none of them had ever been on the water before. Your superintendent caught one. Mr. Darden, being an experienced fisherman, caught the most. We visited the light house which was interesting to all of us. It was a day full of joy and delight to all of us, and Mr. Darden left nothing undone that could be done to give us a real good time.

Saturday evening at 7:30, we gave a program at Windsor Christian church. Sunday we gave a program at Rosemont at 9:45; South Norfolk at 11:00; Berea at 3:00 and Suffolk Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock. We had a splendid audience at each church, and we were never more graciously received than we were by all the churches we visited. Mr. Darden gave us royal entertainment at his beautiful camp, and all of us only wished we could have spent the entire week. Monday morning we visited for a short time in Mr. Darden's home and also his office, then we left for home.

It was a most happy trip from the start to the finish.

Thanksgiving: 105 children in the Christian Orphanage; $10,000.00 for the Thanksgiving offering; What part will your church play? What part will you play? Let your conscience be your guide.

FOUNDER'S WEEK CONFERENCE.

The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, announces that its Founder's Week Conference will be held during the first week of February, 1932. Only twice in thirty years has this date been allowed to pass without the holding of this notable gathering of ministers, Bible teachers and interested laymen—once during the World War, and last year when the expected disturbing of Institute properties, because of the widening of LaSalle Street, made the event seem impracticable.

Friday, February 5th, will be the great day of the week, a memorial to the birth of D. L. Moody, the founder of the Institute. Details of the program will be announced in due time.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

not upon baptism, but upon belief in Jesus Christ, the living, throbbing, pulsating Son of God, the Personality of God manifested in Christ, who is God, the embodiment of the Personality of the Godhead.

These are the teachings that are to stand the test of fire. These are the facts that will outlast all worlds. These are the teachings of the minister and the preacher that cannot be refuted, destroyed, or displaced by any philosophy or any code of ethics.

Third.—The Fires. Those who have been true have been tested by fire, and their works are to be tested by fire. The foundation, if it be Christ, cannot be burned; the superstructure, if it be of the solid substance of Christ, cannot be destroyed. The teachings, if they be the presentation of the personality, power and redemptive work of Christ, cannot be consumed by the flames of burning worlds.

In the course of time the testings have been many. Designing people, conspirators, assassins of character and of service have tried to destroy. They have failed; they are failing, and they shall fail, because the foundation is of Christ, the material out of which we have been building is of Christ, and the superstructure, when finished, must be presented to Him for inspection. If it is of solid material which He has furnished, the fires of persecution and the fires of the last conflagration shall not touch the foundation, shall not affect the builder, and shall not consume the material out of which we have builded.

There is no other foundation; we can not build any other kind of superstructure, and wherever the future may call us to labor, the foundation and the material will not be changed. There can be no other foundation laid than is laid in Christ Jesus.—An old issue of The Christian Herald.

ELON COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

ELON was founded to train Christian leaders for the New South.

ELON has done its task well—one graduate in seven being in the Christian ministry. The other six express Christian leadership in the various professions and vocations. Experience teaches that spiritual leadership must be indigenous.

The South is now a New South ready for an inclusive Church, the type of Church for which Elon has stood for forty years and for which she is prepared to produce capable leadership.

With no Church in the community, save the College Auditorium, ELON has practiced Christian Union for faculty, students, and community for four decades.

Its contribution to Christian Education is nationally known and approved. Its Christian Education Building, providing laboratory facilities for religious leadership training, is unique and is the first college building of its type in the world.

ELON confines itself to undergraduate liberal arts work with that religious emphasis which befits the Christian College.

In ELON the Congregational-Christian Church has an asset of marvelous hopefulness.

The South needs her Yale, her Oberlin, her Carleton, her Pomona for the intellectual leadership of the United Church. Many regard ELON as strategically located and spiritually endowed to become such a center of illumination and leadership training.

OBITUARIES.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas it has pleased God to call from our midst our beloved friend and sister, Mrs. Elvira Morris,

Therefore, be it resolved:

First. That we bow in humble submission to the will of God, who doeth all things well.

Second. That we extend to the entire family our deepest sympathy, realizing they have lost a kind and affectionate mother, the community a loving and encouraging friend, the church and Ladies' Aid Society a faithful member.

Third. That we may seek to emulate all that was good, faithful and true in her life, knowing that separation is only for a few days for those who serve God.

Fourth. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, a copy sent to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy be put on record of the Ladies' Aid Society of Mt. Olivet Church.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. B. G. SNOW,

Mrs. W. T. SNOW,

Mrs. ROBERT COLLIER.

HOLT.

Mr. James Alex Holt was born in Alamance Co., N. C., February 14, 1859, and departed this life October 19, 1931. He was a member of one of the best families in this section of the state, and spent his entire life in the community of his birth.

In 1887 he was married to Miss Margaret Jones of Pittsboro. To this union eight children were given, six of whom survive, as follows: Mrs. Cornelius Jacoby, Mrs. E. E. Schnellbacher, and Miss Mildred Holt, of Washington, D. C., Hubert Holt of Fort Bragg, N. C., and Dr. G. Eugene and James Alex Holt, Jr.,

WHY THE DENOMINATIONAL COLLEGE?—

The following quotation from an article in the Davidson College Bulletin, from the pen of President Walter L. Lingle, are so fine on the place of the denominational college that we make free to pass them on to the people of the Christian Church at this time when we are launching a campaign for Elon College, and would like to appeal to all the members of the Church to respond with loyalty, prayer, gifts, and their children, and Christian influence:

"What right has the denominational college to live in this twentieth century? The state, with its wealth and its taxing power, has gone into the educational business in a large way. There are state-supported grammar schools, high schools, colleges and universities. In the face of the provision made by the state, why should people be asked to support denominational colleges?

"Of course, we might reply that the denominational schools and colleges were here first. They led the way. Study the history of American education and see how true this statement is. Harvard, Yale and Princeton, were all founded as Christian colleges long before there were any state universities. In Virginia Hampden-Sidney was founded years before the State University. In North Carolina there were a large number of Presbyterian classical schools long before the public school system was organized and before the State University was founded. In fact, the church schools made the State University possible. Yes, the denominational schools and colleges were here first. But somehow we feel that this is not an adequate reply as to why we should support denominational colleges today.

"We might give another reason, that the state is not prepared to carry the entire educational load. In fact, it looks as if the state has, for the present at least, reached its limit in appropriations for educational purposes. In fact, the peak was reached in many states two or three years ago, and legislatures have begun to severely reduce appropriations for educational purposes. Some states would be absolutely swamped if the educational work which is being done by the denominational colleges were at present unloaded on the state.

"Take for illustration North Carolina. The last legislature wrestled for weeks and months to find ways and means of raising adequate funds for the support of the present public school system and the present state institutions. As a matter of fact, some severe cuts were made. The best available statistics indicate that there are about 7,500 students in the denominational colleges of North Carolina. With what the state cannot do. In the United States we believe in the absolute separation of church and state. This doctrine of separation of church and state makes it impossible for the state institution to do some of the vital things which denominational colleges can do. There is a difference in the purpose for which a state institution exists and the purpose for which a denominational college exists. The primary purpose of a state institution is to train citizens for the state. The primary purpose of a denominational college is to train workers for the church. This training makes them all the better citizens for the state. The two are not hostile or antagonistic. In fact, they are supplementary."

The following things a denominational college can do, but a state institution cannot do, from the very nature of the case:

"The denominational college can apply the religious test in the selection and retention of the members of the faculty. This is a matter of supreme importance. There are three or four questions which every denominational college should ask concerning a prospective professor. Does he know his subject? Can he teach it? Is he a Christian? Will his influence in the classroom and on the campus be positively Christian? If these questions cannot be answered in the affirmative, he has no right to be a professor in a denominational college.

"Some years ago an old college-mate asked the writer of this bulletin to think over all the teachers who ever taught him, whether in grammar school, high school, college, university, or theological seminary, to select three or four of these teachers who had influenced his life most profoundly, and then to tell him whether they did it by what they were or by what they taught. It did not take long to reach the conclusion that the teachers who influenced him most profoundly did it by their Christian personalities. Education consists largely in the development of the personality of the student through the personality of his teachers.

"Another thing that a denominational college can do is to give religious instruction in its curriculum, and even make it compulsory, if she desires to do so. For example, Davidson College requires all students to study the Bible three hours a week for two years. These courses in the Bible are no sinecure. Every cultured, Christian gentleman should have a knowledge of the

Tune—"Love Lifted Me."

*She was sinking very fast, Elon, our college, true!
When we heard the call to arms, "Come now, what will you do?"
Can we let her portals close? "Never!" the answers ring;
To old Elon we'll be true. Our prayers we'll bring.*

*Prayer conquers all, prayer conquers all;
When nothing else can help,
Prayer conquers all—(Repeat).*

*But I seem to hear a voice, "Prayer without work won't do;"
Something else we'll have to give, if we would bring her through;
Generous gifts from one and all, freely to Elon give,
That her honored name may still forever live.*

*Gifts we will bring; gifts we will bring;
When nothing else will help,
Gifts we will bring—(Repeat).*

*Money, prayer, and hearts so true, never our school can save;
Youthful lives to her we'll bring, honest, upright and brave.
Children dear, whose lives we'd see molded and trained for right, Thronging through old Elon's halls in all their might!*

*Youth we will give, youth we will give,
When nothing else will help,
Youth we will give—(Repeat).*

*Far above the gifts we bring, stronger than any prayer,
Better far than even youth, bring our love so rare;
On the altar of our faith, freely our love confess,
Trusting to His power and love to bring success.*

*Christ never fails; Christ never fails;
Though nothing else can help,
Christ never fails—(Repeat).*

—A. Belle McLean, Norfolk, Va.

is already doing, it would be impossible for her to meet the needs of these 7,500 additional students, if the denominational colleges were to close tomorrow. The state still needs the denominational colleges.

"But the chief reason that denominational colleges have a right to live, is that they are doing some very essential things which state-supported institutions, from the very nature of the case

NOTES-PERSONALS

"Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find."

Rev. S. L. Beougher, who till last May was president of Bethlehem Christian College, Wadley, Ala., has accepted a call to the Vaughnsville, Ohio, Christian Church.

Rev. W. C. Hook, former pastor at Holland, Va., and prior to that at Waverly, is now pastor of the Congregational Church at Frostburg, Md. The Church is located near Normal University and is a field of great prospect and promise.

Every man, woman and child in the Christian Church is called upon to make some contribution in the next sixty days to the saving and the support of Elon College. Loyal hearts and true will sustain the pride, the joy and the strength of our Church now.

Dr. L. E. Smith is now at Elon College in charge of his work as president of the College, much to the delight and satisfaction of the faculty, students, and people of the village. Rev. W. T. Scott of Salisbury, filled the pulpit at Christian Temple last Sunday.

If you did not read the statement, "Another Challenge," printed on page 9 of last week's issue of THE SUN, look up that copy and read it. This week the message is directed especially to the ministers of our Church. Another message will be forthcoming next week.

From Brother J. D. Newman, secretary of our Liberty (Vance) Christian Church, comes the following: "We have secured Bro. S. E. Madren as pastor for the Liberty (Vance) Church for the coming year. He gave us his first services last Sunday, and our people were well pleased."

"Every wayward Christian, to some extent, forfeits his rights under the gospel; but the waywardness of one does not release the duty of another. Each Christian owes the wayward brother certain things which are never paid by neglect, hate, or ill will. Love covers a multitude of sins; and love, never despairing, serves the wayward, even in the face of open ingratitude."

Mrs. Lilly N. Stagg, secretary of the Eastern Virginia Woman's Missionary Conference, makes request: "Please emphasize again through THE SUN that the November Thank-offering will go to the Madura Hospital in India. I know this was in THE SUN before Conference and was voted on at the Woman's Conference, but still so many are inquiring that it would be well to have it in THE SUN next week."

Mrs. J. Cartwright, Superintendent of Literature, Woman's Board, Southern Convention, calls attention to the fact again that the Foreign Mission Study Book, as approved and adopted by the Board, is "The Rural Billion, sixty cents the copy; Home Book, "God and the Census," sixty cents the copy; Suggested Programs on Foreign Book, twenty-five cents; Leaders Manual for Home Book, fifty cents. Any or all of these can be secured by sending price with order to Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Rev. F. C. Lester is leading a great campaign for Elon in the Eastern Virginia Conference. Dr. C. H. Rowland is to lead a similar one in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, and

Dr. W. C. Wicker in the Eastern North Carolina, and Col. J. H. Harden in the Western North Carolina Conference. These with the aid of the pastor and two or three members in each Church are to give every man, woman and child in the Church an opportunity to make some donation to Elon College.

Bro. J. Beale Johnson, of Fuquay Springs, N. C., formerly a trustee of Elon College and well known layman and leader in his Church, passed away after a week's illness of pneumonia, Friday p. m., November 27th, and was buried in Wake Chapel Cemetery Saturday p. m., following, the funeral being conducted by two of his loyal and life long friends, Dr. C. H. Rowland and J. O. Atkinson. One of the nations noblemen, and a real prince in Israel, has fallen to sleep. He numbered his friends and admirers by hundreds, and this world is richer for his living in it.

Miss Anita P. Kemp, Literature Superintendent, Commission on Missions, No. 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., has produced and collected valuable material which is now available for the missionary Thank-offering this fall. The material is in three parts and is as follows: A service of Thanksgiving and Thank-Offering by Larkin, $1.00 a hundred; Cards of Invitation, seventy cents a hundred; and the envelopes for fifty cents a hundred. Any or all of these can be obtained in any quantity desired by any Missionary Society by addressing order to Commission on Missions, No. 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

Mr. Hermon Eldridge, Associate Editor of the Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty, lets his pen say this to the world:

"The average church member in the United States gives less than one-half of one cent to benevolences (missions and Christian education and other things outside his own local church)—or if you would put it in another way, here it is:

"If the average church member should grow to be so generous as to give to benevolences one cent out of each dollar of his income, our mission boards would be embarrassed with the riches that would pour into their treasuries, and could for the first time begin to prepare to meet the need of the world and to advance the Kingdom of God a full generation in this decade.

If this be true, no wonder the Church and the world are in a bad plight and are under depression, since the Bible plainly teaches that tithing is the law of God; whereas, Mr. Eldridge is writing about only one-tenth of the tithe, and to all this he adds that "one-half (plus) of the members of the Church never give anything to the Kingdom of God outside of their own local church." It is no wonder, therefore, that we have poor Christians and a poor church.

THE ELON "EMERGENCY CAMPAIGN."

Rev. F. C. Lester, of Waverly, Virginia, has been given a leave of absence for the month of December, by his churches, that he might head the Elon "Emergency Campaign" in the Eastern Virginia Conference. This is a most generous sacrifice on the part of Mr. Lester's churches, and we hope that the other churches will be as generous should Mr. Lester call upon them for the assistance of their ministers.

At the Convention in Burlington, Mr. Lester volunteered his services, provided the Church meant to do something. He is giving not only his time, but we understand that he has offered to bear his own expenses during this campaign, which will be no small item. He has said that he wants "every cent raised to go into the Emergency Fund." Every member of the Christian Church in the Eastern Virginia Conference should help Mr. Lester to reach his goal, which he has set at $25,000.00.

We understand that Dr. C. H. Rowland, Dr. W. C. Wicker, and Col. J. H. Harden are heading similar campaigns in their respective North Carolina Conferences. We have not been informed as to the remaining conferences.

The schedule outlined by Mr. Lester reached the office of THE SUN after the publication of last week's issue, and when this issue reaches our readers the preliminary meetings will have been held except in the neighborhood of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Newport News. Then will come the time for action, for the following week it is expected that an every-member canvass, in so far as possible will be put on, that every one may have a part in helping in this great cause.

THE CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference, will meet with the Waverly Christian Church, Waverly, Va., at 10:30, Tuesday, December 8th.

The program provides for a most unique and unusual feature which the committee in arranging same felt would be of great inspiration and interest. It is sincerely hoped that this will be the greatest session of the Association ever held, cognizant of the hardship some will find in making payment of their annual dues this year, but also conscious that it is the abundance of poverty which supplies the provision for His abundant blessing if we will put Him to the test. The question formerly was, "What shall we do with our wealth?" But now it is properly, perhaps, "What shall we do with our poverty." There is only one thing to do with both, that is capitalize them. The Philipian Church gave an abundance out of its poverty and so won a distinction which made it immortal upon the eternal records of God's records. The widow gave all she had, out of her poverty, and it was multiplied into the greatest of all gifts.

A Cablegram From Heaven.

A "Cablegram from Heaven" reported by Dr. W. J. Schieffelin at the Chicago National Laymen's Congress (1910), shows how a Calcutta merchant met a misfortune in his business.

A secretary of the British missionary society called on the merchant to ask his help in the work. He drew a check for $250 and handed it to the visitor.

At that moment a cablegram was brought in. The merchant read it and looked troubled.

"This cablegram," he said, "tells me that one of my ships has been wrecked and the cargo lost. It makes a very large difference in my affairs. I shall have to write you another check."

The secretary understood perfectly and handed back the check for $250. The check book was still open and the merchant wrote another check and handed it to him. He read it with amazement. It was drawn for $1000.

"Haven't you made a mistake?" the secretary asked.

"No," said the merchant, "I haven't made a mistake."

And then, with tears in his eyes, he said, "That cablegram was a message from my Father in Heaven. It read, 'Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth.'"—E. M. P.

May we indeed lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven where moth doth not corrupt and thief does not break through and steal.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES were held in several places. At Winter Park, Florida, Dr. C. A. Vincent, D. D., preached the sermon at the Union Service and in Jacksonville, Rev. H. Samuel Fritsch, D. D., was the preacher. In the service the Jewish Synagogue also united.

DR. W. KNIGHTON BLOOM has recently spent a few days in Florida. After spending a day in Jacksonville in conference with Superintendent Gillette, he went to St. Augustine for a few days of rest and for an opportunity for doing some necessary writing. He spent Thanksgiving in the quiet of the Ancient City.

ORMOND, FLORIDA. The Associated Press dispatches told of the arrival of Mr. John D. Rockefeller for the season at his winter home here. The report stated that he played his first round of golf with Rev. George D. Owen, the pastor of the Ormond Union Church. Mr. Rockefeller is a regular worshiper at this church, and always received a hearty welcome from the congregation to whom he is familiarly known as Neighbor John.

HOLLY HILL, FLORIDA. This church recently gave a welcoming reception to Dr. and Mrs. Lewis H. Keller. Among those present were Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, pastor of the Daytona Beach Church, Rev. George D. Owen, pastor of the Ormond Church and Rev. Watson L. Lewis, pastor of the New Smyrna Church. The occasion was a very pleasant one. Dr. Keller reports interesting congregations and a growing Sunday School and is strong in his conviction that this church has a fine future.

REV. KERRISON JUNIPER, D. D., preached his last sermon as pastor of the First Congregational Church, St. Petersburg, Florida, on Sunday, November 29th. A large congregation was present to bid him farewell. A farewell reception was given to Dr. and Mrs. Juniper in the week preceding. Dr. Juniper left Florida on November 30th for San Francisco, where he is to begin his service as pastor of the First Congregational Church on December 6th. Dr. Juniper has completed thirteen years in the St. Petersburg Church and has made of that church a great institution. He goes with the best wishes as well as the regrets of Congregational people in the state and in the southeast.

OUR FELLOWSHIP has lost a man of large influence in the death of Dr. Ernest Bournier Allen, pastor of Pilgrim Church, Oak Park, Ill. His death occurred November 12th at the age of sixty-two. Dr. Allen had been pastor of this church for thirteen years and prior to that was for seventeen years pastor of the church in Toledo, Ohio, of which Marion Lawrence was for years the well known Sunday School leader. Dr. Allen was always in great demand as a speaker at National and International gatherings, especially those for young people. He has been a leader in Congregationalism for a number of years. He was a member of the General Council Commission on recruiting and a member of the committee of the Foundation for Education Society. He was also a lecturer at Union Theological College.

CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE. The Pilgrim Church Herald, of a recent issue, prints a paragraph with regard to an interesting service which this church is rendering the industrial school at Bonny Oaks. This school is in charge of Dr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Keese, who are members of Pilgrim Church. They have succeeded in maintaining so genuine and so gracious a religious atmosphere that pupils in the school have decided to confess their faith in Christ by joining some church. There being no church in the school they have been received into membership at the Pilgrim Church. Twenty-two have lately been received. Dr. C. Rexford Raymond is pastor of the church.

NEW PORT RICHEY, FLORIDA. Rev. Ralph Krout, pastor. The ladies of this church have been busy each Monday for about a month with a project which has enlisted the interest and cooperation of the other church ladies and many outside of the churches. They have been sewing for needy children in the community that have not had sufficient clothing for school. One little girl received a complete new wardrobe from the ladies. This has created a very fine friendliness between the women of different churches. In addition to the gifts to the local children, the ladies gave to the Crystal Beach Faith Mission (orphanage) the following: one pair of blankets, three quilts, twenty girls' dresses, eight pairs of boys' trousers, besides undergarments. They are now packing a box of children's and adult's clothing for Thanksgiving to West Tampa Mission. This church recently organized a Junior Christian Endeavor Society. Evening services were begun a month earlier than in former years. The pastor reports good interest being taken in Guest Book study.

AN INTERESTING BIBLE CLASS.

At Sanford, Florida, we have a very energetic and thriving Christian Endeavor Society, one of the best in the state. Rev. J. Bernard Root, pastor of the church, makes the Young People's Meeting the feature of Sunday evenings, devoting himself to the young people and their program. Recently in an informal session following the meeting many questions were asked very frankly about the Bible, questions that indicated many doubts and perplexities on the part of the young people. They asked that they might have a Bible Class following the Young People's Meeting, in which these questions would be frankly discussed. To the pastor's surprise there has been an attendance of eighteen or twenty at the sessions of the Bible Class. He gives the young people the benefit of modern scholarship with regard to the Bible, especially with regard to the Old Testament, leading them to a reverential appreciation and interpretation of the Bible, but answering many questions that have raised doubts in the minds of youth. The result is the strengthening of faith in the fundamental teachings of the Bible. We believe that Mr. Root is doing a unique thing and is demonstrating that young people can be helped by a frank study of the Bible in the light of modern scholarship.

THE HANDBOOK.

The Hand Book for 1932 is now ready for distribution. Many churches provide copies for their members. This year's issue contains many new and interesting features in addition to the standard items of information. The latest information concerning the state of religion and religious work in our own churches, and in other bodies as well. The Prayer Meeting Topics, the S.

S. Lessons, Young People's Topics and Daily Bible readings, are of special interest. The Significant Actions of the Seattle Council and the development of church life. Copies may be obtained from The Commission on Evangelism, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

HAPPINESS IN LA GRANGE.

As soon as the general Merger of the Christian and Congregational Churches was announced, the First Christian Church and the First Congregational Church of LaGrange, Ga., began courting. On October 4th, they were married, Rev. J. D. Dollar, recently of Reidsville, N. C., officiating. It was a very happy occasion. It took place in the home of the Christian Church to which the Congregational Church came for the permanent united residence of the bride and groom.

There were four best men, the mayor, a leading minister representing the other churches, a representative of the industrial forces and a representative of the city. Smiling, gleaming faces showed from front, back, right and left in the pews. Everyone looked happy, including even the officiating minister. How could he help it, when these four best men expressed in eloquent words the welcome of the whole city and the assembly gave such evidence and hearty approval of the entire proceedings?

Their happiness certainly quadrupled by the fact that the officiating minister had decided to make his permanent home as a part of the new family.

Two months have passed and the happiness has increased each week. Up to November 22nd, Mr. Dollar had given a series of sermons leading up to a culminating Consecration Service. As the members of the Church took their places in the great circle around the large auditorium and, with joined hands lifted above their heads, and sang "Bless Be the Tie That Binds," every heart was deeply moved.

The circle was too large to be accommodated in the large auditorium without overlapping. It was a service never to be forgotten by those present. While there were a few gray heads, young men and young women in their thirties and early forties made up the greater part of the circle, the unusual number of young men being one of the most remarkable features.

So far the highest hopes for this new Congregational-Christian Church have been far exceeded.

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE CHURCH SCHOOL.

Our first page this week carries a message that every SUN reader should have. One seldom sees a more direct and pugnacious presentation of "Why the Church College" than that presented by the president of Davidson. If the Church is to endure and achieve, it must have intelligent direction and control. This can come only out of the Church School. The president of Davidson College, the presidents of other Church colleges, realize that to close up their denominational colleges mean denominational suicide. This applies with unmeasured force and power to our own Elon. Close up Elon College and you close the door to all progress and all hope of future growth in the Christian Church, South. Long before Elon College came, the pioneers of the Christian Church realized that the Church College was essential if the denomination was to exist. Since the College came it has more than proven the wisdom and ambition of its founders. Our pulpits today are for the most part filled by men who were educated at Elon College; and the active laymen and leaders in the Conferences and, in great numbers, local Churches and Sunday Schools, are products of Elon College. Moreover, in the brief history of the College, the denomination in the South has increased three-fold in numbers, to say nothing of its increase in prestige and in power. It has, therefore, come to pass that in our Church, at any rate, the College is essential to Church life and growth, and we simply cannot think in terms of our Church history, and experience, without thinking in terms of Elon College.

The fact that it has come into hard straits financially stirs our courage, and arouses a loyalty to the institution that will not let it die. Think not that Elon College is the only college passing through a crisis in this trying time. Other denominational colleges are sharing, with other institutions of the Church, the realization of financial stringency and depression. The returns to purely Church enterprises are all falling off, and the Church schools are feeling this in a very marked measure.

Now the hour has struck, and the time has come when we Christians must "put up or shut up." Unless we are willing to sacrifice, unless we are willing to deny ourselves, unless we are willing to give out of our necessity, Elon College must close its doors. Dr. L. E. Smith has been called to the presidency of the College, and out of a sheer sense of duty to the Church at large and the interest of the Kingdom, he is personally sacrificing everything that he may give to his denomination the leadership of the rich and ready experience, such as the present crisis demands. Every man, woman and child who cares for the Christian denomination, its place and prestige in the world, should now rally to the support of our College and prove to Dr. Smith, and to the world, that he does not sacrifice alone, that he is not the only one denying himself the comforts of the easiest way, and that we, all of us, are loyal and true to the best that God has given us. Elon College calls from the depths of her need and from the heights of her high opportunities. We simply cannot deny her in such a time as this. For the next sixty days the crisis must be met, and every dollar given will count two, and every dime contributed will be that much of evidence to God and man that our Elon shall not fail, and the Christian denomination yet has a loyalty, a life and a love inspired of God, and so inspired that it cannot die.

SEED BEDS OF LEADERSHIP.

In a recent nation-wide radio hook-up, President Hoover, and scores of other statesmen and leaders in politics, economy, and religion, delivered addresses on behalf of the liberal arts colleges. In this series of nation-wide addresses a plea was made that the liberal arts colleges should have support, and needed that support, in a marked measure, in this time of general financial depression. There are in all about six hundred of these colleges, and a great majority of them are our church colleges. As the Nashville Christian Advocate very emphatically summarizes it, "the financial depression is having a devastating effect upon the agencies for the betterment of mankind, and the small colleges, with little or no endowment, are feeling keenly the shortage in financial support. More opulent groups can cut the salaries and still live in fairly comfortable circumstances, but with many of the liberal arts colleges any cuts in income reduce them below the line of safety."

President Hoover, in his notable address in behalf of the small college, said that these colleges are the "seed beds of leadership." Certainly that term applies definitely and specifically to our own Elon College. President Hoover and many other speakers emphasized the character of education given to students in small colleges, declaring that here is found "the training necessary for high moral and spiritual leadership in groups where the teacher and pupils are closely associated."

We wish to declare with the Nashville Christian Advocate that "the Church can never desert its small colleges. They furnish the leadership for the tasks of Christianizing the world, both at home and abroad." And we agree with the declaration of President Hoover and the other radio speakers that "our seed beds of leadership must be maintained at all cost." The State exacts taxes and gives secular education, and from such education the State gets many of its political leaders and some statesmen. But if the Church is to have leaders, it must maintain the Church College, since here its leaders are trained. The State cannot educate religiously; the Church must do this or it goes undone. If we are to have leadership in the Church, seed beds of leadership, as President Hoover designated them, we must at all hazards sustain our Church College.

THE POWER OF SONG.

Evidently Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, fully realizes and appreciates the invincible power of song. Centuries ago a very wise man said, "Let me write the songs of the people and you may let any one else who will write the laws of the people." Songs govern a people more than its laws. This is true, because songs go to the heart, develop life, stir the soul.

The power of song carries us to invincible position and power. And so Dr. Smith called for a song for Elon, of such type as to be worthy of a place in all our churches and Sunday Schools. The provisions laid down by Dr. Smith for the song were that four ideas must be carried in and conveyed by the song. "We must save Elon (1) with our prayers; (2) with our gifts; (3) with our children; (4) with and for our Christ. These four ideas had to be conveyed in words and stanzas that would lend themselves easily to some familiar and sacred tune.

It was a striking coincidence that the winner of the $25.00 prize was a member of Dr. Smith's church in Norfolk. Dr. Smith, of course, was not on the committee awarding the prize, that being left to the Music and English departments of Elon College, and they were to select from numbers, no names being given them. We congratulate Miss McLean of Norfolk for her song, "All for Elon," the words of which are printed elsewhere in this issue of THE SUN, and the song is to be sung to the tune, "Love Lifted Me." Both the tune and the words are appropriate, since it is love, and love only, through loyalty, devotion and self-sacrifice, that can now save Elon College. We will sing the song to the delight of our hearts, and then go forth in its spirit to the task to which we now give ourselves.

THE WINNING SONG.

Miss A. Belle McLean, teacher in the Norfolk city schools, and member of the Norfolk Christian Temple, was winner of the $25.00 prize for writing the best song to be used in the $50,000.00 campaign for Elon College, as announced by Dr. L. E. Smith, a few days ago.

Miss McLean's prize-winning song is entitled, "All for Elon," and is to be sung to the tune of "Love Lifted Me."

Miss McLean's song was selected from thirty-three that were submitted. Four others received honorable mention, and will be used in the campaign at times. These were written by Sara Andrews, and C. Ramsey Swain, students of the College, Rev. A. W. Hurst, pastor of the College Church, and Mrs. J. L. Foster, teacher in the Elon College public schools. All of these five songs have been distributed here, and the students are learning to sing them. They will also be distributed at all the churches where rallies are being held for the next several weeks.

These songs were judged by members of the Elon College Music Faculty and members of the English Faculty. The prize-winning song is reprinted on the first page of this issue of THE SUN.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION.

Is religion opposed to education? Is education hampered by religion? The charge has been made to this effect; but it is not true. In the Dark Ages, it seems that the predominant religious people opposed education for the common people. But God's people have never opposed religion; God has never opposed it. God was the first teacher of men. His leaders have always been teachers. He has always made it plain that men must learn about him and his will. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

In the early days of the world Babylon was a mighty power. Babylon had a system of education that was effective. From a worldly standpoint it must have been great; but it left God out. So God took Abraham out of Babylon and trained him, that he might be a father of a people that would go to school to God.

Moses was educated in all the skill and learning of the Egyptians. The time came when God needed a leader. Moses tried, but his whole educational training was in the way. It took him forty years of diligent schooling to get over this false education and environment. God taught him in the wilderness. At the burning bush Moses received his diploma and started back to become the leader of God's people.

At one time there were the schools of the prophets. It was the prophets from these schools who repeatedly warned Israel of apostasy and turned the people back time and again into the right paths. After the captivity, Israel had the synagogues for teaching the law. Paul was educated at the feet of Gamaliel at such a school in Jerusalem. At the age of twelve or thirteen, the Jewish boy was entered in one of these schools for his training. We find our Lord, at the age of twelve, in the midst of the teachers, on one occasion, asking and answering questions. Thus we see that our Savior himself partook of the educational training that God had provided for his people.

After the apostles began to preach, we find that a school over in Ephesus became a very effective medium through which the truth was proclaimed. Paul taught daily for two years in the school of Tyrannus. In Paul's day the right kind of educational training uprooted false theories and planted the truth in the hearts of the people. It will do the same thing today, if we will only give it a chance.

Education counts for a great deal in the work of the Lord. Twelve apostles were all inspired by the Holy Spirit. Paul was educated, and the others were not. They were as good men as he. They were earnest and consecrated. They did a great deal of good. But whose influence has come down to us with the greatest force today? Who wrote most of the New Testament? Who stood before kings, and carried the gospel into the strongholds of heathen learning? It was Paul! Was he a better man than the other apostles? Likely not. But his educational training enabled him to work effectively in situations that they could not touch.

Education is preparing for something. People are going to be what they are taught. Especially is this true of young people. . . . The State colleges and universities of our country cannot help young people now to become better servants of God. In State schools, religious training is conspicuous for its absence. The State says: "On religious matters we are silent." Where religion is left out, the environment naturally grows away from religion. In many cases it becomes antagonistic to the religion of the Bible.

We naturally put first in our efforts the things that are first in our thinking. When we select schools for our children, we have certain definite things which we feel are important. Some select schools for worldly show and prestige. Their children soon see that. Others select schools for money advantages that they think their children will have. Children are not easily fooled. They soon see that. Our children put the emphasis where we put it. Some parents select schools where the environment and teaching are essentially Christian. Their children see that. They appreciate it, and generally come out of such schools better than they went in. We all claim to love the church. We claim to stand for Christianity. But in educational matters many of us effectively upset our claims.—Excerpts from an article by Batsell Baxter, in Gospel Advocate.

A Challenge To Our Ministers.

A challenge has gone out to our whole Church—a challenge to save our Elon College—a challenge to save the Church itself—a Challenge to a sacrifice of love.

But to our Ministers there is an especial challenge. You ministers are looked upon as leaders—morally, spiritually, intellectually. Where you lead, the layman will follow. Your responsibility is great. Will you accept it?

You—all of you—owe Elon a debt—a debt for the fertile field in which you now labor, a debt for the co-operation which her sons and daughters have given and are giving you, a debt in some instances for the very opportunity of preparing yourself to serve. Will you repay it, in part at least, NOW?

What! You have no money? No money for your Elon, when she is in dire distress! Can we imagine a minister of the Christian Church giving such an answer? If you cannot give of what you have, then give of what you have not. Borrow it, if necessary, it is well worth while.

Then, give your service. This is just an important as cash. Rev. F. C. Lester is heading the Elon "Emergency Campaign" in Eastern Virginia. He is liberally giving—literally giving—his services, and paying his expenses, that every cent raised for Elon in his Conference may be turned over to the "Emergency Fund." Are you supporting him, or the leader in your Conference? He is giving money and time. Are YOU?

Then, lastly, but not leastly, Elon challenges you to give your prayers. Pray that Elon may be saved for service.

Three things, then Elon challenges you—our Ministers—to do: Pray, pray without ceasing, with the faith that God will answer; work, for faith without works is dead; and give—give to the uttermost—of money and of time.

Remember! The laymen of the Christian Church are watching you—will follow you! If Elon fails, it will be because you—the Ministers of the Christian Church—have failed! If Elon lives for service, the peace that comes of a work well done is yours.

SUFFOLK LETTER.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Philhower, Suffolk, Va., on November 19, 1931, a surprise party was tendered Mrs. Mary A. Yates, by her children and grand-children, the same being her eighty-first birthday. Mrs. Yates, before her marriage, was Mary Alice Harden of Graham, North Carolina. The Harden name in that town has been prominent for many years.

Her husband, John Zachary Yates, a deacon in the Suffolk Christian Church, passed to his reward on November 3, 1921, at the age of 73 years, 2 months and 8 days.

The occasion that celebrated Mrs. Yates' 81st birthday was attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Philhower, Mr. and Mrs. Staley Yates, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yates, Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Baines, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Barnett; grandchildren: Misses Charlotte, Alice, Olivia, Evelyn, and Gladys Yates, and Zack Yates, Frank and Geo. Barnett.

Telegrams were received from members of the family who were too far away to come, and from friends. In addition to the immediate guests present, many friends called during the joyous hours.

At the Philhower home, where the meeting was held, a table in the center of the room was decorated with a beautiful display, and in the center of the table was a large cake bearing 81 red candles. When Mrs. Yates came in, she was almost overcome by the table, the room full of her loved ones, and the satisfaction which came from their thoughtful love and appreciation of her life; but she soon calmed down and took her seat in the midst of the happy family.

Then Frank Barnett and Zack Yates, grandsons of the happy mother, brought in two big baskets filled with presents for their grandmother. Her namesake and grand-daughter, Alice Yates, gave a toast to mother and grandmother, and Rev. W. W. Staley offered prayer.

Then followed the excitement of taking from the baskets the presents and opening them. All eyes were turned toward the packages, as they were opened, and grandmother's heart overflowed with appreciation and thanks. It was a great night, and it celebrated a great life. The room was full of people, but fuller of joy. The total number present was thirty-two, and eighteen of these were members of the Yates family. It was a great evening, much enjoyed, and a useful lesson for families. How much more in harmony with family life and family influence was such a meeting as that, than a card party, a dance, or any of the common social gatherings. A Christian family is one of the greatest, if not the greatest institution among men. No higher honor can be paid, in human relations, than for descendants to honor their ancestors. When young people fail to respect and honor their ancestors, they soon lose respect for themselves.

Old people and young people belong together, and each adds to the character and service of the other. Family life is the normal life in the home, the church, and society. Education and character can never be at their best in separate groups. Age needs young life, and young life needs age. A highway needs concrete as well as decorations. The junior choir needs the adult congregation, and the congregation needs the junior choir. The congregation should be made up of grown people and children, from the oldest to the youngest. Nothing is sweeter in a church than to see grandparents, parents, and children, seated in the same pew in the church.

HISTORICAL EVENTS AT CYPRESS CHAPEL.

By W. E. MACCLENNEY.

(Read before the Eastern Virginia Conference by Mr. MacClenney, who is its Historian.)

We are today on historic ground. It was settled by Englishmen about the middle of the 17th century. Early grants were taken up on the Dismal, Cypress, Mosby and Orapeake swamps in this section. A little distance from here is the famous Lake Drummond, named for the first governor of North Carolina. In the early days, this spot was on the highway to North Carolina, and many of the prominent men from other sections passed here on their way to their homes in the Old North State.

It was visited by Col. William Byrd and his party while surveying the Virginia-North Carolina line in 1728. The section was visited by George Washington on his exploring expeditions, from 1763 to 1768, around the great Dismal Swamp, and not far from here is the canal or ditch which bears his name to this day. We quote from his diary, as follows: "Oct. 26, 1768, Breakfasted in Suffolk, dined and lodged in the Dismal Swamp at Jno. Washington's. Oct. 27, Went up to our plantation at Norfleet's, in Carolina, and returned in the afternoon. Oct. 28, Went into the pond with Col. Lewis, Major Reddick, Jno. Washington, and at night went to ye Major's. Oct. 29, Got to Smithfield on return to Williamsburg."

Near here stood Dismal Town, which grew up around the western end of the ditch or canal. One of the first mail routes in this section passed here.

In the early days of the county there was no place of worship, except perhaps a few Quaker meeting houses in this section of what is now Nansemond. About 1691 a chapel was built at Somerton through the generosity of Col. Campbell, later Middle Chapel was built near where Liberty Spring Christian Church now stands. In 1753 this chapel was discontinued and joined to the parish church in Suffolk, and the inhabitants were without a place of religious worship that was any way convenient. Hence the following was passed by the Vestry of the Upper Parish of Nansemond to relieve the situation.

On November 29, 1758, an Episcopal chapel of ease was ordered in this vicinity to be set on the land of Thomas Harrell. It was to be 30 feet long, 24 feet wide and 10 feet pitch, with two doors, and two windows on each side with good framing; 18 lights of glass 8 by 10 inches to each window. Thomas Harrell's land was found to be entailed and so land was bought from John Norfleet at the present site. The chapel was built and on November 28, 1760, James Gibson, Jacob Sumner and Mills Riddick were to view the chapel at Norfleet's to see that it was built according to specifications. That day the Rev. Mr. Webb, the parish minister preached. Then Rev. John Agnew was requested to preach in the parish church and chapel. It continued to be an Episcopal place of worship until the Revolutionary War, and was served by the regular parish ministers. The Episcopal services were never revived after that war. The name Cypress Chapel was perhaps taken from the tall cypresses in the swamp hard by.

A few years before 1776, the itinerant Methodist ministers had come to Eastern Virginia, and began to go into the interior, and no doubt they held services here. As early as July 8, 1780, Rev. James O'Kelly, the organizer of the Christian Church in the South, who was then a Methodist traveling preacher, met Rev., afterwards Bishop Francis Asbury, at this very spot and held a service. Here that day met for the first time two of the great men in the religious history of the country. Bishop Asbury is today looked upon, and justly so, as the real founder of American Methodism, while Rev. James O'Kelly is the acknowledged pioneer of the Christian Church.

The Christian Church of the South was organized in 1793 and 1794 and they took the Holy Bible as their only creed, and as the leader, Rev. James O'Kelly had been a presiding elder in this district for several years before, he soon organized a Christian Church at this place in the vacant chapel and it has remained to this day.

Among the early members of the Christian Church at this place we have the following: John Harrell, Arthur Jones, Barsheba Jones, Abraham Harrell, Sallie Norfleet, Mary Riddick, Mourning Parker, Henry Skinner and Samuel Wilkins. Their descendants still worship here. The church stood firm by the Christians in their vicissitudes from its organization to 1818. When the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference was planned for in 1818 at Holy Neck, Cypress Chapel invited the body to meet with them in its first regular session, which they did on September 25, 26, and 27, 1819. The minutes of that conference are preserved. Among the ministers present we name: Revs. Burwell Barrett, Joshua Livesay, John Livesay, Mills Barrett, James Warren, Francis Williamson, Nathaniel P. Tatem and Nelson Millar. Of the laymen the following among others are recorded: John Harrold, Thomas Holloway, Abraham Harrell, Stephen Smith, Herod Burt and John Copeland. Rev. John Livesay became the pastor here that year.

About 1820 the old Episcopal chapel was repaired and enlarged. In 1870 a new house was built, the corner stone being laid by Dr. William B. Wellons on September 10th of that year.

O August 2, 1845, Rev. Wm. B. Wellons was licensed to preach at this church, and on November 25, 1846, he was ordained to the regular ministry here by Revs. Mills Barrett, Robert Rawles, and William A. Jones. He was then a young man but he soon came to be the greatest leader of the church before the war of 1861-65. On November 5, 1853, at the Annual Conference here a girl's school was planned for, and Holy Neck Seminary was the outcome. The Southern General Convention was organized at Union in Alamance County, N. C., in 1856, and the first regular session of that body was held here in 1885, and then all of the enterprises of the church were planned for. Before another session could be held the dark days of the war had come for the church and the denomination, and her young men were called to the colors to defend their homes and firesides under the leadership of the immortal Lee and Jackson, whom they followed until the end of the struggle. The Cypress Sharpshooters were from this vicinity, and their uniforms were made by the patriotic women and girls of the community, the goods being sent down in bolts and made in suits for their sons, sweethearts and husbands. Their captain, Robert B. Brinkley was killed leading his men at Hanover Junction. Many others were killed and more died of disease.

April 9, 1865, saw this section and the South a scene of desolation, but the veterans returned to what had been their homes, many broken in health and all in spirits, for even their pastor, Dr. Wm. B. Wellons said that he did not know what to do, but soon all arose like men four square to every difficulty, and soon the community began to take on new life. Revivals were held and sinners again found peace at the old altar.

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

IV.

Indescribable emotions stir the heart of the Christian as he enters Palestine along the highway from Damascus to Jerusalem. To the right is the lofty Mt. Hermon, snow-capped nine or ten months of the year, from whose melting snows the Jordan receives its limpid waters. To the left is the Sea of Galilee, blue amid the encircling mountains, an amethyst set in a frame of gold. You cross the Jordan over the bridge known as the Daughters of Jacob, and are out of Syria into the Holy Land, in the very region where the major part of our Lord's earthly ministry was spent.

We arrived at the German Catholic Hostel, conducted by Fathers Tuepper and Schmidt in the mid-afternoon of a beautiful Sabbath day. The waters of the "sweet Galilee" wash gently against the break-water of the Inn. Oranges, bananas, various kinds of palms, and other tropical fruits grow in the garden of the friendly hostel and you gather and eat at your heart's content. It is a scene of rare loveliness and inviting charm. As you sit on the spacious verandas or stroll along the shore which our Master delighted to frequent and upon which He enunciated those matchless teachings, your spirit is endured with a strange uncton and involuntarily you burst into song—"O Galilee, Sweet Galilee." The sun sets over the Mount of Beatitudes and the full moon lends a peaceful sheen to the sea, a natural picture unutterably beautiful and ineradicably impressed upon the memory.

A night of delightful slumber brings you to a new day renewed in mind and body and spirit for the thrilling experiences that await, as you visit Capernaum where the Master made His headquarters after His rejection by the people of Nazareth, ride through the beautiful valley of Genessaret with the Sea of Galilee in full view, visit Tiberias, behold the Mount of the Beatitudes where the greatest recorded sermon ever preached was delivered to the hungry-souled multitude, reverently enter Nazareth, and there visit the church of the Annunciation, Mary's Well, the Carpenter Shop, and the humble dwelling place of the Holy family, and though you are not sure of the exact location of any of these sites, you do know that it was in this vicinity that Jesus grew to manhood, increasing normally in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man, a joyous gratitude for the rare privilege you are enjoying possesses your being. Life can never be the same after you have visited Nazareth and the precipice, the Mount of Precipitation, over which His fanatical fellow-citizens designed to cast our Lord.

You then enter the plain of Esdraelon, one of the world's greatest battlefields whereon the fate of millions has many times during the centuries been determined and begirt on both sides of the highway by such historic places as Dothon, Endor, Jezreel, Samaria wherein lie the remains of Herod's great temple and the bones of Ahab and Omri, Shunem, Mt. Tabor on the left, Mt. Carmel and the Mediterranean in the distance on the right, till you come to the modern Nablus, ancient Shechem, with Mt. Ebal on the left and Mt. Garazim towering on the right, on the altar at the summit of which at Easter each year the remnant (157 in all) of the Samaritans still offer their animal sacrifices, despite the visit of our Master to their village and His great discourse delivered to the woman at Jacob's well, just outside the city, as you proceed toward Jerusalem.

Jacob's Well is the one specifically identifiable place in Palestine where you can with assurance know that our Master was. As you walk around its base, sit on its curb, drink of its cooling water,

SUPPLICATION.

DECEMBER, 1931.

Jehovah, God, we praise Thee that in the blessed Trinity there is all power and might, all love and grace, eternal and universal communion; that Jesus, by paying sin's full price, became to all the world the never-dimming Day-star toward which His Church moves—all too slowly, we confess, because we hide and horde the things that speed the Church's pace. Loose our gifts, O God, and make our direction as true and fixed as was that of those who followed the Star of long ago. And to Jesus' name forever be glory in the highest. Amen.

"B."

BY A LAYMAN.

I have always disliked writing, and in my college days envied my roommate, who wrote with such ease his essay in "English"—he later wrote books—while I preferred the lesson in "Math." However, at the request of the Editor, I would bear testimony that giving may be cultivated as a habit and will prove to be a good one.

When I was about twelve years of age, my father gave me an allowance of twenty-five cents a week from which I set aside three cents each week for the Lord's purse. Then I looked forward to the contribution plate, for I had a fund that belonged to the Lord, and it was a pleasure to start the money on its journey of helpfulness. I gave as much thought to the distribution of the pennies as later to the dollars.

I have had people tell me that they would give when they had more money, enough so that their contribution would amount to something; but if persons do not give a proportion of the dollars they have, they are quite unlikely to give later when they have the hundreds or the thousands. "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Not so much the size of the treasure as the use of the treasure indicates the desire of the heart. If we are supporting the work of the Lord and showing kindness to our fellow men, we are placing our treasure "where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal."

In these days I believe that our missionaries give us wonderful opportunities to obtain great results from the use of our "treasure" and it is a privilege for us to help carry the gospel to the hearts and, through the medical work, healing to the bodies of so many in despair.

One day a man brought a basket of peaches to the house. I did not recognize him and said that I had not ordered any. He told me his name and said that he was giving them to me. Then I remembered that some time ago his house had burned and I had conveyed to him my sympathy in various ways. He was pleased to be able to show his appreciation, and I was pleased to learn that he had not forgotten. Do you not believe that our Lord wishes us to show our love to Him by our deeds and our gifts?

Many years ago it was the custom in a certain church to take around subscription books for the offerings for Home Missions and Foreign Missions, collecting for one in the spring and the other in the fall—this was indeed a forerunner of the Every Member Canvass. The collector for Foreign Missions, when calling on a family, was told that they did not believe in Foreign Missions, only Home Missions. Later the same person was collecting for Home Missions and went to the house with great hopes only to find that the family did not care to give to Home Missions either. If we do not want to give, we can usually find some excuse, but if we really try to do the Lord's work, we will find His help in many unexpected ways. "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it, and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." This has been found true of churches as well as of individuals.

Perhaps you have wondered about the title. "B." is the symbol placed on the stubs of certain checks and stands for "Benevolence." Start with the tenth and then increase—as you will desire to do.—Missionary Herald.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS.

DECEMBER, 1931.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES.

For the Women's Missionary Societies, the following program based on the little booklet, "Our Congregational-Christian Body at Work" is suggested. This little booklet contains all of the necessary information to carry out the four programs which it contains, and it may be obtained by addressing the Commission on Missions, 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., and enclosing 10c.

PROGRAM I.

"The General Council—The Head."

Worship Helps.

Hymn—"Faith of Our Fathers."

Scripture—Hebrews 11:13-16, 32-40; 12:1.

Prayer—Thanksgiving. For the faith of our early fathers, who dared face persecution, banishment, privation and death for religious liberty. "Oh God, may faith to us be given to follow in their train."

Talk or paper—"The Congregationalists."

Special Music.

Talk or paper—"The Christian Fellowship."

Third Speaker—"The General Council—The Head."

This would be unique if carried out as a wedding. Try it.

Hymn—"Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES.

"GOD AND THE CENSUS."

Theme—"The Perfect Gift."

I.—Business Period.

II.—Study Period.

Chapter III.—"There Had to be Schools."

1. Maggie Fleming and the Mission School.—Told by one of the young girls, pp. 30-34.

2. The Value of a Mission School—A member, pp. 35-38.

3. Leader may summarize chapter and tell when a mission school should withdraw.

III.—Worship Period.

1. Call to Worship—"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given."

2. Prayer.

3. Hymn—"Joy to the World."

4. Monologue—"The Christmas List." (Can be obtained from Lutheran Literature Department.)

5. Solo—"Holy Night, Peaceful Night."

6. Offertory.

7. Hymn—"Hark! the Herald Angels Sing."

8. Scripture—Luke 2: 4-20.

9. Benediction.

WILLING WORKERS' SOCIETIES.

Theme—"The Christ Child."

1. Leader—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men."

2. —"And when they were come unto the house, they saw the young Child with Mary, His mother, and fell down and worshipped Him: and when they opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts, and frankincense, and myrrh."

3. Song—"Joy to the World."

4. White Gift Program:

(a) "White Gifts for the King."

(b) Christmas Plays. (This contains three Christmas plays.)

5. Benediction—The Pastor.

NOTE.—As December is the month for the Juniors to pack a box for the Christian Orphanage, it is suggested that a special program be given at the Sunday School hour. Have gifts brought at this time. Copies of the programs referred to above may be gotten from the Woman's Mission Board, C. P. A. Bld'g, Dayton, Ohio.

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

and read or repeat the 4th chapter of John, with Mt. Gerizim in full view in the distance just one hour, what feelings of peace and happiness stir the heart! My drink of water from that well is no longer part of me, it has ceased to quench my thirst, but that spring of water welling up within me which the Man of Galilee giveth to them that ask Him shall be, I earnestly pray, a fountain of continental replenishment not only during my earthly pilgrimage, but for the everlasting life. What a life-giver He is!

Over this well the Greek Orthodox Church before the World War began to erect a cathedral with funds to be received very largely from Russia. It is still incomplete. The Church is unpopular in Russia and the revenues for this building have ceased to come. You pause to think what fate will befall the nation that forgets God as modern Soviet Russia is doing. This unfinished Church is a forceful reminder of the poverty of soul of a people who have rejected religion from their life.

You continue your automobile ride toward the Holy City, passing the ancient Shiloh and the tomb of the prophet Samuel on the way. Of a sudden from the summit of the lofty mountain Jerusalem the Golden bursts into full view. The eye feeds itself on the panorama of beauty while the spirit feasts upon the ecstatic association of the city set on a hill, or rather on two hills, Mt. Zion and Mt. Moriah, whose beauty cannot be hidden nor its light dimmed. Truly every man has two cities, his own Jerusalem, for her centre the Jewish, Islamic, and Christian religions. The pilgrim from across the sea, rejoices to behold this Holy City, physical prototype of that spiritual city of whose foundations the heavenly Father is the Maker and Builder.

For as many days as you can with one of the professional guides in which Jerusalem fortunately abounds, you visit the sites traditionally (most of them from the fourth century) said to be the place of the Nativity at Bethlehem, where a Church stands over its supposed inn and kahn or stable, the tomb of Rachel, the Hill of the Shepherds, the Mount of Olives, the Brook Kidron, the Pool of Siloam, the Pool of Bethesda, the Garden of Gethsemane, Hedron, Bethany, Bethpage, the Dead Sea, the Jordan River at the reputed place of the baptism, the wilderness of the wanderings and of the temptations with the Mountains of Moab in the distance to the east of the Jordan and Dead Sea, from which Moses gazed upon the Promised Land, Jericho, and Elisha's Well, the probable locations and remnants of the three walls of the Holy City, the Via Dolorosa, the Golden Gate, the Temple Area, the house of Caiaphas, David's Tower or the room of the Last Supper, and many other places interesting because of their traditional sacred associations, including especially Calvary and the Holy Sepulchre.

Two locations present their rival claims as being the probable site of Calvary. The first is much nearer the Jaffa gate and equally near the Temple area. It proudly dates its claim from the consensus of opinion of the fourth century. A church covers the site, with portions of it used by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox, Gregorian or Armenian Orthodox, Nestorian or Assyrian and Coptic Churches. Many legends are gathered around this spot. It is said that the Mother of Constantine, Queen Helena who erected the original church over the site, identified it by the three crosses discovered there. Another tradition of the Greek Church is that on New Year's Day light flashes from the supposed sepulchre, which the attending priest catches on a torch and passes out through two small apertures to the people worshipping outside with unlighted candles in their hands. At the hour of our visit, the Catholic chapel is celebrating mass in a tongue unknown to priests and worshippers alike and with much pageantry more suggestive of pagan symbolism than of the spiritual simplicity of the Nazarene. The masses said in this venerable structure, soiled by the bickering contentions of five Christian faiths, sickens the heart by their near approach to superstition and idolatry. The stupidity of sectarianism stands out in all its stupid assinity at this spot which should be the cementing bond of all who name the name of Christ. I greatly rejoice that Protestantism has no part in this sorry spectacle.

The second site is just outside the Damascus Gate, north of the Temple area, with an over-arching hill top shaded like a skull, and underneath a tomb rough-hewn in solid rock which seems to meet the Biblical descriptions. For long centuries it was hidden under rubbish and debris, till the excavator's pick and shovel unearthed it a few years ago. It is hoped that no generous saint will spoil the natural loveliness of this beautiful hill, tomb, and garden with a Church or other architectural monument! It is worth while in its own right.

Perhaps it is well that there is uncertainty as to the particular places where Jesus was born, lived, taught, and wrought His mighty works. The guide to the Garden location of Calvary and the Holy Sepulchre aptly expressed it when he said: "Men are so inclined to regard with idolatrous veneration definitely identifiable holy places that we are fortunate in not being able surely to say our Lord was crucified there (pointing to the supposed hill of the Skull) and that His body laid in this tomb, which we now enter." He no doubt had in mind the idolatrous pageantry now associated in the five eastern Christian Churches which as we have said share the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, located as we have said near the Jaffa gate. However, there is no idolatrous treatment so far of the one place we can definitely know our Lord was—Jacob's Well. However, the same silly pageantry and disgusting incense burning might be introduced here by the Greek Orthodox Church as now you incongruously witness at the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem, if this Church should ever be completed.

Much depends upon your guide in any city, but especially so it seems to me in Jerusalem and the Holy Land. We were fortunate in the competent services of a young Arab nobleman, son of a Mufti, educated in the University of Cairo, and lineal descendant of the Prophet Mohammed, Sayed Fuad Iman. He loves Jerusalem and takes a pride in making you love it too. The Temple area is now occupied by two great Mohammedan mosques, Omar and El Aksa. The Mosque of Omar is erected over the spot where Abraham was about to offer up Isaac. All visitors must be cut of the Temple area by 11:30, so as not to interfere with the hour of prayer of the Moslems, which begins just before noon. Iman Sabed, being well known to the hodjas, was able to secure permission for us to remain within during the Muezzin's call to prayer. From the minarets we heard the call given in the beautiful Arabic tongue:

"God is greater. (Repeated four times.)

I bear witness that there is no God but God. (Repeated twice.)

Come to prayers, come to prayers,

Come to salvation, come to salvation.

God is greater;

There is no other God but God."

The whole atmosphere was tense with the spirit of prayer. The people poured into the temple area, took off their shoes, entered the Mosque of El Aksa, and prostrated themselves before God in prayer. You can never forget an experience like that.

As we passed out of the sacred area to the street below, Jews were reading the Bible, kissing the stones of the wall and weeping aloud in agony of soul over the departed glory of their temple and nation at the famous Wailing Wall. Surely these two religious systems, through which millions worship the same God, will one day find their completion in Christianity. The soul is comforted with this prophetic insight.

Geographically speaking Palestine is negligible. Typographically it is almost a succession of mountains and hills. To the ancient Israelites it flowed with milk and honey in comparison to the desert areas they traversed on their wanderings from Egypt to the Moabite Mountains from which they viewed it before its conquest. But it certainly does not today impress you by its fertility or by its desirability as the base of a permanent culture. And yet this unpromising "Promised Land" has become the second country, the country of the soul, for untold millions. Not material prosperity, but spiritual values permanently enrich the world. So the soul muses and gives God thanks for Palestine and for your privilege to see it. Every foot of its rocky soil is replete with new insight and fresh meanings for the alert and receptive spirit.

JEWEL TRUITT, Editor, Glen Raven, N. C.

HOME AGAIN.

After seeing Southern California, we made our plans to come directly home, as our time to be spent on the remainder of the trip was getting short. At El Centro, California, we had lunch one day and spent about three hours in the park trying to keep cool and waiting until it would be cool enough to travel over the desert. We had supper in Yuma, Arizona, and then began our trip across the little strip of desert land that lay along our route. After two hours riding a storm broke upon us. Water flooded the road, and it was necessary for us to ford streams of water many times. We made the trip without any trouble except having to wait for the water to subside several times.

The sunrise that morning after the storm, was one of the most beautiful I have ever seen. At five-thirty we reached Phoenix. We drove all day after crossing the desert at night, but each of us slept some during the day.

Our route took us through Globe, Arizona, Lordsburg and Las Cruces, N. M., El Paso, Pecos, Abilene, Fort Worth, and Dallas, Texas. At Shreveport, La., we heard Dr. Angie W. Smith of Jackson, Miss., preach at the eleven o'clock hour on Sunday. At five o'clock that afternoon we drove through the National Memorial Cemetery at Vicksburg.

Monday took us through Laurel, Miss., to Mobile, Ala. When we drove across Mobile Bay, a distance of ten and one-half miles, the moonlight was making silver paths across the water. Four rivers empty into the bay at this point, and our road carried us across the deltas just at the mouths of these rivers. Water was on either side of us as we traveled the road, which was built on a filled in strip of land.

On July 28th, we reached Pensacola, Florida. In Florida, we visited Silver Springs, the Bok Singing Tower, and Daytona Beach. Tampa, Jacksonville and St. Augustine, were among the cities we saw. On Friday, July 31st, we left Jacksonville and drove to Savannah, Ga., for lunch, and on to Florence, S. C., for the night. On August 1st, we drove from Florence to Waverly, Va., arriving in Waverly about six o'clock, several hours before we were expected, to receive the welcome of friends and home.

Young People's groups on societies wishing help in the selection of a suitable program or play for the Christmas season, may receive such help by writing Miss Lucy M. Eldredge, C. P. A. Building, Dayton, Ohio, Miss Priscilla Chase, Elon College, N. C., or Miss Marguerite Davison, Thorsby, Alabama. It is time for every program to be getting under way soon, so don't delay writing. Write today!

Things are really happening these days in the Christian Church. Dr. L. E. Smith's acceptance of the presidency of Elon is a source of great encouragement at this time. Here's to a rousing cheer for Elon College and for Dr. Smith! Here is to the hope that every person in the Congregational Christian Church in the Southeast will pledge their hearty support to our college and its president. May the name Elon become so linked with the name of Dr. Smith that they may be associated for many years to come! By prayers to our God, by our whole-hearted support and loyalty, we can help make this possible.

Recently nine Congregational and Christian Church young people were elected to important offices in the North Carolina Conferences. Officers of the Youth Fellowship planned and put on programs at each of the three conferences. At these rally programs the youth of our church expressed themselves as believers in a greater day for our Church and pledged themselves to service in the work of the Kingdom of God. To lead them in their new crusade, the following officers were selected by each Conference group, respectively:

North Carolina and Virginia: Birdie Rowland, president; Clarice Gunn, vice-president, and Mabel Smith, secretary.

Western North Carolina: Carl Key, president; J. Rowland Farrell, vice-president, and Madge Craven, secretary.

Eastern North Carolina: Sadie Gunter, president; Lizzie Belle Newman, vice-president, and Marie Carter, secretary.

These nine young people will meet at Elon Holiday Conference with the officers of Youth Fellowship and officers and representatives from the Valley of Virginia Central and the Eastern Virginia Conferences, and perhaps representatives from other states in the South, for the purpose of launching their program and planning for conference programs. They will have as their counselors in this meeting Christian Education workers and Extension workers in the Southeast.

C. E. Warrington, president of the Eastern Virginia Young People's Congress, is at the present time acting as a captain in a campaign to secure two hundred new subscribers to THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Miss Irene Cotten of the Dendron Church is teaching a course in Bible in high school this year. This is in addition to stenographic work and her various activities as a Congress and Christian Endeavor official.

Miss Elizabeth Sharpe, president of the "Three S" Christian Endeavor Union, will assume the role of hostess, also, on December 4th, when about one hundred and fifty young people will banquet together in the Waverly Christian Church. Elizabeth is serving now as a captain in the campaign to raise two hundred new subscriptions to THE CHRISTIAN SUN.

Each church in the South may use a traveling Mission Library containing ten books for a period of one month at a cost of only a few cents per book. These books are graded, a few being for children, others for young people, and still others for adults. Any church wishing to have one of these libraries sent to them should write Miss Priscilla Chase, Elon College, N. C., for particulars.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

DECEMBER 13, 1931.

"MAKING CHRISTMAS CHRISTIAN."

"O holy Child of Bethlehem,

Descend on us, we pray;

Cast out our sin, and enter in;

Be born in us today."

Each person in the society should be asked to observe his own preparations for Christmas, taking stock of the reasons for doing certain things and for giving certain gifts. Each person should also observe the habits of the community in which he lives to see just what plans for the Christmas celebration are being made. Observation should be made as to just how much Christmas is related to Christ.

Christmas will be the center of our thinking for a few weeks. The excitement of the season fairly picks us up and carries us along. We may not ordinarily stop to think just why we prepare for Christmas observance in just the way we do. Every paper and magazine is now carrying most of its advertising space filled with things to be bought for Christmas. What has buying to do with the celebration in honor of the Christ-Child? Do the multitudes of things that we have and that we receive on Christmas Day help us do honor to Christ? Do we give the gifts we send to friends in such a spirit as "to make Him known"? Friends will visit each other this Christmas, as they always do, but will time be taken during these social times together to remember the One whose birthday we celebrate?

Christmas gives a special opportunity to remember friends in special ways. Perhaps there are shut-ins among your friends whom you will want to remember in some way on Christmas Day. Dinner parties may be made up for those who don't usually get invited to such occasions. Why not invite a crippled child you know, or a blind lady, who may be overlooked by everyone else, or some elderly person who may not have living relatives to plan especially for them at Christmas time.

Perhaps you like crowds and like to be in them. There is a fine chance to sing the Christmas carols on the street corners on Christmas Eve, as the last hurried shoppers are making their way in and out among the shops and stores. This will give them a chance to remember Him as they shop.

Topics for discussion may include, "The Spirit of Christmas 1931 Years Ago," "The Christmas We Know Today," "Is Christmas a Christian Holiday?" and "How to Make Christmas More Christian."

"Christmas is coming to bless us again,
Bringing its bounty of blessings to men.
Wiping out worries and troubles and frets;
Blotting the past with its futile regrets;
Blotting out memories tragic and dreer,
Filling our hearts with the magic of cheer,
Giving us gifts from the Giver above,
Greatest of which is the spirit of love."

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

November 17th the Woman's Missionary Society of the Haw River Christian Church met with Mrs. Roy D. Coulter, with thirteen members, and three visitors present. The society was called to order by the president and opened with the hymn "To The Work." The Scripture Lesson was read by Rev. J. F. Apple and prayer was offered by Mr. Herman Neese. Then a trio was rendered by Revs. J. F. Apple, Roy D. Coulter, and Herman Neese. Then Rev. J. F. Apple gave a talk on what a real Christian should be and the work he should do.

Activities for the month were sixty-nine visits to the sick, and thirteen trays. Many business topics were discussed. The Society adjourned to meet next month with Misses Mary and Emma Thomas.

JOHN'S VISION ON PATMOS.

LESSON XI.—DECEMBER 13, 1931.

LESSON TEXT: Revelation 1: 4-18.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Fear not; I am the first and the last, and the Living One."—Rev. 1:17,18.

By SIMON A. BENNETT.

Introduction.

During most of the quarter, the lessons have centered about Paul and his missionary work. We have seen how he expanded his field of service from Jerusalem to Rome. Today we turn back to the province of Asia to study the message of a great religious mystic who suffered for his faith. In point of time we move up from the period of Paul to near the close of the first century, about the year 95 A. D.

The Churches of Asia.

Paul had worked at Ephesus and developed a most loyal church there. Verse 11 gives the list of seven that are especially our concern in this lesson. The Ephesian Church was the most important and influential of the seven.

Persecution.

During the days of the Emperor Domitian, the Christians of these Churches were severely persecuted. It was likely demanded that they worship the Emperor. Some no doubt did, others refused and suffered. It was a period in which the faith and the souls of men were tested.

John of Ephesus.

John, a faithful and venerable leader among the Asian Churches, seems to have fallen exile for his faith. Out in the Aegean Sea on the Island of Patmos, he must live separated from the Church and his fellow Christians whom he loved so much. He had suffered for his faith but he longed to help others and strengthen them for their work.

Majestic Mystic.

John was a mystic—a mystic of majestic faith and soul. Alone amidst his sorrow, he was not alone. He had the company of the Eternal in his bosom. His soul held converse with his God. He lived in spiritual yearning for the welfare of the Christians whose faith was being tested. Rich are the sources of spirits who have regularly communed with God. John was rich in spiritual fellowship.

The rush and glamor of modern life are not producing a large crop of mystics. "Be still and know I am God" is the spirit of worship.

On the Lord's Day.

"I was in the spirit on the Lord's Day, and I heard." (Verse 10). What are we doing on the Lord's Day? Are we in the spirit? Do we hear "a great voice?" Religion would become more vital if we used the day of rest for spiritual nourishment and growth. John heard a voice and saw a vision on the Lord's day. The life that seeks and is receptive can see and hear.

John's Vision.

His vision is of the Lord, and for the churches. Having seen and heard he passes his message from his spiritual Lord to the churches. John used the literary method of the vision in Daniel. The visions are symbols rather than pictures. Truth that he felt God wanted carried to the struggling Christians must be expressed. To express it literally would have intensified the hardships of persecution. Thus John used the Apocalypse or Revelation as his literary carrier for the truth. The Christians could discern its meaning. Officials of Rome would not understand the symbolism.

The Message and Result.

Glowing promises for those who overcome and endured are found in his message. Warning against the careless luke-warm faith and conduct of some of the members of churches are abundant. Exhortation to endure and be ready for the spiritual appearance of their Lord, promises of glorious victory for the ones who suffered but endured, these are the stimulating messages. There is also a note of too much revenge. This came out of the bitterness of persecution and the standards of the time. Faithful friends carry the letter to its destination. This weird assembly of visions did much to strengthen the faith of the churches. It was a most valuable treasure and served its purpose well. We can still find much of religious vigor and worth in the message of John to the churches in Asia.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE

One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

THE LIFE OF THE DEAD.

LESSON: Jno. 5:25-29.

"The dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God." Verse 25.

Apparently John is talking about those who are spiritually dead. Of these, the Lord says, that they "shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and live."

There are many ways in which the Lord speaks to us; for instance "the Spirit beareth witness with our spirit"; the call of love, justice, peace, mercy, brotherliness, and the "Milk of human kindness," is a voice; the work that he does for man; the good that comes out of crises; the truth of life, and the fact of science; the appeal of righteousness; conscience within; noble impulses; all speak the voice of God. But one of these voices is the gospel. To hear this with understanding is life. It is spoken with such power that the dead and all who hear shall rise and live in God.

And as certain as any thing of God's word is true, there will come a time when one will hear. "Every knee shall bow and every tongue confess him;" the good shall hear him unto the resurrection of life, while the wicked will hear him unto the "resurrection of damnation." Hear, Obey and Live.

Prayer—Merciful God give us the ear of the spirit, that we may obey thy call and become heirs of life. Oh thou Judge of our hearts, grant we beseech thee that we may behold thee with joy when thou shall come in the glory of thy heavenly Father. Amen.

TUESDAY.

IN EARTHEN VESSELS.

LESSON: II. Cor. 4:7-18.

"We have this treasure in earthen vessels." Verse 7.

If we look at the things which are seen only, we are certain to be most miserable. We must have spiritual perception to see the unseen things. It is the unseen things that are of most value. The good there is in the world is the real value of the world, yet good is unseen. Gratitude is a treasured value among us, yet gratitude is a spiritual unseen thing. Love is the highest good, yet love is unseen.

These are the things that make the bare things of life tolerable; that make "our light afflictions but for a moment." It is in the earthen vessel of the flesh that this power of eternal consciousness is bestowed. Isn't it wonderful that it is? Even afflictions work a "more exceeding weight of glory."

Prayer—Merciful God, make us to rejoice in thy hope and let our place be among the saints both here and there. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE EARTHEN VESSEL DISSOLVED.

LESSON: II. Cor. 5:1-10.

"If our earthly house of this Tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God—eternally in the heavens."

We are willing that this earthen vessel of our bodies should be dissolved, for there is another body, eternal in its nature, awaiting us. We should be willing for the exchange any day.

Therefore let us examine ourselves and ask whether we feel the solemn import of death; whether we long after the heavenly habitation; whether our labor is acceptable unto him; whether we have an earnest spirit for such an inheritance; so that we dare die without fear, and go to meet God.

Prayer—Lord Jesus, give us thy spirit, draw our hearts to thee, and make us zealous to walk acceptably in thy sight, walking in thy light, led by thy hand, and governed, chastened and comforted by the spirit. Amen.

THURSDAY.

DESTRUCTION OF THE LAST ENEMY.

LESSON: I. Cor. 15:20-27.

"The last enemy to be destroyed is death."

By his death and resurrection Christ overcame the enemies of our souls, and His work is to deliver every individual from the power of the enemy to the Father.

In what way is this wrought about? It is wrought about by the process of death. Paul says, "I die daily," "the last enemy to be destroyed is death," death within us, the ultimate of the flesh, creeps upon life more and more and as it does, one is humbled and dies from the world until the soul quits. As Christ arose and conquered, so shall we. Death merely becomes a door of entrance into the kingdom of Heaven or as some one has said, "a ferry to the shores of eternity."

It is very hard to look upon death as such a friend, in health and strength; we revolt against it with all our being. It comes from the Devil and is the enemy of God, but it shall be destroyed. Paul to Timothy said, "Jesus Christ who both abolished death."

When the saints shall have been perfected; when the dead shall have been raised up, and the "new earth and the new heaven" shall come; then shall His work be finished, and He will take us all to the Father.

Prayer—Dear Father, grant unto us all the blessed experience of seeing the things of this world clearly in the heights of Heaven. In Jesus name we ask it. Amen.

FRIDAY.

UNTIL HE COME.

LESSON: Matt. 24:15-28.

"Be ye steadfast immovable always abounding in the work of the Lord."—I. Cor. 15:58.

The Christian religion has proven its power to conquer the world. The Lord's command to "go ye into all the world and make disciples of all nations" is being carried out, though results seem to be slow. Results are slow because the enemies of God are hindering the Kingdom's coming. They who revolt against His teaching; they who deny His divinity; they who are willingly led astray and turn their backs upon His guiding light; are holding it back.

But we shall not be among those. We believe we shall remain true, we shall stick to the church that gave us birth, we shall try to love, we shall be careful to live a "holy life" and to exercise the godliness of waiting for His coming, we shall look to our fig tree to see if the branches are in contact and bearing fruit, we shall watch and pray until He come, we shall try to prepare ourselves for the Lord.

Prayer—Help us, O God, and keep us united in thy love. Preserve us in faith and give us power to turn the wiles of Satan to naught. Grant that we may stand fast girded about with thy truth with lamps trimmed and burning, ready to go forth to meet Him when He comes. Amen.

SATURDAY.

A GLORIOUS AWAKENING.

LESSON: I. Thess. 4:13-18.

"If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even to them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him."

To Paul there is such an intimate connection between the resurrection of Christ and our resurrection, that he says, "If there is no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen."

There is a sweet consolation in believing that when we close our eyes in death we shall open them upon the glory of God and hear him say, "Well done."

But to merit this benediction we must separate ourselves from the lusts of this world, from the enemies of the soul and walk in the newness of life, as it is in Christ Jesus.

Prayer—Lord Jesus, give us the grace of thy Holy Spirit, that we may believe thy word and await thy glorious coming. Amen.

SUNDAY.

HE WHO SINS NOT.

LESSON: I. Jno. 5:18-21.

"Whosoever is born of God, sineth not."

When Saint John here says that "Whosoever is born of God sineth not," and in the same epistle declares that "if a man sin, we have an advocate with the Father," he clearly means that true believers do not live in sin, but walk in truth, shun wickedness, and keep the commandments of God. They are on their guard to be delivered from the power of the devil, and they strive for the victory every day.

Prayer—Dear Lord, give us such a clean living that the wicked one shall not touch us. Make us vigilant and faithful unto our dying hour. We put our trust in thee. Suffer our eyes not to grow dim, but enable us to see thee with greater clearness all the way. Amen.

WHY THE DENOMINATIONAL COLLEGE?

Bible. However, the Bible is not taught simply as history, literature, poetry and philosophy, but as the Word of God. In addition to these courses in the Bible, the denominational college also endeavors to develop the devotional and spiritual life of her students through the worship in the daily chapel exercises, through the worship of the church on the Sabbath, and through other religious organizations on the campus.

"The denominational college can apply the religious test, or any other test, in the selection of her students. If a student is hostile to Christianity he can be excluded on that ground. Even if he is not hostile to Christianity, but has an unwholesome influence on the student body, he can be excluded. By this selective process, the denominational college can create and maintain on the campus an atmosphere that is conducive to the development of the moral and spiritual life of the individual student. Perhaps the atmosphere on the campus has more to do with determining the religious life of the student than any other single factor."

Elon College, with her new president, with his free, frank, openminded spirit, with his congenial attitude toward students and faculty, with his honesty of purpose, Christian personality and spirit, with his approachableness, with his consecrated life, will soon win the hearts of the entire church and the support of the entire membership, and see the dawn of a new day in the educational and spiritual life of the denomination.

ARE YOUNG PEOPLE SAFE?

BY REV. E. C. BRADY.

(Delivered before the Western North Carolina Christian Conference, held at Shiloh Christian Church.)

"Is the young man Absalom safe?"—II. Sam. 18:29.

In order for us to get an intelligent answer to this or any other question it is necessary to get the setting or context.

If we go back a few chapters we find that David had more children than the one about whom we are to speak today. He had at least two other sons and one daughter. One brother, Amnon by name, committed adultery with his sister Tamar. As a result he immediately incurred the wrath of Absalom. From that day forth Absalom began to plot to kill him. In doing this, he forgot that there is a God who hath said, "Thou shalt not kill. Vengeance is mine, I will repay." Regardless of all the teachings concerning God and His omnipotence, Absalom's plot to kill Amnon reached its consummation in the death of his brother at a feast of the sheepshearers to which all the king's sons had been invited and to which they all went.

After the death of Amnon, Absalom fled over into the land of Goshen. What he did while there, we do not know, but we are told that David yearned to see him and longed to go to him not until Joab, a very near and dear friend of David, intrigued with David in disguise was Absalom permitted to return to Jerusalem. Even then, probably for unknown reasons, Absalom was not permitted to see the king David, but was sent to his own house. There he remained for two years without seeing his father. After having to provide for himself for five years he was very desirous of seeing the king. But he had to burn the barley fields of Joab before a reconciliation could be effected. He had called for Joab several times that he might send a message to his father but Joab never responded until ruin possessed his fields. Finally, when Joab asked for the king, recognition of Absalom the king commanded that he be brought forth. And when he came into his father's presence, even after five years absence, his heart was full of iniquity but David kissed him, young prodigal that he was, in recognition of him as a son and showed his gladness for his return.

Absalom was no sooner restored to the court than he aimed at the throne. He that was not humbled by his troubles became insufferably proud when they were over. The young man could not be contented with being the king's son and the next direct heir to the throne but he must be king now. Here he showed ingratitude because if he had had any sense of honor he would have studied how to oblige his father and make him easy; but on the contrary, he meditated on a plan to undermine and overthrow him by stealing away the hearts of his subjects. This he did and king David was temporarily dethroned. Valiant Joab headed David's army and fought those who had been turned away by Absalom. The battle which ensued was not a long one. Joab with David's army was victorious. Absalom was hung in a tree and stabbed by Joab. When the messenger brought word to the king regarding the outcome of the battle, he asked them a question in the words of our text, viz., "Is the young man Absalom safe?"

With these introducing remarks we have something of a foundation for an intelligent discussion of our text. In trying to answer the question asked by the text it will be necessary for us to consider some of the traits of Absalom and of king David in their turn because of the significant inheritance of son from father.

I. Absalom was a handsome young man.

In reading a Biblical account of a person where only his countenance is praised and nothing is said about his piety or virtue or prudence or wisdom, we may rather soon begin to question his character. The Bible speaks of his beauty in this way, "But in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty; from the sole of his feet to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him." His father was, for the most part, a wise, consecrated and devoted man of God, but Christian parents cannot give Christian graces to their children regardless of how good educational opportunities they may place before them. One of the outstanding traits mentioned in connection with Absalom was his beauty. Poor commendation for a man who has nothing in him more valuable or admirable. Because handsome are they that handsome do. Many a polluted and deformed soul dwells in a fair and comely body, witness Absalom's, that was polluted with blood and deformed with an un-natural disaffection to the king. In his body there was no blemish at all but oh! the terribleness of the state of his mind which was only filled with poison and pollution. This may be and no doubt is the reason why his father was always so desirous of protecting him from justice. Indeed, those have reason to fear affliction in their children when they are better. It is notable, too, that young and fair Absalom had a very beautiful head of hair which no doubt formed the halter which suspended him between the heavens and the earth and permitted Joab to pierce his heart with three daggers, thus causing the death knell to be broadcast throughout the kingdom. Truly, a miserable thing that people never hear anything about a person but his beauty, his stature, and personalities.

II. Absalom was a crafty young man.

For five years this young man was deprived of seeing his father's face. Even after Joab had secured permission for him to return to Jerusalem, he was not permitted to see the king for two years, not until after he had sent for Joab several times for the express purpose of sending him to the king with a message of reconciliation. But Joab never heeded until Absalom ordered his servants to set Joab's fields on fire. For two whole years Joab had been disregarding the entreaties of Absalom but the moment he learned of this disaster he was willing to make a visit of inquiry. From the craftiness exemplified by Absalom we can get a spiritual lesson. It is this: Is it not with God as with Absalom that when He calls us to come unto Him lovingly, voluntarily and then if we refuse that He sets our barley fields on fire, or our hope of gain whatever it may be, and then says, "Now they will pray!" Yes, we have abandoned God's Church, we have deserted His Book, we have released ourselves from our religious responsibilities and obligations; God calls and we will not hear, then He sets all the harvest in a blaze and we become submissive instantaneously. Or He may speak to His people in a sterner and harsher way through His wind, or rain, or thunder, or lightning. Does not God often express a message of love in a burning flame? Yes, He works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform.

III. A Third attribute was his ambition.

"He rose up early."—II. Sam. 15:2. Ambition is commendable when rightly directed. It was a bid for popularity with Absalom as well as an expression of genuine energy. We admire this. He meant to do. He was no sluggard. He did

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friend:

Thanksgiving Day has come and gone and we trust every one had a good day filled with many blessings. We also trust that while you were enjoying the day and the many blessings the Lord had blessed you with that you let your thoughts turn toward the Christian Orphanage sometime during the day, with its 105 little children and as you counted your many blessings during the year, one by one, that you let some of the love in your heart reach out toward these little children in their dependence and that you decided to give something to help give them a chance in life. They are dependent, not because it is any choice of their own, but circumstances which they could not help made it so. Can a little child prevent its parents from being poor, or can it prevent sickness and death visiting its home and taking those it loves most and best? Not at all. Don't you believe it will make your heart a little more tender if you give something to help care for them? Don't you think it will bring you just a little closer to the Master? Don't you think you should feel some of the responsibility in seeing to it that they have bread to eat and training that will make them useful citizens? Then why not show your interest by your gifts. When the Thanksgiving offering is taken in your church, won't you take a part in it? If you cannot be there and cannot send your offering, mail it direct to the Christian Orphanage. How easy it would be to support the Christian Orphanage if every member of the Christian denomination would do his or her part. It might be very small, but it would help some. At this Thanksgiving season, let us do our best for our Orphanage.

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch

The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller.

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its unique quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling to each other.

The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

CYPRESS CHAPEL.

Conference at Bethlehem, and the first session of that body was held here in 1869.

From that time to the present Cypress Chapel has been known as one of the strong country churches of the Christians in Eastern Virginia, supporting the schools and other institutions of the denomination. Her sons have taken high rank in the professions, and one is now a Chaplain in the U. S. Navy.

In 1925, plans were laid to erect a modern church in the place of the one built in 1870, and the corner stone was laid on September 3, 1925, and in due course it was completed, and is one of the modern church plants in this section, representing an outlay of several thousand dollars.

On this historical ground, people worshiped God under three flags, the English, the United States, the Confederate States, and again under the Stars and Stripes, but it was the religion of the living God that they sought each time. Her members have been men and women of sterling worth, noble character, loyal to their fellowmen, to their community, their State, and their God.

THE SUN'S PULPIT.

not begin his day at 12:00 o'clock, but he awaited the appearance of the sun over the eastern horizon to dispel the darkness and gloom of the long and weary night. If men can get up early to do that which is traitorous, unholy and unworthy, can we, as followers of the living God, afford to be sleeping away our opportunities?

IV. Absalom was undermining.

This is clearly shown in the scheme which he used to turn the people against his father. He rose up early and stood beside the gate so that when any person came to the king with a controversy, he could subvert his mind by belittling the king and praising himself—by belittling the present administration and making glowing promises which he could never fulfill even if he should become the judge. When any man came to the king by way of the gate where he sat, he would make a few introductory remarks and then begin his scheme of subversion in the following way: "See, thy matters are good and right but there is no man deputed of the king to hear thee. Oh that I were made judge in the land that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me and I would do him justice." But men have but one speech and they, like Satan who is the father of all lies, keep repeating it throughout the ages.

Was the young man Absalom safe? Would he have been safe if there had been no devastating war and he had still been alive? No! A thousand times no. Because any young person whose life is dominated by the characteristics that rule this life must some day come to an untimely end.

But let us go back of the stage upon which Absalom moved and see if we find any cause there.

David's life is a praiseworthy example when considered in its entirety, but it is not without its fault. One day long ago David looked from his palatial home, extended his arm, exercised his authority and a reeking gore was placed yonder in the hill country of Palestine. Two commandments had been broken. Shall we expect David's world to move on smoothly? No. Earth was heaped upon Uriah's dead breast but there was a bleeding furnace. Shall Uriah's offspring avenge? Truth crushed to earth will rise again. There was a son who followed in David's train. As further punishment he was told that the sword should never depart from his house. His harp was broken, his throat was choked, for songs he had moanings, groanings, and distresses. The way of the transgressor."

In closing we wonder if the young people of any local church, community, county, state or nation are safe today. We seek an answer in the selfsame question asked and answered about the old folks of any church, county, state, or nation being safe. The answer to the first query is none other than the identical answer you may give to the second one. The young people are safe when and not until the old folks are safe. So true indeed are the words of Him who would make a benefactor live on by citing his outstanding achievements in a funeral sermon or obituary notice that we are all agreed, that no man has ever really died who really lived. Just so no generation of people have ever lived who have failed to train the young in the right paths. The Bible speaks in no uncertain terms relative to the traitor. It were better for Judas that he had never been born than for such brave boldness, daring greed, and drastic action to characterize that period of his life after he had been at the feet of the lowly Nazarene for lo! those three or three and one-half years. Would to God that the sun might refuse to shine not from the sixth to the ninth hour only but from the first to the last hour rather than for the world to be filled by traitors and perpetrators, sons and daughters of careless and lust-crazed progeny.

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

NEW TERM OPENS JANUARY 25th, and any student may begin the college work at that time.

OBITUARIES.

JOYNER.

Whereas, the God of love and wisdom has seen fit to call from her earthly labors to her heavenly reward, one of our faithful and beloved members, Mrs.

W. J. Joyner, and, whereas, in her going we keenly sense our loss, yet not without hope, knowing our loss works to her an excellent weight of glory, be it therefore resolved,

1. That we, the members of the Ladies' Aid and Woman's Missionary Societies of Bethlehem Christian Church humbly bow in a true spirit of resignation to the will of God and say, "Not our will, but Thine be done."

2. That we pattern our lives after the goodness and brightness of her life in such a way that our lives may reflect the same spirit of Christian sunshine.

3. That we honor her precious memory and consecrated life by carrying on the work that was so dear to her life, until that day when we shall know even as we are known.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, a copy to The Christian Sun for publication, and a copy be recorded in the records of the Ladies' Aid Society and Woman's Missionary Society of Bethlehem Christian Church.

Respectfully,

THE SUN'S OBSERVATORY

By DR. W. C. WICKER.

WHY A DENOMINATIONAL COLLEGE?—

Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College says, "But after all has been said, a denominational College has no right to live unless, along with her Christian ideas, she strives to maintain high educational standards. The writer once heard the president of a denominational College say in a facetious way that he was trying to reduce lying to a minimum in the Catalogue of his college. A denominational college should be honest through and through. Not only so, but within the bounds of the curriculum that she teaches she should strive to give an education that is equal to the best that can be had."

ADVANTAGE OF SMALL COLLEGE.—

Practically all denominational colleges are still comparatively small. The small college has some decided advantages. The teachers and students know each other. The small college is a friendly place. In fact it is one large family. It would be difficult to find a better place for your son or daughter than a small college which has high educational standards, high Christian ideas, a Christian faculty and a Christian student body. The denominational college, with its Christian ideas, not only has a right to live, but, so far as we can see now, it is absolutely essential to the well-being of the Church and of the Christian home. The larger majority of our ministers come from denominational colleges. In addition to the ministers, a large body of laymen, including elders, deacons, Sunday School superintendents are being educated in denominational colleges."

FINANCIAL STRUGGLES.—

"The denominational college is doing such a distinctive and essential work that it is worthy of the fullest support of the Church and of individual Christians. There is no investment which will yield larger dividends in life and service than an investment in a Christian College. The majority of our denominational colleges are having such severe financial struggles that they are finding it difficult to maintain their high educational standards and ideals, and to keep step with the progress which is being made in the educational world. It would be a great thing if the church and Christian individual would rise up and meet in an adequate way the financial needs of the denominational colleges."

ELON COLLEGE CAMPAIGN.—

Our Elon College is in great need of immediate financial support to save the institution to the church, and to assure our new president, Dr. L. E. Smith, that the church will stand by the college and support him with their prayers, the gifts, their children and their Christian faith in Christ to save the church as the college may help in Christian leadership. We shall lose Dr. Smith as president unless we act and act immediately and liberally in our gifts to the college. But if the entire membership of the church and the friends of the college will help before January 15, 1932, we shall save the college and keep our president. We cannot meet this crisis by waiting for others to act nor by hoping some other way will be provided, nor by expecting our president to change

"We'll Save It."

(Tune: "Lead on, Oh King Eternal!")

1. Rise up! Oh men and women,
The clarion call obey,
For Elon lies in peril!
Oh, may this be the day,
When countless prayers ascending,
With faith, put doubts to chase,
We'll save our dear old Elon,
We'll save it by His grace.
2. God answers prayer in efforts
Put forth by Christian men,
Then rally to the rescue,
And help our College win.
By close co-operation,
A dollar and a prayer,
Our many gifts will save it,
Let each one have a share.
3. They challenge us,—our children,
"Consider,—dare and fight
For Christian education,
Our College and the right."
The Church must have her leaders,
Oh, haste! The work begin!
Save Elon with our children,
This drive is sure to win.
4. With Christ, who watches o'er us,
With Christ, whose name we love,
With Christ who loved among us,
And now who reigns above,
We'll save this Institution.
"Free from all debt," our aim,
To Him be all the glory,
Blest be His Holy Name!

—Mrs. J. L. Foster,
Elon College, N. C.

his mind and stay without support. No man can save the college without liberal support.

HOW CAN IT BE DONE?—

By every minister taking the lead and pushing the organization in his churches for the college, it can be done. Every member of every church should make some gift to this fund. There will be no high-pressure methods used, but the Christian way of liberal, free contributions of all the people. The small gift will be appreciated as truly as the larger one, but each should do his best. If we cannot give money, give wheat, flour, corn, bacon, etc., anything that can be used in the boarding department of the college, and make up a truck load and take it to the college. Every child in the church and Sunday school should give for the purpose not only of the gift but to cultivate a love for the college in the child's mind so that in the future the child will want to be educated at the college.

GAVE LOVE AND LOYALTY.—

Our president is a Christian minister who has made good in whatever he has undertaken. If economy, hard work, open policy, cooperation, frankness, good business methods, and the confidence of the people will save Elon, we can be assured of her success; but all these things, however excellent they may be, cannot save the college without money to pay urgent debts and moral obligations. It is our college, our obligations, our responsibility and with love and loyalty we should respond liberally to the demands upon us. The first and biggest gifts are love and loyalty, and then do all we can financially and do it now or never for unless we do the college will be lost.

WET AND DRY AT PRINCETON.—

The Presbyterian, Philadelphia, reports that at a recent poll of the 545 freshmen in Princeton University this fall reveals that there are 190 who claim they drink, and 355 who are total abstainers. Last year's freshmen had a majority on the wet side. It goes on to say: "This is a very remarkable change. We believe it is due partly to the educational work which is now being done by temperance people. These young men have been in the high schools and preparatory schools since 1925. That year marked the time when America awakened to the realization that the Eighteenth Amendment had not affected the human constitution of man, even if it had changed the federal Constitution of the body politic, and that unless boys and girls were taught and told, they would become drinkers, even as their fathers and mothers. As a result of this, the temperance forces 'snapped out' of their song singing and jubilee spirit and went to work. See the result. The saloon was vanquished by the old school textbooks, in which the dangers of alcohol were expounded. The liquor menace can be kept down if the facts can be brought properly to the attention of youth. This Princeton poll on this subject is verified further by the fact that the boys show good sense in other questions they settled: They prefer the scholastic honor, Phi Beta Kappa, to the athletic letter, and their ideal girl must have 'beauty, brains, personality, sense of humor, and charm,' all of which reminds us of qualifications which a 'new pastor' is supposed to possess."

NOTES-PERSONALS

Rev. R. Lee House, pastor of our Newport News church, writes: "I am enjoying my work her every much. The good people make it very pleasant for me. At this Thanksgiving period, I am thankful for this church and grateful for the privilege of serving here."

Deacon J. W. Felton, of Elm Avenue Church, writes: "We have had ten to unite with the church recently and have added 100 new pupils to the Sunday School this summer and early fall. Our church is working well, and the prospects seem bright and hopeful. We certainly enjoyed the work and leadership of Mr. Fentress and gave him a nice present when he left us."

Rev. W. T. Scott, Salisbury, was a visitor at the editors' office the past week and reports much interest manifested in the prospect of a church in Winston-Salem, N. C. While serving as pastor at Salisbury, Brother Scott goes to Winston Sunday evenings, and quite a promising group of former members cheer his heart with their presence and with their expressions of hope for a United Congregational-Christian Church in this prosperous and thriving city.

The first pastorate Dr. L. E. Smith held after graduation from Elon College was that of First Church, Greensboro, N. C., and to this church he returned Sunday, December 6th, for his first sermon as president of Elon. Many friends and admirers of the former days of his pastorate were in the congregation Sunday to greet him, not as a student fresh from Elon's classic halls, but as president now of the college that gave him training and equipment and sent him out to do a great work for his church and the kingdom.

Dr. W. C. Wicker, president of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, is giving his time and energy to soliciting the pastors and churches of his conference in behalf of Elon College, seeking to get everyone in the conference to make some donation to the college. By a hearty co-operative effort on the part of all, Elon will not only be saved in this time of trial and testing, but will emerge more glorious and more beautiful than ever. The church has a right to expect every man, woman and child now to do his or her duty.

Many of us excuse ourselves from effort and obligation in times like these on the ground that we are in a period of depression and adversity, promising ourselves we will do better when times are better. Surely, we forget the wisdom of the one who said, and very truly, "We measure the greatness of man by what he does in adversity." True greatness and genuine goodness are not looking for an excuse or an opportunity to sidestep. They face adversity, overcome circumstances and achieve and carry one in the face of difficulties. Only weaklings seek to cover their lives with excuses of adversity.

Another good woman wishes printed again in THE CHRISTIAN SUN that the Thank-Offering to be observed by the Woman's Missionary Societies this year either goes to the General Mission Fund, since there is a deficit, or to Dr. Wilder's hospital in Madura, India. We are advised that the blue-prints for Wilder's new hospital have been approved by the British Government in India. The English community in Madura, aided by several Indian leaders, has made very generous subscriptions. The hospital is assured greater usefulness when its new building is completed. It is very, very much needed and is certainly a most worthy investment for those who wish to give something to the relief of real needy, suffering humanity.

Rev. W. L. Wells, formerly a minister in the Christian church, and who occupied several of our important pulpits—Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., Reidsville, N. C., and others—and who later united with the Presbyterian Church and spent his last years in the ministry of that communion, died at his home in Raleigh, N. C., November 26th, and his funeral was conducted from the First Presbyterian Church of Raleigh, Friday, November 27th. Brother Wells was a man of marked consecration and piety and lived out his days in faithful, devoted service to God and his fellowman. Truly a good man has gone to his reward. He was in poor health the last few years of his life, but through it all remained faithful and true to his high calling and gave to the world an example of Christian manhood.

Mrs. W. V. Leathers, presenting her report as treasurer of the Woman's Board, Eastern Virginia Conference, writes: "My report seems to be later than the others, but it is also the best so far as finances are concerned. Over $2,000.00 ahead of any of the other reports, and I only wish it could have been $3,000.00. My report is late because I was not able to get in all bills and items, as I wanted to close the year before I sent in the report. I do not know, of course, whether we will reach the $7,500.00, our goal, for this year, but we are certainly going to put forth a desperate effort." The women of the Eastern Virginia Societies are certainly setting a good pace for the societies of the other conferences and are thus stimulating activity and effort in the best of all good causes.

Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, and Rev. Stanley C. Harrell, Durham, N. C., chairman of the campaign committee for North Carolina, met with the ministers and a group of laymen of the Eastern North Carolina Conference in Raleigh, Monday afternoon, November 30th, to discuss ways and means of conducting a campaign among all the churches and the people in behalf of Elon College. Such a campaign is being conducted in the conferences of North Carolina and Virginia with three specific objectives: 1st. To enlist the names of 10,000 donors who contribute something, make some gift, to Elon College. 2nd. To secure a total of $50,000.00. 3rd. To secure fifty new students for the second semester at Elon College. A similar meeting with the ministers of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, under the active leadership of Dr. C. H. Rowland, chairman, was held at Elon College, Friday, December 4th, and for the Western North Carolina Conference at Ramseur, Saturday, December 5th. Every effort is being made by Dr. Smith and his helpers to give every man, woman and child in the church the opportunity of making a donation of some size to Elon in its present necessity.

We speak of "hard times" in and around us. We simply do not know what the term means in comparison, for instance, with the following as reported by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America: "In China, fifty millions of God's creatures have been swept from their life's moorings by the most appalling flood in history. Thirty million of these are destitute, without homes, clothing, or the means of resuming their normal lives. Ten million of these men, women, and children are confronted with starvation. The cold of winter and the havoc of raging epidemics, that are ever a part of famine, will intensify the prevailing horrors. Water still covers thousands of square miles of farm lands and village sites. It will be January before the waters recede. The Government is doing everything in its power to aid its people, but outside assistance is desperately needed." Rev. E. C. Lobenstein, Executive Secretary of the National Christian Council of China, says, "This calamity must rank as one of the greatest natural disasters of modern times. Conditions in China make it impossible for the Chinese Government alone to cope in any adequate way with the disaster. The generous cooperation of benevolent people in all lands is needed to supplement what the Government can do. The world is increasingly being led, often against its will, to realize that the nations are all members one of another, and that if one member of the human family suffers, the other members suffer with it."

METHODS CORNER

By REV. ELISHA A. KING, D. D.

Miami Beach, Fla.

The social life of a church is one of its strongest features. Anything that can be done to foster it is a good thing. I heard the other day of a church in New England that had a church party. The invitation declared that a meeting such as was planned strengthens the bond of fellowship and produces satisfactory results. A supper was planned by a committee and a program of entertainment was provided. The invitation stated also that some church official would talk to the people who came to the party about some phases of church work. It also announced that a collection would be taken to help defray the expenses so as to make it democratic. The expense was very small. The letter further said that the committee did not want anyone to stay away on account of the money because it was not money that was wanted. The committee desired above everything else to have the church members present.

The purpose of the party was to get church members together so that the minister and others could talk over plans of work for the church for the coming winter season. From private information from the church where this was tried out we learn that in that particular church it was necessary to have two such parties to accommodate all the members who desired to come. Furthermore, we learned that such parties are held often. They are something like what we call down here "Covered Dish Dinners," or more commonly known as "Pot Luck Dinners or Suppers." Those who come bring what they please and it is all put together on a table and after supper the business is transacted about the table. It is a splendid way of getting people together for the transaction of business and the social value is very great.

This is a method that can be used in many ways. I used to teach a Bible class that met for a simple supper, the expense of which was met by the young men present. We sat about the table for an hour or two studying. The first Bible class I ever belonged to met once a week in the Y. M. C. A., where we got our own supper and then spent the evening studying the Bible. It is a fact that a meal opens the lips in speech and stimulates good feeling. People must eat and it is a wise church that takes advantage of this fact and turns it to a good use.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

REV. W. H. TILLMAN and REV. N. A. LONG were fraternal travelers from West Florida and South Alabama on the Fellowship Teams of the Iowa and Minnesota Conferences. They enjoyed this excellent service and the interchange of ideas.

ALABAMA CONFERENCE VETERANS at the State conference were Rev. Samuel Long, of Midland City, Rev. Casabianca E. Burkett, of Dozier, and Rev. Willie G. Miller, of Dorcas, West Florida, as well as Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, who has been building in the Southeast for a period of between forty and forty-five years.

HAVE YOU PAID YOUR APPORTIONMENT for 1931 yet? Be sure to send it to Dr. W. Knighton Bloom, 933 Woodward Building, Washington, D. C., before December 15th, if possible. This is a goal set by the churches of the Carolinas and Georgia. How many will do it? Some have already reached their quota. Let every one try. In preparing to make our Christmas gifts to friends let us not forget Jesus.

THE WEST FLORIDA ASSOCIATION meeting was held at New Effort Church near Bonifay. Rev. Willie C. Miller was Moderator. Rev. W. H. Tillman, Rev. S. F. Commander, Rev. John Alford, Rev. W. H. H. Joyce, and Rev. F. P. Ensminger were other ministers present. Gopher Linzy, a young man, is pastor of one of the newer churches. Miss Marguerite Davison, with the help of the children and young people, gave a demonstration of the costumes worn by the people of foreign lands. The place and power of the country church was the general theme of the sessions.

AT GREGORYVILLE, KENTUCKY, the ministers of the Kentucky State Christian Conference met for a Ministerial Retreat under the guidance of Dr. Hermon Eldredge, of Dayton, Ohio, J. M. Trosper and F. P. Ensminger, all of whom received most cordial welcome and attention. Secretary Eldredge makes Christian service the greatest field of human endeavor. His understanding and human sympathy give his messages power. As the teacher of an adult class in the church school he brings the study of years to his hearers. Rev. G. W. E. Wolford is president and Rev. W. E. Robinson is secretary of this conference. The building at Gregoryville is new. The organization is thriving.

THE ALABAMA CONFERENCE OF CONGREGATIONAL AND CHRISTIAN CHURCHES.

This conference held its second annual meeting at Phenix City in the beautiful new church built by Rev. Charles W. Smith, the Alabama builder of Congregational Churches. Beulah Christian Church, of Phenix City, assisted in the entertainment. Speakers of the two denominational groups alternated on the program. It was regretted that Dr. J. O. Atkinson, who was to balance Dr. Bloom at one session, was unable to be present on account of a North Carolina conference meeting. Alabama is proud of Southern Union College and of Thorsby Institute. Dr. Frank E. Jenkins spoke for the educational institutions and reviewed some of the progress of our institutions of the Southeast, retailing some of the struggles out of which they have emerged to finely serve. Professor E. H. Sperow, of Southern Union College, who is most popular there, had a good message for the meeting.

The discussion of the topic, "What Our Rural Churches Most Need," by Rev. J. D. Dollar, after good talks by Pastors C. W. Carter, J. E. Each, H. M. Gray, J. H. Hughes, N. A. Long, A. Calvin Nelson, and W. H. Tillman, brought out many hopeful attitudes.

Rev. C. H. Veazey, Miss Verla Barnett of Southern Union, and Miss Marguerite Davison spoke for young peoples' work. Mrs. V. E. Kitchens and Mrs. E. W. Butler, respectively, told what the Christian and the Congregational women are attempting.

Reports showed that two thousand quarts of canned stuff had been put up by the church people to be sold for the mission cause or given to educational institutions for Christian education.

Rev. G. D. Hunt and Rev. Samuel Long presided at the sessions and Rev. N. A. Long and Rev. W. H. Tillman acted as scribes. Rev. J. D. Dollar was chosen moderator for the coming year. Dr. W. Knighton Bloom spoke on "Adventurous Evangelism," and conducted the ministerial retreat, which occupied the entire morning on the last day of the meeting. Rev. C. W. Carter preached the first sermon. The largest church auditorium of the city—the Central Methodist—was offered for the sermon of Dr. Trevor Mordecai, which was preceded by the devotional service led by Professor W. C. Edge. Dr. Mordecai told the brethren of his Conference of his experiences and program, and brought some great thoughts for their consideration. He was warmly welcomed as was also the church delegation from Birmingham. These consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Akers, Mr. and Mrs. Bonham, Mrs. Plosser, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Dr. and Mrs. Mordecai. Miss Helen Dizney, head nurse of the Esther Barton Hospital of Taikou, Shansi, China, made her first public appearance in Alabama at the Conference, where she spoke twice to the delight of her auditors. The Conference made gains all along the line this last year.

CONFERENCE AT WADLEY.

Collegeside Church, Nashville, entertained its first annual conference this year. Moderator Edwin E. White was at his best. The sermon of Dr. Trevor Mordecai, of Birmingham, on the topic, "The Secret of Revelation," delighted the company. Chaplain George W. Blount brought strong messages. Six valiant ministers: Marston S. Freeman, Jason Noble Pierce, W. Knighton Bloom, A. L. DeJarnette, C. Rexford Raymond, and Edwin E. White wrestled in discussion with the findings of the six seminars at a morning session and then, under the leadership of Professor E. T. Krueger of the Department of Sociology of Vanderbilt University, brought out striking points in them for the public at night.

Mrs. Louise Owings Charlton, United States Commissioner for the Northern District of Alabama, and a leader in the Birmingham church, brought new points of view and first-hand information as she discussed the topic, "Youth and Crime." Dr. Robert A. George had a paper which was well reported by the press. Principal Oscar M. Fogle of Pleasant Hill Academy commended his program to the brethren by his fine attitudes. Dr. May C. Wharton interested them more than ever in the Upland Sanatorium cause.

The young people had a great time at their banquet under the leadership of Miss Marguerite Davison and her corps of helpers, including students from the School of Religion, and Miss Dorothy French. The Ridgetop young people had the largest delegation.

The conference attendance at the capital city was fifty per cent larger than usual. Mrs. Marston S. Freeman presided at the session for Woman's Work. Scarritt College gave the use of its beautiful Wightman Chapel for two of the night sessions, and Ward-Belmont College allowed the use of its chapel for the other night. The music was superb. On two nights it was furnished through Professor Stetson Humphey of Ward-Belmont, who is the chorister of Collegeside church. On the first night the Mozart Society of Fisk University gave heavenly music. Foreign students of Scarritt College added to the missionary interest. Dr. Bloom presented the program of the commission on missions. Rev. A. Nightingale was elected moderator for the coming year.

The day sessions, for the most part, were held in Collegeside House, where the young peoples' banquet was also served. Finer hospitality there could not have been than was displayed by the Pierce family and the women and members of Collegeside Church. A leading feature of the meeting were the discussions conducted by Rev. A. L. DeJarnette.

The conference greatly rejoiced to receive Dr. Jason Noble Pierce into membership, feeling that this marked a happy milestone in its progress.

The conference made gains in church and church school enrollment, apportionment gifts and property valuation but not in local expense, according to last reports.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL TRAINING SCHOOLS.

Interdenominational Leadership Training Schools are growing in numbers and interest in Florida. They are promoted by the Congregational, Presbyterian, U. S. and U. S. A., Methodist Episcopal, South and North, and Disciples of Christ Churches, with Episcopalians and Lutherans uniting in some places. Schools have been held in St. Petersburg, Jacksonville, and West Palm Beach this fall, and a fine school has been planned for the churches of greater Miami, to be held in White Temple Methodist Episcopal Church, November 29th to December 4th. Schools will be held in Tampa, Key West, Ft. Myers, and several other places in the spring.

Miss Pattie Lee Coghill, Extension Worker, teaches in the schools in which Congregational Churches participate, and has taught "The Pupil," "Training in Worship and the Devotional Life," and "Adolescent Psychology." These Schools have been helpful because of the variety of courses offered through the cooperative effort, and while teaching in them, Miss Coghill holds personal conferences with the young people, and other officers and teachers in the Sunday Schools, as well as talking to young people's groups, meeting with teachers and officers, and helping with the missionary activities.

Self-sacrifice Villa is a strange name, isn't it, for a house? It is the outgrowth of the little church in Ishinomaka, Japan, where Miss Martha R. Stacy has been at work. A young man unable to work because of spinal trouble, gave all he could in strength and thought to the church. He and another similarly minded youth hired a sunny apartment and established a Christian home. Later four young men, led to Christ and trained at the Villa, were received into the church. The monthly paper of the church is published there. So the Villa is becoming a strong center of Christian influence, feeding the mother church with inquirers and new members.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

THE SMALL COLLEGE.

There are, according to recent figures, approximately 1,000,000 college students in the United States. Of this number, approximately one-fourth—250,000—are in state institutions; approximately an equal number in the larger and richer endowed private universities (Harvard, Yale, Stanford, for example). The remaining 500,000 college students are getting their education in the small liberal arts colleges, the greater part of which are church colleges. These church colleges are, for the most part, supported by doubtful and seemingly insecure incomes, but they manage to carry on through the years, and to give to the nation a very large per cent. of its distinguished statesmen, and practically all of the leaders in church and religious life.

We are passing now through conditions which are trying the church colleges to the limit of their strength and ability. The question with many of them is as to whether they can keep open, and carry on, as in former years. On this account, many men and women of the church, not only of our Christian Church, but of other communions as well, are asking the question: "Since we pay taxes to help support state institutions, why tax ourselves to help support our church college?" The answer to that question is obvious from the above figures. If the small colleges of America, owned and supported by the church, were to close their doors, the state institutions, now filled to capacity, for the most part, would have to immediately increase their equipment two fold at least and taxes to support these institutions would have to be more than doubled. All the citizens of the state feel that they are taxed to the limit for the support of higher education, and if the church colleges were to close their doors, either half the college students would be debarred from college, or taxation for education would have to be very largely and immediately increased. This is the hard financial fact of the situation. The other and still harder fact is that the state does not attempt, and under the Constitution cannot attempt, religious education. We of America believe in the complete separation of Church and State, and so if Church is to have religious intelligence and control, the development of culture under the constraint and freedom of the truth, and the whole truth, then the church college must be sustained, and do its work. It isn't a question merely of educating a few ministers, its a question of education in an atmosphere fraught with Christian character, plans, Christian purposes, and pursuits which set truth free to do its full work in the world. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." That truth that makes men free has ever been cherished, sought and pursued, in a religious, a Christian atmosphere.

President Herbert Hoover, in his recent address over a nation-wide hook-up of the radio, was certainly justified in declaring that the small colleges of America were "the seed beds of our leadership."

The campaign of publicity in behalf of the small college is going on throughout the length and the breadth of the country, and this campaign has not been begun any too soon; in fact it has been long delayed, since there are many otherwise well-informed people who reckon little with the contribution to the nation, to the home, and to the world, of the small college. OUR CHURCH CALLS US.

This call to duty and to loyalty is not for Elon College, it is for the entire Church. There is not a local church in all the Convention whose welfare, progress and future are not linked up with Elon College. You simply cannot separate the College from the local church. They have become identified. The local church has contributed its money and its sons and daughters to Elon College; in return Elon College has contributed its life and labors to the local church. The college does not exist, it never has existed, for itself; it exists for the church. It was built by the church and for the church. The church realizes that it must have a college and then set about building it. The church now realizes that it must keep its college, and it sets about saving it. We need not point to our mistakes or our failures, neither can we take counsel of our fears. History itself records the blunders and the mistakes, the shortsightedness and the shortcomings, of all institutions, states and enterprises. We read history to find out the blunders and the mistakes of the past, as well as to discover the triumphs and the victories, so that profiting by the former, we may be inspired by the latter. We can profit by our mistakes, and wisdom always does, by guarding against the same mistakes in the same way for the future.

The whole church is now called upon to come to the relief of Elon College. This means that the whole church is called upon to come to the relief of every local church and every enterprise in the church, for if Elon College loses out in its present struggle, the other enterprises of the church go down with it, and the local churches, themselves, will begin to lose hope, to lose courage and to lose intelligent direction. The call of the college is the call of the church.

Solicitation is now going on in the various churches and among our people, to try to secure funds with which to save the college. It is desired that every man, woman and child shall contribute something, shall do something, to help save our college, to help encourage and help inspire our churches. If ever the church called in no unmistakable terms, it calls now, it calls long, and it calls loud. It has consecration, it was prayer, it was devotion, it was self-denial, that built our college. It must now be consecration, loyalty, prayer and self-denial that save our college. The church college is essential to every denomination, to its life and growth and prestige and power, and we have centered our efforts and our affections, our prayers and our sacrifices on Elon College. In doing this we help every enterprise of the church and every local church and every home in every church. Elon's call is the call of the church. J. O. A.

GOD ANSWERETH BY FIRE.

Elijah's challenge in the name of his God to the prophets of Baal was no novel one. That man of God put his congregation to the test to which people and congregations have had to be put for the centuries since then. "The God that answereth by fire, let him be God." (I. Kings 18:24). Fire consumes, but it also purifies; and God has kindled many a fire since Elijah's day that He might consume and purify. There is that in human nature, there is that in the history of all human institutions, which can be consumed in no other way than by fire. And there is that in human life, and in all human institutions, which can be refined and purified in no other way than by fire. Fire throughout the Word of God is a symbol of purification, of cleansing, of perfection, and of power. Not only so, but fire is the symbol also of purification; it is a symbol of pleading, of persuasion, of holy purpose. "For by fire and by His sword will the Lord plead with all flesh." (Isa. 66:16.) "For the Lord will be under her (Jerusalem), a wall of fire around about and will be the glory in the midst of her." Thus in the glory of the flame, in the refining, purifying heat thereof, God pleads with Jerusalem, while He protects her, that He may make her a choice and chaste city of righteousness unto Himself. And this is why John the Baptist, in the words of a true prophet, said: "I, indeed, baptize you with water: He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire." (Luke 3:16.) And this, too, is why our Lord declared, "I am come to send fire on the earth; and what will I, if it be already kindled." (Luke 12:49.)

We count it hard, difficult, trying when the day of consuming fire, purifying and pleading, though it be, come upon us, and yet God tries His own in that way and thus at once consumes the dross, and refines and strengthens the power to stand the test, thus preparing for greater power, purpose and pursuits. In this way, God tries institutions, individuals, enterprises. Many interpret fire as the symbol of God's anger, a token of God's wrath; and so it may be with the unholy and the impure; but with the true, the tried, and the faithful, it means a glorious invitation, a call for nobler tasks and pursuits. Paul understood this in writing to the Church at Corinth, when he said: "And the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." (I. Cor. 3:13.)

That which is most trying to man often turns out to be God's challenge, trial, the manifestation of His power and the revelation of His purifying presence. From Elijah's day to ours, God has manifested His supreme presence, majesty, might and purpose, by answering through fire. "The God that answereth by fire, let him be God. And all the people answered and said, 'It is well spoken.'" Our lives, our institutions, our enterprises, pass through the trials and the heartaches of fire. So God sees fit to purify, refine and strengthen. J. O. A.

UNIFORM SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

The plan for Uniform Sunday School Lesson was formally inaugurated in 1873, and, after being adopted by Canada and England, were called the International Sunday School Lesson. Each denomination published its own lesson helps; but the text of the lesson was the same for all schools in all denominations. After that came the graded lessons and publishers have placed these graded lessons before the public and many schools have adopted the graded lessons for their classes. The American Sunday School Union was organized in Philadelphia in 1824, and it has carried on its work for more than a hundred years. With all the changes and new features in Sunday School publications, nothing has equalled the International Uniform lessons for Sunday School work. That system always carries the Bible text with parallel readings and keeps the Scripture before the mind of the school. Much of the graded work deals in stories and leaves apart from the Bible text.

Whatever may be thought, said or written about children, young people and adults in the Sunday School, the Bible is the heart of the school. The use of the Uniform Lesson has done more to break down denominational ignorance and prejudice than any other one thing in the history of Protestantism. When all the people read the same texts, study the same lessons through the whole year it leaves an impression for unity that graded lessons can not make. The trend of denominations toward a common thought, the merging of denominations and local churches, the real friendliness and cooperation between churches in cities and denominations can be traced, largely, to the use of uniform lessons in the Sunday Schools throughout the world.

Another side thought is, that when a teacher of a graded lesson class is absent and some one, otherwise a good teacher, is called upon to take that class, she knows nothing about the graded lesson, but when the uniform lesson is used, all have studied the lesson and can help, on call, to take the place of an absent teacher.

NOT ALL FOR THE ASKING.

All is not ours just for the asking; as some people seem to think. There must be something in our supplications, deep, innate; some irrepressible yearning in the heart, for the things, for which we ask. The mere asking for blessings does not bring us much, but when we get down to rock bottom and ask for the blessings of life in the name of Jesus and according to the will of the Father those blessings are most certain to come. Expecting something for nothing has been a great evil of the ages, some people run their prayer life on the same principle; they are unwilling to pay the price. I believe we should want, to want, those things that God wants us to have; those things we can use to glory in the furtherance of His kingdom. Such mistakes do we make, in coming to God with our wants all planned to our choice, and importune Him to approve our plans, and give us the blessings that, we only, think we need. I was very much impressed not long ago, by a confession of Manhatma Gandhi, who said, "The more my faith in God increases the more deeply are my yearnings for prayer; life seems to be dull and vacant without it." This enlightened Hindu has learned the secret of life and this is the best explanation for his position of dominance. We are told that David Brainerd prayed eight successive days in the wilderness for God's spirit, among the Indians, and hundreds were brought to the knowledge of God and were saved. No doubt the supreme need of most professed Christians is to be brought to the bigness of a mature prayer life. The higher paths can not be found in self confident petitions, nor vain-glorious mental attitudes. I believe that the great standards of Christian thinking are the creations of great souls who lived in the circumference of God's will. God help us into a more mature prayer life that we may have a more Christian discipleship.

Will Our Laymen Follow?

There hangs upon a wall amidst other famous paintings, one by the English artist, Watts. The title of this painting runs: "Sic Gloria Mundi Transit." The writer of this message is not interested in the composition of the painting, but around its edges is the following: "What I spent, I had; what I kept, I lost; what I gave, I have."

"Thus passes the world's glory." What I spend gives me temporal advantages—food, clothing, shelter, passing pleasures, fleeting joys—things possibly worth while and oftentimes necessary. What I keep, I lose. Not what I save for useful purpose, but what I keep, what I hoard, what I withhold, when there is need that I pass it on. I lose the advantages it may bring in this world and the joys it might procure hereafter. What I give, I save, for myself, for humanity, for Christ.

Last week, we called upon our Ministers to lead. It is for the laymen of our Church to follow through. Elon calls. There is none in the Christian Church who cannot answer. He of small means who gives his little will receive as great credit in the sight of God as he who gives much of his abundance. But he who gives nothing, whether he be rich or poor, what credit has he?

There are Thirty-three Thousand constituents in the Southern Christian Convention. An average of less than Two Dollars per member will pass the goal that the Convention has set. But to reach that average, you, and you, and YOU, must give, your tens, your hundreds, your THOUSANDS! Are you going to do your part? Or are you going to stand idly by, while others toil and sacrifice that your Elon may live? Is your money so dear to you, that you can withhold it at this time, when your College and your Church need it as they do? Can you imagine the Christian Church without the leaders that Elon has given it? Are you willing that its influence shall be lost?

Then rouse yourself, for haste is necessary, if you would save this valuable heritage which is yours.

"Sic Gloria Mundi Transit,"—"What I spent, I had; what I kept, I lost; what I gave, I have." What you give for Elon, you will keep, that it may bless you. It is yours throughout all God's eternity!

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Elon College Rallies in the churches of the Eastern Virginia Conference, under the leadership of Rev. F. C. Lester, who heads the campaign to raise Fifty Thousand Dollars, as an emergency fund for Elon College by January 15, 1932, touched Suffolk on Wednesday night, December 2nd, and a good audience enjoyed the music of the six college boys, the pictures of the college buildings, the address by Dr. Charles Eldred Shelton, pastor of the Portsmouth Congregational Church, on "Why Church Colleges in a Day of State Education?" and the explanation of the needs of Elon and the campaign to raise fifty thousand dollars. No charge was made for attendance at the Rally, and no solicitation was made for subscriptions. The meeting was solely a voluntary effort to present to the church the value of the college as a Christian Church Institution, and the emergency for money to meet the necessity of Elon for money, to pay debts and carry on its great work. In other words, these rallies are intended to call the serious attention and obligation of the membership and friends of the Christian Church in the Southern Christian Convention to the necessity of raising $50,000.00 to tide the college over this financial crisis in these hard times.

Rev. F. C. Lester has leave of absence from his Waverly church, and gives his service and expenses without charge in this entire campaign.

Dr. Shelton, who has had wide experience as an educator, as well as a pastor, is a remarkable speaker, thoroughly posted on the subject of education in its Christian and secular relations, and knows how to present the real value of Christian education.

The six boys from the College are giving their time and talent as a personal sacrifice of their time in college, to help, if they may, to present the needs and spirit of Elon College to the churches of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference. The names of the six young men rendering this service through the Rallies, by solo, quartette, piano and violin, are Ross A. Cook, C. Ramsey Swain, E. L. Moffitt, Jr., Elijah Jones, Rodman Lilly, and Paul Taylor. The only expense to which the local churches where these Rallies were held was the entertainment of the six young men for a meal and a night.

So far as learned, the congregations were well pleased with the music, the addresses, and the Christian educational impression made by the visit of the boys, Dr. Shelton, and Rev. Lester.

If the people in the Christian Church could realize the value of Elon College as an educational institution, and as their institution, Dr. L. E. Smith, the recently elected president of Elon College, through the campaign inaugurated to raise $50,000.00 to meet the present necessity of the institution, would be encouraged.

The leaders chosen, and who work without pay, are, Rev. F. C. Lester of the Eastern Virginia Conference, Dr. C. H. Rowland of the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, Dr. W. C. Wicker of the Eastern North Carolina Conference, and Col. J. H. Harden of the Western North Carolina Conference. These men represent the heart of the Church, the need of the College, and will, no doubt, emphasize what Dr. Smith has proposed to the members and friends of the Church in their loyalty, to pray, pay, and patronize Elon College. W. W. STALEY.

IS THERE STILL NEED FOR A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE?

By DR. CHARLES ELDRED SHELTON

So far as this writer is concerned, the answer would be, "Never greater than now." Why? It is my purpose to give you in a few words the reason for think so.

Personal Contact Important.

Because the Christian College is necessarily small; and there are great advantages in taking the college course, the regular undergraduate work, in an institution that enrolls only a few hundred students. The students come in closer contact with the members of the faculty. Personal intimacies are possible. And these advantages are recognized in the greatest institutions of the world. In the German universities, the real training of those who wish to excel in culture is given in the "Seminars" that each professor gathers about him; just those who manifest a special interest in his work have this great opportunity.

The tutor system of the English universities is another tribute of the advantages of studying under a competent instructor, with only a few associates.

Then when the students number only a score or thereabouts to the class, and the whole list is small enough for the intimacies suggested, there can be an atmosphere of culture and learning that has more to do with real education than a highly paid corps of instructors. Then this atmosphere does not consist only of the teachers, but the fellowship of others striving toward the same end is a large part of the inspiration and help in advance in culture and thought development and there can be little of all this in a big institution of as many thousands.

Christian College Students Excell.

Now all this makes certain better work on the part of a larger number than can be found in the State and endowed institutions.

If there is any doubt about this, find a bulletin of the graduate schools of these leading universities and note the proportion of awards, honors, and fellowships earned, for they are all earned by the graduates of the Christian Colleges and those of the big universities themselves. It may surprise you to find that the "lion's share" always goes to the men and women from the smaller schools. Then look over the lists of Rhodes Scholars, and there will be another unanswerable argument.

But the real test is the preparation for life. A study of Who's Who will convince any one. Note this: William Rainey Harper, the president that made Chicago University what it is, was a graduate of a school of which most of us have never heard, Muskingum. He is only one of the vast army of those who have come from small, unknown colleges and reach the heights of educational and professional achievement. They are legion.

Needed for Moral and Religious Influence.

But it is the moral and religious side of the question of higher education that makes the Christian College so much needed, if Christian civilization is to be achieved. With the great secular schools, morals and religion are secondary; the curriculum is first, these matters incidental. To turn this around and have an atmosphere permeated with real values, spiritual things put first, all else second, is the purpose of the Christian College.

I would not be understood as believing that these secular institutions are permeated with infidelity, are really "Godless." I believe that the noisy, irreligious professors give a bad name to many a school that has the overwhelming majority of its faculty members devout Christians. But the atmosphere is secular, and I doubt if there is a single great university in the country that does not have among its instructors some godless, irreverent men who have a pernicious influence on young life that they touch. Such teachers would not be tolerated for a semester in a Christian institution. It is organized for just the other purpose. To put things in the relation that our religion demands is what is undertaken; soul above body, morals above manners; making life above making a living. Can we do without schools of that purpose in an age like this?

Christian Teachers Needed.

That influence is direct. But we need these schools to make it necessary to have godly, not godless men at the head of the secular universities. In a midwestern state, each of the three great state institutions had a scholarly preacher as its head. Why? Because the citizens of that Christian state would not tolerate any other sort, when there were over a dozen high grade Christian colleges in which the members of the faculty were chosen for their Christian character as well as for their intellectual equipment.

But the question is asked: Can denominations equip their schools well enough to do the kind of work that is demanded. Let me call attention to the fact that consecration often has as much power to bring fine teachers to an institution as taxation. Note what has been cited above as to the record. Remember that state and national boards that give recognition, take care of educational standards and equipment.

Do we still need Christian colleges?

Again the answer is, "Never More!"

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

V.

Many thrills await the Christian pilgrim in Syria. The topography of the country and the customs and life of the people greatly resemble Turkey. The form of government too is democratic, only in Syria the French exercise the mandatory power conferred by the League of Nations. The French are here pursuing their usual policy of dividing to rule, and so five small republics known as Lebanon, Syria, Alouite, Alexandretta, and Jebel Druze prevent that unanimity of action which under sympathetic guidance it was hoped would develop ere long a true Syrian republic.

Religiously in the Syrian mandate there is complete freedom of belief and freedom to teach. There is not, however, that toleration, appreciation, and mutual respect which we enjoy in our own land. Still even though you speak through an interpreter, you feel the atmosphere of freedom and are exhilarated by it. Just before you go in to address a group of assembled students in Turkey, the officer in charge calls attention to the fact that there can be no religious propaganda in the service—no Scripture reading, no prayer, no Christian hymns, no reference to Christ. You speak a Christian message without labelling it such and under great difficulty.

But a chapel service in a Christian College in Syria is much like that of our own Elon—songs, Scripture, prayer, an address in which direct reference may be made to Jesus as the great teacher and Savior. In both countries you are listened to with the profoundest respect, and I am sure with the same approval. The student mind of the Near East is peculiarly susceptible to spiritual truth and never fails to respond to it. After all, labels are of small moment. It is the spirit, the heart's response that counts.

But while Syria or rather the French in Syria guarantee complete religious freedom, the people are far from realizing its meaning. Theoretically, Moslems may become Christians, but actually they do not. The frontal attack on the Moslem world in Syria does not appear to be more efficacious than the Christian life demonstration approach in Turkey. In Persia for nearly a century the Presbyterian Church has been working with Moslems. Their group of converts now total 500, according to Dr. James H. Nicol of Beirut, out of a population of 12,000,000, in spite of the fact that the work is among the more spiritually-minded Shi-ite Moslems. It is a dangerous thing for a Moslem to change his religious allegiance. Any one is authorized to kill him and in doing so he renders God true worship. It would appear that long seasons of preparation on the inside and of good-will living on the outside will be necessary before any noteworthy achievements will be recorded among Moslems. When the landslide comes toward Christianity, it will in all likelihood be a mass movement. The time is not auspicious for such a movement now.

Before you enter Syria you have visited Tarsus, the birthplace of Paul, and the remains of the catacombs where the early Christians were buried. A Roman emperor has diverted the river's bed right through this sacred place and all that is left is a few rooms and niches to show what once was. Tarsus has a Christian College for boys now, only you must not mention Christ. There is no law against living Him and this the splendid faculty are doing. You give thanks for Paul and regret his birthplace has denied his faith and zeal.

Coming into Syria, you visit Antioch, once a great city, now mostly ruins, and in preparation read Acts 11:26 and the letter from the Jerusalem Council to the Church in Antioch. What an inners of our Lord were first called Christians. Aspiration to be in the very place where the follow-you look upon this Moslem city today and picture the pagan grandeur of Paul's time and recall your Ben Hur, you can never believe that the name Christian was given except in derision. That sneering spirit has meant the city's decline and present ruin. When men individually and as groups reject the highest truth they know, they seal their doom. The sentence may be delayed long centuries, but eventually it will be executed.

And then you visit Damascus where Paul's eyes were opened following the vision that blinded him on his journey of persecution. Damascus is a beautiful city, despite its narrow streets. It is called "The Orchard," "Paradise," "A Diamond Set in an Emerald Frame." Bordering on the desert, fed by the two famous Biblical rivers of Abana and Pharpar, it is the oldest continuously inhabited city of which we have record. As you approach it in automobile over a fine asphalt road coming down from the encircling mountains, the city does present a panorama of rare beauty. It is, however, truly oriental in build, atmosphere, and life, and that too adds to its attractiveness.

You attend services in the Armenian Protestant Church at 7:00 a. m., and hear a soulful message. You don't understand, but you feel. You frequently hear the minister refer to Paul and to Christ. The Armenians have been faithful and loyal. They have entered into the fellowship of the sufferings of Christ. They are naturally a persistent people, but their good preachers have through the ages had a great deal to do with their consecrated devotion. "Like priest, like people," you instinctively feel, as you hear these preachers whether in Armenian or Turkish. And then as you bring your word of encouragement to these brethren and sisters with sorrow-furrowed faces,

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

SUPPLICATION.

DECEMBER, 1931.

Jehovah, God, we praise Thee that in the blessed Trinity there is all power and might, all love and grace, eternal and universal communion; that Jesus, by paying sin's full price, became to all the world the never-dimming Day-star toward which His Church moves—all too slowly, we confess, because we hide and horde the things that speed the Church's pace. Loose our gifts, O God, and make our direction as true and fixed as was that of those who followed the Star of long ago. And to Jesus' name forever be glory in the highest. Amen.

TAKING MISSIONS FOR GRANTED.

By FRANK W. MURTFELDT.

After a missionary address by a representative from the field, a good churchman once said to me: "Why do they think they have to argue so much? Why don't they just tell us what's happening, and let it go at that? We don't need to have missions proved to us any farther."

Today the church is in the position to take missions for granted! "The members of the haystack band farthered missions in America despite an opposition so virulent that they were forced to keep the records of their meetings in cipher." But that day has gone. All we have today is a minority that "we ought to use our money at home." To my mind, the best method is to ignore that cry.

In our church there is no argument about missions. We take it as a matter of course that if a man love God he will love his brother also. We assume that gifts to benevolence are a part of each church's duty.

When new members are to be received into our church, we meet with them the night before. We call it "having an understanding." The deacons, the new members and the pastor sit down together and discuss the meaning of membership in a Christian church in general, and in this church in particular. The pastor does most of the talking. We give the new members a card by which to check up on the things we count most worth while in a Christian. On one side of the card we have them note first the Christian faith in some of its essentials. And we tell them if they hold to this, even in part, they will be good Christians. Then we ask them to turn over and read upon the other side of the card the things the church, this church, will expect of them. Will they lead a consistent Christian life? etc. And will they give to the support of the church and its benevolence? We explain. The church needs a weekly income to keep it going, and all that. The budget is so many thousand dollars. It is small for a church of our size because we practice rigid economy. And more of the same sort. Then follows the statement, "It will also be necessary for us as church members to remember that there are larger demands. Every member of our church is expected to give to benevolence as well as to home expenses."

We find this works! We have done nothing to brag about. But steadily through the years, without any fuss, we have increased our benevolent gifts a few hundred dollars each year. Once there was a considerable group in the church who were opposed to gifts to missions—"when we need so much at home." They were vocal once; they get no hearing now. The question is never opened. Missions are taken for granted.

More than all this, we take our quota, by whatever name you want to call it, without argument. It is what the denomination wishes we would try and do. It is a bull's eye for us to try for. We have never hit it yet. But we aim at it because asked to. There is never any question of that.

Is all this too compliant? Are we losing anything by taking missions for granted? We have representatives of the denomination, missionaries from the field in our church pulpit at odd times. We follow other plans of promotion. And the average church member is, I think, rather glad to take it all for granted as one of his church responsibilities. Maybe I'm wrong, but so it seems to me.—The Congregationalist and Herald of Gospel Liberty.

THE CHURCH AND ITS MESSAGE

Dear Co-worker:

We have all felt the pull of adverse and unusual circumstances in our church work this year. But out of all the turmoil there looms the compelling and challenging fact that the message of Christ is the one thing that will meet the present need. The Church must send out to its own troubled membership and to the bewildered world, a message now of such comfort and encouragement and faith as to restore confidence in Christ as the world's hope. If the church should fail in this crisis, she is not worthy of Christ.

Our Congregational-Christian fellowship has been seeking to carry on, but frankly, our Christian Churches have not thus far been carrying their share of the united load. Even though we have faced many unusual and varied obstacles, yet we should have done better. This failure has worked real hardship on our missionaries and our mission work at home and abroad. Above all, it has raised the question as to whether we were willing to do our share to make the merger effective. We can, and we should change this before the end of the year.

There are two ways by which you and your church may help to bring our Christian constituency to an honorable discharge of its share of the united task.

First.—If you have changed to the calendar year in your church, as many have, you can make the Every Member Canvass in December the opportunity to urge upon your people the acceptance of their share of the benevolent apportionment and the per capita contribution. Thorough preparation for the Every Member Canvass is vital. Write to the Boston office, 14 Beacon Street, of the Commission on Missions for the wonderfully fine helps available for this purpose. The Dayton office also stands ready to render any possible aid.

Second.—The Thankoffering should be received in every church and applied on your Foreign project, for which you will be given apportionment credit. If you have not had an apportionment, your Thankoffering should be designated for our Foreign work, provided you plan for an Easter Thankoffering for Home Missions. But in any case, be sure to receive it.

In this first year of our united effort, the Christian Churches must not falter. We can turn the tide in the next fifty days.

Sincerely yours,

W. P. MINTON,
Secretary Commission on Missions.

A RESOLUTION.

The General Council, at Seattle, in June, passed the following resolution:

Whereas, the foreign missionary is, in our judgment, the most reliable interpreter of one nation to another, and the foreign missionary movement is one of the chief agencies for the promotion of peace and goodwill among the nations, and

Whereas, the Seminar on the Gospel and International Life has found that the policies and practices of the American Board are effectively interpreting essential Christianity and are adapting methods of work to meet the constantly changing situation abroad and at home, and are generally recognized as in the forefront of modern missionary movements,

Therefore, Be it Resolved, that we challenge our churches to sacrificial living to the end that our foreign missionary program may be more aggressively developed.

A THANK-OFFERING SERVICE.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Holy Neck held its annual thank-offering service Sunday the 22nd.

A playlet "The Little Maid Who Went into All the World," was given by Mrs. Lillian Worrell and Mrs. J. O. Davidson under the direction of Mrs. N. G. Newman, Spiritual Life Superintendent.

The thank offering was $15.00.

BREAD FOR SIX DAYS.

A boy with a mule brought some melons to the American School for Boys in Talas, Turkey. He looked wistfully at Rev. Paul E. Nilson, director, and said: "I want to go to school, but I have no father, and mother is poor." "If you can provide your food and books, and if you are a graduate of an elementary school, come along," replied Mr. Nilson. The lad walked home—four hours travel—and the next day returned with his mother, carrying a small bag. He looked so poor, so ragged in his village clothes that Mr. Nilson enrolled him rather doubtfully. But, sure enough, he had his school certificate with all his marks "Very good." "What food did you bring?" asked Mr. Nilson. "I have bread enough for six days," replied the boy, "some cheese and two melons!" "Six days' rations!" said Mr. Nilson to himself. "Wants to study! Not a cent in his pocket! Yet he seems to have gumption and brains. I am sure this boy and his widowed mother will get the necessary additional help, somewhere."

Copra, the chief crop of the Philippines, is about one-fourth its regular price. The depression has hit the Philippines badly. Rice is low and corn brings so little that many are not even cutting it. It has made it necessary to defer payment of taxes, and making insufficient funds for schools and other government enterprises.

SUGGESTIONS FOR CHRISTMAS.

A CHRISTMAS PARTY.

By RUTH E. LANE, Idaho C. E. Union.

SLEIGH BELLS—Blindfold all players except the one who is to be the "reindeer." Place a string of sleigh-bells, or other small bells, around the neck of the reindeer, who, of course, can be located only by the sound of his bells. The player who catches the reindeer dons the bells and becomes the reindeer.

CHRISTMAS BELLS—Hide a number of cardboard bells around the room. Form the players into line and have them march while some one plays the piano. When the music suddenly stops, the players are allowed one minute in which to find the bells. Those not fortunate enough to find a bell during the minute, must leave the line. A prize may be given to the one who remains the longest.

CHRISTMAS TOYS—Prepare in advance slips of paper, each bearing the name of some toy and with the same toy on four or five different slips. Place these in a box and have each guest draw a slip. The various toys will form in groups in accordance with slips drawn and each group will do a stunt to represent its toy.

SANTA'S SLEIGH—Seat the company in a circle. The leader, or IT, in the center, will ask questions and those questioned must answer by mentioning a familiar object very promptly. For instance, the leader may say, "I hear some one broke into the barn and stole Santa's sleigh. How did he get in?" The one questioned must answer quickly, and the more ridiculous the answer the better. The questions continue until some one laughs or fails to answer promptly, when such person becomes IT.

THE TROUBLESOME BROWNIE—All players form a circle and join hands. One is chosen to be "Santa," and another the "Brownie." Santa, in the center of the circle, calls to the Brownie outside—"Scamp, who let you in my toy shop?" The Brownie answers, "No one," and starts to run. Santa must follow him over the exact path he takes and must do the same things. If Santa fails to use the same route or does not do as the Brownie does, he is out of the game and the Brownie must choose a new Santa. Should Santa catch the Brownie, they change roles.

SNOWBALL THROWING CONTEST—Suspend one or more large Christmas wreaths in doorways. The players stand about five feet away and try to throw rubber or paper balls through the wreaths. Keep score of the number of balls thrown through and award a prize to the person throwing the greatest number.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS—In your invitations and announcements, request all guests to bring gifts not to exceed ten cents in value. Ask that they be brought nicely wrapped and ready for your Christmas tree. Be sure to have some extra "gifts" in case some come without them. Number each package as it is brought. Pass out slips bearing numbers and "Santa Claus" should distribute the gifts according to the numbers drawn. Later, if desired, these gifts might be collected and taken to a hospital.—From "Playtime," International Society of Christian Endeavor.

CHRISTMAS CAROL SINGING.

A splendid Christmas activity which might be more widely indulged in by our young people is the singing of the Christmas Carols on Christmas Eve. All that is needed is a group of young people who are sportsmanlike enough to be "heedless of wind and weather," and who can carry a tune. A chromatic pitch pipe, which can be bought at most music stores, is a great help in securing accuracy of pitch.

If the carollers go from place to place in a big truck or on a big sleigh, armed with lanterns or flashlights and dressed in bright capes and hats of cheap red or green material edged with cotton batting, and announced by a bugler, they will feel doubly the spirit of the occasion. If desired, the old-time custom of passing the hat at each house may be carried out, in which case the intention and the object should be previously announced. Carol singing inspires the Christmas spirit in a community.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS.

An impressive Christmas program can be planned for your young people's meeting in which the Christmas pictures, hymns and carols may be studied and used. Secure copies of Madonnas and other Christmas pictures, such as "The Arrival of the Shepherds." Some magazine paintings may be used if care is taken in their selection. "Pictures Every Child Should Know," gives information about these pictures in a very readable form. Stories of the Christmas hymns and carols may be given as information and inspiration. The singing of several of these hymns and carols is sure to meet with hearty approval.

Now Christmas was drawing nigh, and I thought of them I loved, and bought them gifts.

And I sat me down, and checked over my list, and I said, "I have remembered them all."

And I heard, as it were, a rustling of straw, and a movement, as it were, of cattle in a stall, and there came to me a voice, as it were, from a far distance, inquiring, "Hast thou forgotten me?"

And I knew who it was that spake, and I said, "I trust not, Lord, for I do say my prayers twice every day, and some days more often."

And the voice said, "So said the folks of Bethlehem, who had remembered all their friends, and paid their temple tax, and given freely to the synagogue, and prayed night and day. Yet was I born in a manger; yea, and every Christmas am I born there. And I hear the music in the churches, and the peal of the Christmas bells, and the children carolling under the windows. 'God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen,' and the joy of those who receive the gifts, but I am here."

And I said, "Where art thou, Lord?"

And the voice said, "Where mourn in sorrow and poverty the children of dead Armenian Christians, there am I. Where in China blind children grope because there is no physician to give them sight, there am I. Where in the slums of thine own city children are born and predestined to mar God's image by lives of shame, there am I. Even now I am numbered with transgressors."

And I said, "Say no more, Lord, I am already rebuked."—From The Christian Century.

CHRISTMAS MESSAGES IN LITERATURE.

The best plan to use in making up this program is to plan to use the very best of all available material in your community for this program. Perhaps there are persons who tell stories well, who can recite well, and who can sing. Plan to use each of these methods of expression for the program, and work into the program the very best that you can get. Poems on Christmas may be found in magazines, in school books, in literature books that are in most of our homes. Search diligently for the material that you want, then assign it to someone who will present it to the society in the right way. Use the stories of the birth of Christ found in the New Testament. Another beautiful Scripture prophecy that is always beautiful in the Christmas program is Isaiah 9:6. "Silent Night," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks," and "O Little Town of Bethlehem," are songs that can hardly be omitted.

An impressive way to plan the Christmas program is to have outlined just what you wish to present in the program, and then work the material into the outline. For instance, the Christmas story might begin with the reading of Isaiah 9:6. Before this reading the pianist might play quietly "Silent Night." Very quietly this hymn could be played through again as the words are read silently by members of the group. Then the Scripture telling about the shepherds might be used (Luke 2). "Joy to the World" might well come next. Then the reading of Luke 2: 15-17. Play softly "O Little Town of Bethlehem" once. Read Matthew 2:1-11. A solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem" might be used next. Hymn, "There's a Song in the Air." A closing poem, such as the one given below, might conclude the program.

B. Y. Williams, in the New York Times, has given us the poem, "Not Given to See the Star":

"It was not given me to see the star
Whose splendor flooded old Judea's plains;
Nor was it given me to hear the strains
Of music, when with heaven's door ajar,
Bright angels sang the glorious words that are Still echoing their 'Peace, Good Will' refrain;
Not mine to journey with the Magi's trains
And bring the Infant King gifts from afar.

"But it is mine, today, amid the throng,
To keep a Christmas candle burning bright
To symbolize the star that told his birth;
Mine to repeat the angels' deathless song;
Mine, mine to give the gift, however slight,
In memory of God's great gift to earth."

THE SUPREME GIFT OF LOVE.

LESSON XII.—DECEMBER 20, 1931.

LESSON TEXT: 1 John 4:7-19.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought to love one another."—1 John 4:11.

Introduction.

It is fitting that our Christmas lesson should deal with the Supreme Gift of love. We are ready to celebrate in honor of the birth of Jesus. Nineteen and one-third centuries have passed since the birth of Jesus. We have only begun to realize the breadth and depth of love as a motive force in life. Many areas of love are yet unexplored. Areas of electrical phenomena are awaiting the experiments of scientific investigation. New fields of usefulness to man are being discovered. Rapid strides have been made in man's use of natural resources. What about love? In human relations there are many areas where good will, the way of love, has not yet been tried.

Message of Love.

Love is a great word in the Gospel of John, and also in the letters of John. In I. John chapter 4, verses 7-21, the noun and verb together appear 27 times in all. Truly the message of love is dominant in the Fourth Gospel and the epistles of John.

God Is Love.

This lesson tells us, "God is Love," verse 8. The concept of God is very important in shaping the form of religion. Men have not always thought God to be a God of love. The prophet Hosea caught the conception that God had compassion for and loved his erring nation. It is the dominant note in his prophetic writings. The Gospel of John tells us that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son," John 3:16. Our epistle of I. John tells us "God is Love." Truly the Father has an overwhelming love that constantly manifests itself to the children of men. He is a God of love. Love has always been proceeding from the eternal source of all.

A Loving Savior.

Jesus caught the noblest spirit of the Old Testament prophets. A loving God was manifest in a loving Savior. The life of Jesus is crowded with practical love and good will shown to men. He demonstrated his teaching of love by a life of good will. No one has so completely yielded his life to the principle of love as Jesus did. He overcame evil with good. The world felt the example of Jesus as a loving Savior and remains indebted to him. We do well to study this phase of Jesus' life and teaching.

Let us realize, this Christmas season, that our Lord is still the Savior of love and good will.

Loving Christians.

"We love because He first loved us," verse 19. The example of God and Jesus should be followed by Christians. Jesus said he came to do the will of his Father. He called upon men to follow him. Both by example and by precept we are admonished to live the way of love. Even the pagan world without Christ had learned the way of love in many relations of life.

The Master expects more from his followers. Jesus teaches us that love is a creative force in the world. It can be trusted to work out the more baffling problems. During the nineteen centuries since Jesus left the spiritual task in the hands of his Church, we have been making progress in extending his principle to new and untried areas of human relations. There still remain vast uncharted spheres in which the high ideal of the Savior has not been practically applied. The world is yet waiting for men and women who can live close enough to him to chart these new areas. Let us mention three. Who can convince the world and show it how to employ love in international relations so that war may be no more? Who has sufficient of the daring of Christ to show us how to apply love to the economic and industrial turmoil of our age? Mow may love be practically applied in the competitive inter-church problems of Christendom?

Yes, we still need Jesus as a loving Savior, helping us to find a loving God and to become loving Christians in our personal and social relations in all areas of life.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

A CHALLENGING DAY.

LESSON: II. Tim. 4:1-8.

"Instant in season, out of season."

All times have been challenging times to Christian people. But present times are more challenging, (if that can be,) than all others. The number who teach false doctrines apparently is increasing and there are a great many who, loving some thing new, find it easy to follow them.

That it has never been so is a challenge to sincere Christians to greater outstanding faithfulness. If we possess Christ and know God, we are challenged to bear witness of the truth that is in us to that fact, both when it is convenient to us, and where it is not. The foolishness and sinfulness which we see should not exasperate us; on the contrary, we are enjoined by Paul to reprove, rebuke, and exhort these souls.

Fidelity in the sacred possession of Christian faith is heaven's call unto all of us. Zeal for Christ, fresh courage and unswerving loyalty to truth, and fearlessness in confessing it unto the end, is our bounded duty. In order to be thus faithful, Paul reminds us of three things: first, that the Lord is faithful to give us strength; second, we older ones are passing away and the younger must take our places; third, a crown that fadeth not away awaits all such faithful ones. Let us study to show ourselves, "approved of God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

Prayer—O Lord, wake us up, and strengthen us by Thy Spirit; Keep us faithful unto the end. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE WHITE HORSE AND HIS RIDER.

LESSON: Rev. 19:1-9.

"And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white, for the fine linen is the righteousness of the saints."

We are told here that the time will come when things will be so under the influence of "that wicked one" who "goeth to and fro throughout the world seeking whom he may devour," that "no man may buy or sell, save he that has the mark, or the name of the beast." The influence of the crooks and racketeers within the network of present society, such as is represented in the Al Capone and Jack Diamond stuff would almost make us believe that we are headed for the fulfillment of that prophecy, and that the spirit of the anti-Christ is even now at work.

This condition is a sore temptation to the people of God and a warning word that we be not partakers of this sin. It might be well for us to ask ourselves the following questions: What is our God? Gold, silver, fine clothes, luxuries, influence, and power? If so, we can expect the plague of famine, death and mourning.

However hard it may be, we must learn not to be infatuated with the pleasures of this world beyond Christian measure and abandon the cross of Christ. We must, like him who sitteth upon the white horse waging loving, bloodless warfare for the Cross, be "faithful and true" to righteousness.

Prayer—Help us, O Lord, who art our Leader faithful and true, and establish our steps in Thy word, that neither pleasures nor sorrows may ever draw us away from Thee. Make our living a warfare for the white robe of righteousness, cleansed and made so by the blood of Christ. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN.

LESSON: Psalm 80:1-20.

"Turn us again, O God of Host, and cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved."

The Psalmist prayed for the people as though they were one. This was his conception of the brotherhood of man. It is interesting to realize that, long before Christ, the Christian spirit was being born and coming to fruition. This fact must have been received by Christian believers with great satisfaction, when Jesus taught them the brotherhood of man, and said, "when ye pray, say 'our Father.'" The God of Host of heaven and earth was the hope of Israel; it was the hope of the apostles; it is now even more our hope. Yea, verily, the vine He planted and blessed then, will He bless now, and He shall bless it forevermore.

With this promise with us, and knowing that He never fails, we should have a clearer view and a firmer faith that could possibly be of the faithful of former days. Almighty God is still our Lord and the God of the people. He leads still to a full salvation; although His enemies jibe us often and say, "where is your God?" His righteous judgments go on surely, and we should be able to show them, by the righteousness of our lives, where He is and who He is. "Fear them not, and let not thy hand be slack. The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty."

Prayer—Our Father, we bless Thee, and we pray Thee to reveal Thy Glory. Protect the vine which Thou hast planted. Give us grace to bear fruit of Thy indwelling, and keep us alive in Thee forever. Amen.

THURSDAY.

BLESSING FOR ALL.

LESSON: Matt. 11:25-30.

"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

How anxious is Jesus to reveal the mysteries of grace to all men, but how they will not receive it. Because of "Wisdom and prudence," pride and levity, they are blind to the light, and deaf to the word of God.

But his invitation encircles all, and whosoever will may come. It is not only such as "labor" that come, but He says, "come all ye that labor and are heavy laden," or in other words, all who desire to find rest. There are those who desire and need their desires granted; there are those burdened with sorrow and need relief; there are those who are laden with sin and need release; there are those who are blind and need to understand, and be enlightened by the spirit of God. We cannot by our own wisdom know God, nor by our own works find peace of soul and hope of life. To all He cries out, "If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink!" His invitation is, "come and know His love, come and know the ease of His burdens, come and taste His peace, come and enter upon His rest.

Prayer—Dear Lord, interpret to us Thy word. There are many things which obscure our view, but Thy word is a light to us. May we follow it to His eternal rest. Amen.

FRIDAY.

ESTEEMING THE UNWORTHY AUTHORITY.

LESSON: I. Thess. 5:12-23.

"Esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake."

This text is a veritable house of good and glorious things. Only those whom Christ has made free are able to lead the glorious life described here. It refers to those who administer the law.

It is directly contrary to the spirit of our times to esteem "them which are over us always" as in the Lord, "for their work's sake." Some of them are crooked and not worthy of our esteem; some of them are despised; and in some particulars are despicable. On the other hand a great many of them are esteemed—almost worshipped. Paul would tell us to "worship no man," to esteem no man too highly, but rather give God the praise and while we are to be obedient to "them that are over us for their work's sake," we are to "warn them that are unruly, support the weak, and be patient toward all men."

As we see it, often the unruly are having their own way and the weak are going down. We are woefully indulgent with our friends, and we judge harshly those whom we care less for. Thus Christ's spirit and teachings are dissipated and devilishness takes charge. Christianity forestalls all this. Christianity esteems all for the sake of law which has been created unto righteousness.

Prayer—O Lord, Thy testimonies are very sure. Holiness becometh Thy tabernacles. This world is Thy dwelling place. Help us to fill our part in it with Thy holiness. Amen.

SATURDAY.

VICTORY.

"Rejoice evermore."—I. Thess. 5:16.

Can Paul mean this? Is it possible to rejoice and be glad all the time? The Scripture seems to say so. Let us see: Joy is one of those graces imparted to us by Jesus Christ as an evidence of "the fruit of the Spirit," "love, joy, peace etc." When we are told to "rejoice" it is to be understood that God will furnish reason to rejoice, and that we are to let joy be the undercurrent of all the shifting sensations of our life. "Rejoice in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer." If this be true, we must conclude that we must let the gift of the spirit be cultivated; let no feeling of envy or contempt quench our holy fires.

"I have learned something worth far more
Than victory brings to men,
Battered and beaten, bruised and sore
I can still come back again.

Crowded back in the hard, fast race,
I've found that I have the heart
To look rank failure in the face,
And train for another start.

Winners who wear the victor's wreath,
Looking for softer ways,
Watch for my blade as it leaves its sheath,
Sharpened on harder days;

Trained upon pain and punishment,
I've groped my way through the night,
But the flag still flies from my battle tent,
And I've only begun to fight."

—Garland Rice.

Prayer—Dear Lord, when flesh shall fail, strengthen thou the spirit within us; and help us to stand faultless before Thee, and thine be the Glory. Amen.

THE CHRISTIAN SUN'S PULPIT

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING.

BY REV. ROBERT LEE HOUSE.

It is generally understood that our attitude toward God is conditioned by our attitude toward man. We are grateful when we have a due sense of favors and benefits received from our fellow-man. We are thankful when we acknowledge a divine favor. Therefore, it seems to be true that thanksgiving to God is conditioned on gratitude to fellowman.

Although the word gratitude is not to be found in the Bible, yet as the sacred Scriptures contain many sentiments on this subject, and this word is the most comprehensive to convey the idea, the word seems to signify. Gratitude is justly said to be the mother of most virtues, because that from this fountain so many rivulets arise.

Doubtless we need to frankly face the question: Why be grateful? If a tree may be judged by its fruit, a virtue may be judged accordingly. Gratitude may be judged by the character it produces. There are a number of things I would like to say in favor of a grateful person.

A grateful person will not grumble.

"There's a family nobody likes to meet,
They live, it is said, on Complaining Street,
In the city of Never-are-Satisfied,
The river of Discontent runing beside.
They growl at that and they growl at this,
Whatever comes there is something amiss,
And whether their station be high or humble,
They are known to all by the name of Grumble.

"The weather is always hot or cold,
Summer and winter alike they scold;
Nothing goes right with the folks you meet
Down on that gloomy Complaining Street.
They growl at the rain and they growl at the sun,
In fact, their growling is never done.
And if everything pleased them, there isn't a doubt,
They'd growl that they'd nothing to grumble about."

As oil eliminates friction, so the spirit of gratitude sweetens a life and eliminates grumbling.

"Someone started the whole day wrong—
Was it you?
Someone robbed the day of its song—
Was it you?
Early this morning someone frowned;
Someone sulked until others scowled,
And soon harsh words were passed around—
Was it you?

"Someone started the day aright—
Was it you?
Someone made it happy and bright—
Was it you?
Early this morning, we are told,
Someone smiled, and all through the day
This smile encouraged young and old—
Was it you?"

A grateful person will forgive. The spirit of gratitude will invariably be supplemented by the spirit of forgiveness. We are saved only by mercy and grace, through faith in Christ Jesus. If there is gratitude in our hearts for that, then surely this same spirit will generate a spirit of forgiveness, to be exercised toward those around us.

Moreover, a grateful person will be happy.

Gratitude is by far the best policy. I think everyone should be grateful in self-defense. Blessed are the grateful for theirs is the kingdom of happiness.

"The happiest heart that ever beat
Was in some grateful breast
That found the common daylight sweet
And left to heaven the rest."

I feel sure that the grateful person will be following the blessed example of the Master. Who is this man whom they call the Christ? He is, by common consent, a man of gratitude. Hear the words as they constantly fall from His lips, "I thank thee, O Father," "He took the cup and gave thanks." And as he gave thanks it mellowed his heart, enabling him to say in the most crucial hour of vicarious suffering, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Likewise with Paul, "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory," and "giving thanks always, for all things."

Then turn through the Psalms, and you will find them shot through with the golden thread of thanksgiving. Dip in anywhere, and you are soon singing the praises of Jehovah, the bountiful. "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him and bless his name." The writer of the Psalms does not give thanks because he must do so as a solemn duty; his gratitude wells forth as springs in the hills. These songs have the spontaneous rapture of birds welcoming dawn. This is the natural response of the human heart to the gifts of God.

Now, I think it should be said that there are certain conditions which are not very favorable for the production or the cultivation of a grateful spirit.

First: Idleness. I do not believe in work merely for the sake of work, but I do believe that every person, young and old, if possible, should be profitably employed. Some faintly sing of going home to rest over there, when they have never really done anything to make them tired. Remember the lines of Pope:

"Stretched on the rack of a too easy chair,
And heard thy everlasting yawn confess
The pains and penalties of idleness."

Second: Extravagance. Extravagance breeds arrogance, selfishness and contempt. I happened in a store one afternoon, and a rich lady brought her petted and pampered child in, bought a five cent piece of candy and gave it to him. He looked at it and seemed to be insulted at having been given such cheap candy. He then hurled the piece of candy against the floor. Frankly, if none had been looking, I would have picked the candy up and eaten it. But the child had been spoiled by extravagance, and was without gratitude.

We have no right to be really extravagant in a time of so much suffering and need. On another occasion, I picked up a man on the highway who had not tasted food for nearly two days, gave him some green apples, and never before or since have I seen such a manifestation of gratitude.

Then, in conclusion, I would like to indicate two ways of cultivating gratitude.

First: By Taking an Inventory. An inventory may often reveal in business how small the stock of goods has become. But an inventory has always done the opposite thing for me. From the time I entered school till the time of my graduation, I never carried all my belongings home. I had accumulated books and clothes, etc., during these years, but I didn't think I had very much. It was not until I began to make an inventory (Continued on page 15.)

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

you cannot but refer to the blessings pronounced by our Lord on those who suffer and as you quote His words "Rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in Heaven," your soul countenances. Religion is real to these people and it was real to Paul in this same city. You too catch a new vision of God in Damascus.

And then you visit the street called Straight, the traditional houses of Judas and of Ananias and of Naman, the city wall and the window in it through which Paul is supposed to have been let down in a basket. You also visit the famous Omayad Mosque wherein the body of John the Baptist lies buried, the tomb of Saladin, and though it is Sunday your car wends its way through the narrow streets of the Grand Bazaar of Araby, said to be the largest, certainly the oldest in the world. You begin to realize what Jesus meant by His saying that the Sabbath was made for man—that every day is sacred to God and that we can serve and worship Him everywhere and all the time. Today Damascus has 500,000 inhabitants, of whom 100,000 are Christians and Jews and the remainder Moslems. The Christians are mostly Greek Orthodox. There are 250 Moslem Mosques.

And then you ride along the beautiful Parpa river over a splendid modern road toward the Holy Land, with mountains overarching in the distance, along the very road bed over which Paul and his companions likely walked, as they journeyed from Jerusalem with letters from the High Priest permitting him as he breathed out "Threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord," to bring them bound to Jerusalem. What a thrill you receive as you ride and think! You take comfort from Paul's vision and conversion—comfort that error cannot ultimately triumph and that force cannot bind the onward progress of truth. And the heart receives new hope and courage! As you ride onward toward the Holy City, you become assured in spirit that even yet love will win the world, even this Moslem world, for Christ. The soul has enjoyed a real Sabbath.

THE PROPER USE OF GIFTS.

"Hold fast that which is good; but abstain from the very appearance of evil."—I. Thess 5:21.

"Everything that glitters is not gold." Even evil may appear in the shape of Spiritual zeal. God is good, the author of good and the God of good. As we go along, we are to try the spirits to see whether they be good or bad; "prove all things and hold fast to the good;" and God, who is faithful, who hath called to us, will preserve us into His coming. If we submit to Him, He will take away everything that injures; He will destroy every sin which prevents our joy from being complete; and He will present us blameless to the Father at His coming. If these things be true, it seems that the apostle has a right to tell us to "rejoice always."

Prayer—We bless Thy name, O Lord, who hast called us into a complete salvation. We thank Thee for Thy word that gives us strength for today. Lord, give us grace to believe and obey. Amen.

and pack up, that I realized how vast were my possessions. We must take an inventory of our material and spiritual blessings from time to time in order to cultivate the spirit of gratitude.

Second: Utilizing God's Gifts. A grateful spirit may also be generated by utilizing God's gifts. Gratitude may be either cause or effect. A father gave his daughter a piano. She did not play the piano and, therefore, was not grateful for it. But in later years she began to play the piano and learned to love it. Then it was she went back and told her father how grateful she was for the gift.

The wise and diligent use of the talents and opportunities which God has given us will kindle and develop within us a true spirit of thanksgiving which will even claim kinship with that of the Master.

The same spirits of paganism and antichrist that dominate the people of heathen lands also make themselves felt in our own so-called Christian land. They can be overcome only by genuine Christianity. The Christian must be a real force and not a mere form.—Methodist Protestant Herald.

The world is wrong in many places and in many ways. The situation calls for the best work of true Christian missionaries.

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

NEW TERM OPENS JANUARY 25th, and any student may begin the college work at that time.

MARRIAGES

THOMPSON-GENTRY.

At my home, Virgilina, Va., Saturday, November 28th, at four p. m., I united in marriage Mr. Edwin Wilson Thompson of Milton, N. C., and Miss Lucile Margaret Gentry of Roxboro, N. C. The groom is farming at the Thompson homestead in Caswell County, N. C., and is a son of the late C. K. Thompson. The bride is the daughter of Z. T. Gentry of Person County, N. C.

Mr. Thompson is an active member of the Red House Presbyterian Church and Mrs. Thompson is known for her activities in her local church, and in young people's work in the Baptist Church of Person and neighboring counties. May blessings attend the union of this excellent young couple who began life together with the best wishes and prayers of such a host of friends.

THE ELON CAMPAIGN.—

Our college is putting on a campaign for $50,000.00 to meet urgent needs. This campaign is to be conducted by the pastors of the churches with the assistance of the Conference officials and interested brethren who are willing to assist the pastors. Each pastor is to select a committee of the church who will make a personal canvass of every member of each church and the children of the Sunday Schools, and secure a cash donation or pledge to be paid to the committee or to the pastor by January 15, 1932. This donation is to be as large and liberal as the giver may be able to make, for the total amount given should reach not less than $50,000.00 to meet the present urgent needs of the college and to save the institution.

A PLEDGE OF GOOD WILL.—

This gift on the part of each member will be a pledge of good will, of love and loyalty to Dr. Smith, the president, and the college. If the gift cannot be large, it should be freely made and carry with it an expression of faith in our new president, and appreciation for his willingness to assume the responsibility of the leadership of the college as it was expressed by the unanimous election of him by the Board of Trustees to undertake the task. There is no question about his ability to save the college from its present financial embarrassment, if the entire church will unite in giving him their financial support. We all know about the present depression and no one should spend time discussing this, but each should willingly make such sacrifice as he can, and not depend on the false hope that others will do all that is needed, but each should do his best. Our president accepted the position he holds tentatively until January 15, 1932, to see whether the church would support him in this undertaking. If the entire number who makes gifts whether large or small represent ten thousand members of the Southern Christian Convention, Dr. Smith would be justified in assuming that the church will give him support to save the college but this must be done by the date mentioned or he will return to his church as pastor according to his promise, and the college will not be saved, but if all the members of the church will make some sacrifice and the best gifts possible then we shall save the college under his leadership.

IT OUGHT TO BE DONE.—

There is no question as to the demands upon the church to save the college, for no church can live in this day of educated ministers and laymen, teachers and leaders in other churches, if we fail to keep pace with them. It ought to be done to give our young people as good educational advantages as those of other churches have. It ought to be done because the state cannot give Christian education under the conditions of separation of church and state without violating this principle and going back to the practice of the church in the Dark ages. It ought to be done because the state has already reached the limit of its ability to educate our young people, and still there are more than 7,500 students in church colleges in North Carolina and a similar number in the church colleges of other states. It ought to be done because urgent obligations have been contributing to this fund. It can be done by giving wheat, corn, flour, meal, beef, pork, bacon, canned fruit, fowls and anything and everything that can be used in the boarding department of the college and then sending these gifts by trucks free of charge to the college. It can be done by making as many gifts as possible in money to pay debts. They must be paid to save our good name, to save our credit, to save our sense of honor, to save our college and to save our present president to the leadership of the institution.

IT MUST BE DONE.—

What ought to be done, what can be done, must be done if it is God's will. It is our duty to follow His will and we cannot afford to neglect our duty. Our ministers have always been key men in every forward movement in the church and our laymen have faithfully followed these trusted leaders in the maintenance and development of all our institutions. No minister in our church would think of doing not only his duty in this campaign, but they will do their best for the college in this crisis and persuade all their people to follow them. No minister can afford to stand in the way of the progress of the work by refusing to take the initiative making a sacrifice if necessary to put on an every member canvass in his churches and urging every member to make some gift expressing his good will and confidence in the leadership of our president so as to assure him that we appreciate his sacrifice in undertaking the task before him and that we will support him in this undertaking.

IT OUGHT TO, CAN, MUST BE DONE NOW.—

We must act at once, act hurriedly, persistently continuously, if we reach every member and secure a gift from each by January 15, 1932. The greater number of gifts made, the better evidence the president will have that the constituents of the church will stand by and support him as president of the college. He needs this assurance to enable him to "carry on" and meet the obligations. No man can save the college unless he can have the prayers, the gifts, the patronage, and the Christian faith and confidence of the church expressed in loyalty, cooperation, sacrifice and support of the entire church. If all will do their best in this undertaking and each give as much as he can, it will be only a matter of time when we shall be in better condition at the college than ever during its history. We know the man who is to lead us. We know his qualifications, his education, his position on the great fundamentals of religion, his devotional life, his consecration of spirit, his open and frank policy, his freedom from exploitation, his appreciation of his colleagues, his recognition of the value of the personality of all men, and his supreme faith in God, all of which will commend him to our people and make him a great leader.

"Stand Up For Elon"

(Tune: Webb.)

1. Stand up, stand up for Elon,
The Church's loyal friend;
Lift high her glorious banner,
For her let prayers ascend.
O God, Thou Source of wisdom,
We lift our cause to Thee,
That Elon's high endeavor
May e'er victorious be.
2. For her our fathers labored,
And sacrifices made;
Upon her sacred altar
Their willing gifts they laid.
We bring our gifts with gladness,
To lift her cause on high,
That Elon's early spirit
May never flag nor die.
3. We pledge our sons and daughters
To serve Maroon and Gold,
Who in a mutual service
The cause of truth uphold;
Through days of preparation,
Build lives of Christlike height,
That Elon's Christian spirit
May lead our youth in light.
4. Stand up stand up for Elon,
Give her sufficient power
That she may never falter
In facing this great hour.
In love our Christ hath led her
Through perils in the past,
And this same Christ shall make her Victorious at last.

Elon College, N. C.

tracted in the name of the church that must be met or cast reflection upon our Christian life and character. It is our duty; God wills it and our better sense of obligation demands it.

IT CAN BE DONE.—

It can be done by each member of the denomination making a donation and doing his best. It can be done by small gifts of all who cannot make larger gifts. It can be done by personal sacrifice to the cause of Christ in educating leaders for the future. It can be done by united efforts on the part of the entire church. It can be done by the spirit of prayer, good will and loyalty of the children as well as the grown people in con-

NOTES-PERSONALS

The Rev. J. M. Tropser, of Cobbin, Kentucky, has organized a Boy Scout Troop with two patrols.

Our townsman and neighbor, Brother Alfred Franklin Ward, father of Mrs. T. C. Amick, died at his home in Elon College Friday morning, December 11th. The funeral services were conducted from the home by the College pastor, Rev. A. W. Hurst, and interment was in the Elon cemetery.

Five thousand bills were filed in the lower House of Congress on the first day of the present session, beginning December 7th. The lawmakers will evidently have an abundant supply of offerings to select from, and may become so bewildered by the multitude that they will enact very few, if any, of them.

Ex-President Calvin Coolidge puts it this way: "Christmas represents love and mercy. It was ushered in by the star of hope and remains forever consecrated by the sacrifice of the cross. Christmas holds its place in the hearts of men because they know that love is the greatest thing in the world."

The week of prayer is to be January 3rd to January 9th, inclusive. The Federal Council has prepared an appropriate outline and program for every day of the season. These may be had at $1.50 the hundred. Our Woman's Missionary Societies have ordered their supply for full distribution and use in each Society.

There is a saying, "We never know how many friends we have until we get in trouble." This is certainly proving true of Elon College. Throughout the church, where this writer has been since Dr. Smith was elected president, he has heard only words of willingness to help and loyalty to the college and to Dr. Smith in the great work to which he has been called. The church has too great an asset in Elon College to ever allow its indebtedness to destroy its usefulness or hinder its progress.

One thing the Church has had to do from the time of its founding till now is to face grave problems. And as the Church grows strong with the years, its problems do not decrease, they increase; the circle of its activities becomes larger with the passing years. One writer enumerates some of the more obvious present-day problems as follows: "Politics, Prohibition, Science, War, Peace, Church Union, Fundamentalism, Modernism, Unemployment, Depression, Divorce, Child Labor, Divine Healing, Companionate Marriage, et cetera."

The editor of the Richmond, Va., Christian Advocate had this appreciation in his editorial columns last week:

"Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., pastor of the Christian Temple of Norfolk, Va., has been elected president of Elon College in North Carolina, and has accepted the position. Dr. Smith has, for fifteen years, been pastor of the Christian Temple, Norfolk, and, under his leadership, that church has grown to be one of the leading churches in his denomination. He is a graduate of the college that has called him to its head, and has been president of the Christian Convention. The editor of the Advocate and Dr. Smith have long been close friends and we wish for him great success and happiness in his new field. He is zealous and consecrated to the work committed to him and will put all his force in it. Dr. Smith is a subscriber to the Advocate and keeps up with all the workings of our church."

College faculty and citizens of Elon sat down to a dinner in the dining room of West Dormitory on Wednesday evening, December 9th. There were over sixty present, and at the conclusion of the courses, Dr. L. E. Smith, president of Elon College, made a talk, telling of his desires and policy for Elon. His first work is that of raising a $50,000.00 fund to meet the immediate demands to save Elon College and to pay every pressing and immediate obligation. After responses from others present, it was suggested that the campaign for funds be started at Elon here and now. Blank cards were passed and donations, through pledges, were made by those assembled in the sum of $2,977.00. A committee of four was named to wait on the other people of the town since, as Dr. Smith stated, "We should begin at Jerusalem."

Rev. Jesse H. Dollar, pastor of United Congregational-Christian Church, LaGrange, Ga., was the Thanksgiving speaker for the Rotarians and also for the Lions Club, and also for the union church services, of his city Thanksgiving day. The LaGrange daily paper carried extensive accounts of all three of his Thanksgiving addresses. Evidently his new field of labor is giving Brother Dollar a handful of opportunities both for hard work and real service. Among the things to be thankful for, declared Mr. Dollar, was the adversities of the last two years which have served to bring us to a sober sense of saving and of sane living. "The last two years," he said, "have been a time of fiery testing, when motives have been either purified or destroyed. Let us be thankful for our adversities, and take courage to look out and not in; forward and not back; up and not down. The inherent ability and the great heritage of Americans are sufficient to meet any crisis, and that the return to a sounder and more prosperous era was already in evidence in many lines of industry and activity. The people become indifferent toward religion and spiritual matters during times of prosperity, and so temporary adversity brings people back to the fundamental things of life and service."

(The Editor's friend, Prof. Tom Huey, of the Science Department, City High School, LaGrange, Ga., writes a personal letter which, though not intended for print, carries many items of interest about our LaGrange church, as follows:)

"The people of LaGrange are cooperating wonderfully with Rev. Jesse H. Dollar in putting across the program of the church. We, of the LaGrange church, were hungering for some spiritual food, and I'm happy to say we are getting it. The men and women of the church raised $500.00 to pay on the church debt, and so prevented a lumber company from suing them. It was a happy bunch when the required amount had been raised. The whole congregation seems to be responding to Jesse's preaching, and with a beautiful spirit. At present our Sunday School is growing in attendance with a very well organized school; Christian Endeavor is fine. The good women have just organized a Missionary Society and a Ladies' Aid Society. We have choir practice and various other meetings all the time. We certainly have plenty to join now and to do. I was about to forget to tell you about my Sunday School class. I try to teach the young men, and they are fine. We had twenty-eight present today, and what we are planning is an increase every Sunday. It is the 'art of arts' to teach youngsters who are full of pep and life. Glad to hear that Dr. Smith was chosen as president of Elon. I am teaching his niece and will plead with her to go to Elon."

That which turned out to be a very enjoyable luncheon was served in the dining room of the Burlington Christian Church, Thursday, December 10th. Between 25 and 30 leading citizens of Burlington from various professions and business interests gathered to discuss Elon College and plans for a campaign in Burlington and Alamance County to help save the college in its present distress. Very interesting talks were made by Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and others, in which it was emphasized that Elon College was a real asset, regardless of church affiliations, to Alamance County. One speaker emphasized the fact that there were about 100 students in Elon College from Alamance County, and in all probability 75 per cent of these would never have gone to college if they could not have reached the college daily from their homes. One speaker, a resident of Burlington, said that he wished his children to be under parental influence, certainly during the first two or three years of their college life, and he had chosen Elon College as the place for his children to attend school, certainly for the first two or three years of their college life. Thus it was argued that Elon College is of peculiar interest and advantage to the people of the county, one speaker declaring that if the people of Alamance County realized the situation and would enter into the present campaign, they alone could, without hurt to themselves, put over the $50,000.00 campaign. Dr. Smith addressed the gathering and told of the interest that was being manifested on the part of the ministers whom he had seen, and he had seen a great majority of them throughout the Southern Convention. He had not met with a minister in his experience thus far who did not express his willingness and determination to do what he could for our college in this time of need.

These are busy days with president L. E. Smith of Elon College, who, with his co-workers and helpers, is seeking to give every man, woman and child of the Christian churches of the Southern Convention an opportunity of making some contribution to Elon College. Ministers, practically 100 per cent, have signified their willingness to cooperate, and are cooperating, in every way possible, in each conference so as to give an opportunity for widespread and universal expression of loyalty and support of Elon College. The manner in which the pastors and laymen are cooperating in the movement is most gratifying, indeed, not only to Dr. Smith, but to all who love Elon and realize that it must live and carry on. The greatest contribution that the Christian Church, particularly in the South, has made to the world institutionally is Elon College, and the greatest contribution Elon College has made to the church is the faithful and true, devoted and loyal ministers, who are occupying nearly all of the pulpits in the convention; the faithful and loyal lay-readers in the congregations of the churches throughout the Convention and the hundreds of alumni throughout the South and the nation who are making their contribution to the Christian citizenship of our land. One speaker in a notable group recently declared that "if Elon College had done nothing else than give Dr. L. E. Smith to the ministry and to the world, with his intellectual, cultural and Christian equipment, it would have been worth the cost." When it is added that there are hundreds and thousands of others who have been equipped likewise for their tasks of genuine Christian service, no one who has ever contributed a dollar to the institution can regret the investment. An investment now in Elon College means an investment in the life, the labors, and the achievement of the Christian Church.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

REV. JOSEPH P. BEAN, of Alabama, is made happy by the organization of promising Christian Endeavor Societies in his Bethel and Wesley Chapel churches.

UNION CHURCH, CHATTANOOGA, located in a city suburb on the slope of historic Missionary Ridge, did not need its church bell when it built its fine new church, and has given the bell to the United Church of Phenix City, which makes good use of it. Miss Marguerite Davison had a fine part in the transaction.

CAROLINA MISSIONARY COMMITTEE, Rev. W. T. Scott, Chairman, made a tour of churches during the week of November 29th. The young people of Mr. Scott's church—United, Salisbury—prepared a pageant which they put on in their own church on Monday night, November 30th, then at Albemarle, December 1st, Bailey's Grove, December 2nd, Chapel Hill, December 4th, Flint Hill and Sophia, December 6th. Mr. Scott was assisted in this program by Rev. Milo J. Sweet and Miss Priscilla Chase.

REV. GILBERT G. WALTON, of Graysville, Tennessee, was a general Sunday School and church worker in the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee, though at times he had a much larger territory, after Brother Meyers, William E. Barton and Mark N. Sumner. For the Sunday School society he assembled many new organizations. While in the employ of the American Missionary Association, he traveled widely as field supervisor of churches and schools. Robbins was the place of his ordination. A number of churches owe him much for help in the early days. It is hoped that in some way his service may be marked by a memorial building to keep his name in remembrance. His funeral was held at Pilgrim church, Chattanooga, of which he was latterly a member.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., IS HAPPY with the new minister, Rev. Cleveland R. Dierlamm. Audiences are increasing each Sunday, the Sunday School is being reorganized in the junior departments, teachers' meetings are being planned and the new minister is glad the lines have fallen to him in so pleasant a place. Besides these elements of progress, an up-to-date, carefully prepared Every-Member Canvass is being studied with the intention to lay well the foundation, then to move forward with intelligence and vigor. A small representative group met the Pastor-at-Large, and the program was gone over together. This church, under the leadership of Mr. Dierlamm, is also looking into the matter of a constitution and by-laws to complete the organization in order, a thing which has not been done since the new charter was granted by the court a few years ago. They are looking forward to their annual meeting in January which, they believe, will be the beginning of a great advance for 1932. It is also gratifying to note that under the fine leadership of the superintendent of the Sunday School, Mr. Grady Leonard, five of the boys in early teens united with the church November 22nd. And still another interesting piece of work by this church is the work and enterprise of the women. They have contracted to serve Tuesday evening dinners each week for six months to the Rotary Club of the city. A fine piece of work, even if hard. The spirit of the ladies of Chapel Hill United Church is hard to beat.

A MISSIONARY VISITOR.

Miss Helen Dizney, of China, says that a Chinese man is not able to understand that any one is having a hard time if the family can own an automobile. The idea of hard times over there is to have people who have been stricken with starvation, crawling up to your front steps to die. Miss Dizney has sympathy, humor, wisdom, and zeal and makes the needy rural folk of China neighbors whom we may help if we will. After an absence of six years she was welcomed by the Kentucky and Tennessee Churches, which have her as a project, and was heard for the first time at Phenix City United, Mt. Olive, and Liberty Churches near Tallassee, Mountain Springs, Thorsby, and Birmingham Churches of Alabama, in which Conference she is also a project. At Birmingham she was given a formal reception by the women, and a fine opportunity to speak in the Church school. In Tennessee the Collegiate Church people heard her for the first time. The Meleneys of that church had visited her work in China. At Chattanooga, Soddy and Pleasant Hill the people were especially enthusiastic. In Evarts, Kentucky, where she went to school as a girl and later taught, and where her father was principal of Black Mountain Academy and of the high school, the church was not able to accommodate the people who came to listen. Sunday School children of Evarts give each Sunday towards her work and the little fund which she takes back from this mountain Sunday School class will be used in the Good Samaritan fund of the hospital for the desperately poor. Boys of Evarts gave a supply of marbles, which will be used to amuse convalescent boys in China. Miss Dizney has been in much demand as a speaker in Illinois, Michigan and other States. She hopes to have some time to take advanced courses while at home. Besides her other work in China she has a class of thirty native nurses in training.

ROANOKE, ALABAMA.

Last Saturday and Sunday, December 5th and 6th, were our regular meeting dates with Pleasant Grove Church. On Saturday we had a very fine service, with quite a good crowd present, and a harmonious church conference. The church agreed to adopt the plan suggested by the pastor, and all committees appointed are working beautifully to carry out a constructive program for the coming year. It was also agreed that the church will take a Free Will offering at each Sunday service, and in this way meet current expenses, and help on pastor's salary. I am glad to say that all my churches have substantially the same program, and it is giving entire satisfaction to the membership. One member was received to fellowship at the Saturday service. The Sunday service was real inspiring. Good Sunday School, superintended by Prof. Looser. The adult class was taught by Prof. Reeves. At the close of the sermon, we observed a sweet communion service, after which the offering was taken in a very impressive manner. The entire service was deeply spiritual. The music was fine, presented by the music committee, led by Prof. W. C. Edge, who is a member of this church, and one of our highly respected deacons. Prof. Edge is principal of the Daviston, Ala. High School. He is an honored teacher and a fine church worker.

At the close of the service, the pastor was kindly remembered by a generous "pounding," such as a country church, only, knows how to administer. We were presented with fresh meat, sausage, lard, sugar, flour, canned fruit, dried fruit, pears, pecans, etc., and cash amounting to $4.85, for all of which we are very thankful.

Bro. J. P. Hill's son met me at Abanda, and carried me to the church. Bro. I. D. Harris and family brought me home on Sunday. I am indeed thankful to them. Now, Mr. Editor, as I am serving my work without a car, I am having more time to visit the members and friends of the church. I made 7 pastoral visits, among the old and feeble of the community while there. Also attended a "pie" sale at the school auditorium, at the Public School building Saturday night.

In justice to this people and community, I will say that they are the hardest hit by the "drouth," and "oppression" of any community I have visited since conference. There are many land owners in this section who do not know how to proceed with their business as they, like many others, have practically lost all they have the past year. Many tenants, both white and colored, who have no home for next year, and many of them have nothing to live on. These and similar conditions exist, more or less, all over our beautiful southland, and regardless of what may be in other sections, it is pitiful here.

Sunday night we had a fine service at Roanoke First Church Christian Endeavor program led by Miss Buna Veazey, followed by song and prayer service by the young people, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Prof. Leon M. Stevenson of the Roanoke Leader, conducted service for us Sunday at the 11 a. m. hour, to the delight of all.

Monday at 2:30 p. m., the Woman's Missionary Society of the church held a very interesting session, at the home of Mrs. V. E. Kitchens. After the business session was over, a fine program was rendered by the following members, each representing a guest from the Guest Book: Mrs. Sam Dollar, "Tidings from the Philippines;" Mrs. J. H. Swint, "From India's Coral Strand;" Mrs. T. L. Head, "Pilgrims from Puerto Rico;" Mrs. J. F. Brown, "Three Children from the Chilly North;" Mrs. Paul Baird, "The Chinese Hospital;" Mrs. J. H. Sledge, "A Leader of Bantu Youth." A prize was given by the hostess to the one who made the best presentation of their subject, which was awarded to Mrs. J. F. Brown. The prize consisted of one nice flower vase.

After the meeting, refreshments were served, which was much enjoyed by all present. Every phase of the program was enjoyed, however, the society voted to leave off serving refreshments in the future, or until further notice shall be given. The treasurer reported $4.80 collected since last meeting. Our church here has a loyal little band of workers. They have a "Young People's Society" and a "Willing Worker's Society." All of these auxiliaries are fully alive to the larger needs of the kingdom of God. All these agencies bespeak for us a stronger church, which will be realized at no distant day.

Our work here is growing in every department. The real spiritual power of the work is becoming more noticeable at each service, and some day in the near future this little band of working people will do themselves proud in the kingdom service. Christmas is swiftly approaching. The Old year will soon be gone, so will our lives, and so will our opportunity for service.

"The day is past and gone,
The evening shades appear,
O, may we all remember well,
The night of death draws near."

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

A RELIGION OF HOPE.

The joy and happiness of the Christmas season emphasize again that Christianity is the religion of hope. Though it has passed through many a trial, from the birth of its Founder till this hour, there is no note of despair, gloom or failure in Christianity. The murderous Herod, desperate in his determination to destroy the Christ-child, killed every child from two years of age and under "in Bethlehem and in all the coasts thereof." From that day till this, murderous hearts and wicked souls have gone beyond all bounds to stab Christianity to the heart and do it to death. Truly the history of Christianity could be written in the red blood of those who were slain in the effort to destroy it from the earth. Despite this sanguine and gruesome fact, Christianity has ever remained the religion of hope, carrying good cheer to the hearts of men and women and bringing joy untold, and peace to the earth.

We now enter upon the Christmas season when hearts are glad and good cheer abounds. Isn't it a strange picture? "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head?" So spake the Man in whose name and memory more glad songs have been put on the lips of mankind, more joy felt in the human heart, and more gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh given than on any other account, or in any other name known among men. Or, another picture, "they nailed Him to the cross and crucified Him." Alone, forsaken, despised, rejected of men, and yet out of that gloom there was a gleam, and, from that gleam, there has poured down through the ages a stream of gladness, a fountain of hope, rivers of happiness. From the advent of Jesus in Bethlehem to the loneliness and exile of John on Patmos, there is no note of despair, no word of doubt or dread, no symbol of faltering or of failure. The music of hope, gladness, good cheer rings out on every page and through every age.

Christianity has faced impossible and insurmountable problems and difficulties, but Christianity has never despaired. It is the religion of hope, and so as we face these days of Christmas gladness, we do so in the spirit of Him Who in ancient times sang, "Hope in God; for I shall yet praise Him, who is the health of my countenance and my God." And this, we will do, bearing in mind the words of him, who once followed, then forsook, and later was crucified, for his Lord: "Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ." LOVE CAN LIFT THE LOAD.

Nothing can carry the burden of Elon, and nothing can save it except love. Just that. "Love suffereth long, and is kind. And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love." We have faith in Elon, we have hope for Elon, but only the strongest sentiment and motive of the heart can do the effectual work now for our college. If we love, we will help lift; if we love, we will share; if we love, we will lend a hand. In and about Christmas time, we have the heart to share, our gifts, our earnings, our savings with our loved ones. The wise men showed to the Christ-Child their faith, their hope and most of all, their love. For "when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts; gold and frankincense and myrrh." That is the spirit of Christmas. It is the spirit in which we make Christmas a season of joy and delight. It is a time when we share our love gifts.

Are we looking for the needy? Then the call of Elon tells of that need. Are we looking for hope? Then Elon gives us that hope. Do we look through faith? Then Elon is a challenge to that faith. Do we look through the eyes and out of hearts of love? Then, we will share with Elon our gifts.

So far as we are advised, every minister in the Southern Convention has expressed his willingness to cooperate, his desire to do and his readiness to share with Elon. Here, indeed, is an example.

It will take time for all to be reached and appealed to in person. But why wait? The season is now upon us, the need is now very, very pressing. Why not today send a love gift to Elon and thus help to bring joy and gladness not to a hundred, but to a thousand of hearts, yea, to ten thousand.

It takes time to put on a campaign throughout the church, it requires effort, plan, organization. Why wait for these things? The creditors of Elon College will not wait; they are wishing and they are pressing. The teachers and the employees of Elon College cannot wait; their creditors are also pressing. The need is urgent, is insistent, is weighty. Why not answer that need today with a gift through your church or direct to the college? J. O. A.

IN THE PRESIDENT'S OFFICE.

Will SUN readers enjoy with the editor "a peep" into the office of President L. E. Smith? If so, one of the things to greet their eyes would be a pile of letters, and since Dr. Smith is perfectly free and frank about it all, he will let us read those letters. This one from a school teacher:

"I see in the CHRISTIAN SUN where Elon is raising $50,000.00 and trying to get fifty new students next semester. I am making a donation in money and am setting as my goal to secure for Elon five of those fifty students. I shall, at least, do my best and will go to see the prospects without any cost to Elon. With assurance of my sincere interest in Elon and good wishes to you,"

Then another—this from a Christian minister:

"I have just sent a small 'cash vote of confidence' to Brother C. D. Johnston, treasurer for Elon. I sincerely wish I could do more, but I have gladly done this, and I give you my assurance, and the assurance of my good wife, that we stand ready to do anything in our power for Elon. We believe in your ability and consecration, and we stand devotedly behind you."

Then another from a minister and his family:

"Yesterday morning I went to the bank and took out all the money I had in it except a few dollars, and when I came in last night, I said to the family, 'let's get around the table and have a prayer before we put our money in the envelopes for Elon.' We did so. All of us prayed. N——, eight years old, 'Thank God for Elon, where daddy went to school.' C——, eleven years old, prayed that Elon might be kept a good school so that she and brother could go there when they got grown; my wife prayed especially for the president of the College, and I prayed that our church as a whole might respond to Elon's call at this time of her great need. Our gift is so small that it can't do much good, but it is the best we can do at this time. I do not know what my churches will do, as there is not very much interest, but I hope they will give something."

And then from a good woman who, with her husband, has two students at Elon:

"We are happy that you have taken the presidency of Elon College, and are praying that the churches and the alumni will rally to your support. With your splendid judgment, with the cooperation of pastors and churches, I feel that old Elon will be saved—but it is going to take hard work to do it."

And then the editor might show you one of the many letters coming to him, among them this one from a loyal and active member in Christian Temple, Norfolk:

"There is no expressing the way we are missing Dr. Smith here in Norfolk. I just wish every one could know and appreciate him as we do. He is a Prince among men. I firmly believe that even in these depressing times under his leadership Elon will take her place among our best church colleges."

Such glimpses in the inner mind and heart serve to cheer and send us forth with a little more courage and hope to do our duty, and save our Elon for the great service to which it has been dedicated, by the prayers and sacrifices of a devoted people. J. O. A.

CHRISTMAS.

The celebration of the birth of Jesus Christ is one that appeals to home and children. The institution of this festival is of doubtful origin as to place and date. Some locate the time in A. D. 138-161; others 180-192; yet others 284-305 A. D. It was not a common observance among the early churches. Christmas from the 5th to the 8th centuries gathered around it other festivals. However, it gradually grew into a religious custom and December 25th became the day of its celebration; and it is now a time for cessation from business, family reunions, exchange of gifts, and religious services; but the religious observance is often overlooked, and pleasure is sought in doubtful associations and pursuits. Schools close, business stops, and men and women turn to such engagements as they choose.

But, as Christmas celebrates the entrance into this world of the Saviour of mankind and the introduction of Christianity as the greatest of all institutions, it should be observed and celebrated with special and spiritual thought and service. It is beautiful for families to get together and give thanks for the blessings they enjoy, and to teach children that their Christmas gifts are really from the Lord. He inspires the gifts from parents, brothers and sisters, and friends, and every present should be a religious lesson for children and grown people, too. "Santa Claus" is more than a myth—it is a lesson for children and parents in the field of religion.

Christmas cards now printed and distributed in millions during this holiday season, as souvenirs and expressions of good will, are modern in their use. Great art is expressed in the beauty of Christmas cards, and they have come to be a great business in the Christmas world. One of the remarkable things about all Christian products is that they increase the business of the world. The more religious a nation is, the greater the arts and sciences and the greater the discoveries and inventions for human progress. Christian nations are the most progressive. Christmas ought to make a large contribution to the intelligence, the character, the cooperation, and the spiritual life of mankind. W. W. S.

GEORGE GOES TO COLLEGE.

By DR. J. H. DILLARD

George expects to go to college next fall. His father is thinking of sending him to a small college rather than to the university which is his own alma mater. He objects to having George as a freshman come into contact with only young instructors. He says that in his own case the teachers he was under in his first college year were younger and less experienced than the ones he had in his last two years of preparatory school. He holds that young men of freshman age, turned loose with freedom in their college life, need contact with men who are more mature than the average of instructors employed in large universities.

I think he is right about this. In the university George would occasionally meet a dean or some assigned adviser, but this does not count like the daily contact. Of course there are instructors and instructors. Some have the knack of teaching. Some men are more mature at twenty-five than others at forty. But I think it is true that in the small college George will have a better chance, during his first year, of making contacts with men who have had experience in life and in teaching.

As to George's work in college his father makes so bold as to say that it is not so much any particular knowledge that he wants him to get as the ability to use his head. This is a rather unexpected opinion. For if a father says anything about his son's college purpose it is apt to have reference to some practical subject. George's father seems to have the good sense to see that the most practical thing he can do for George is to get him trained to use his head. He seems to see that back of any special education there is such a thing as education.

So here again he seems to me to have the right thought. I am advising him that George's studies include at least one subject on precision, like Mathematics or Latin or Physics, to be continued throughout his course. My reason for this is the belief that a young man, by such persistent pursuit of a subject, can get from his four years of college work what his father wishes for George. Some men are born with the ability and disposition to think. Other men acquire this ability and disposition without going to college. Washington was getting good training in this line when he was surveying for Lord Fairfax. Lincoln was getting it when studying Euclid by the light of his wood fire. But going to college ought to help anyone in the way and habit of thinking. Charlottesville, Va.

Nine Hundred Eighty Strong.

In wars of ages past, camp attendants, auxiliaries, reserve troops have all been necessary, but it is to the shock troops that the general looked for victory.

Philip of Macedon, Alexander the Great, Cæsar, Napoleon, Washington, Lee—all knew the value of shock troops. Even in the World War, when human slaughter had been reduced to a science of destruction, shock troops were necessary when the barrage was over.

Never were these troops raw recruits; they were the result of intensive training, of hard work, on the part of themselves and of their trainers. But the results justified the cost.

For forty years Elon has been training her shock troops. Others have come and gone, and many of them have done and are doing their part in the conflict. But how well has she succeeded in training these shock troops? Are they alert, eager to go forward when danger threatens? Are they willing to sacrifice, that Elon may be saved. The shock troops of an army give their all—their lives, if necessary—for honor and for country. What will Elon's shock troops do? Are they Nine Hundred Eighty Strong?

Consider, for just a moment, what Elon has meant to you. Where would you be today without the advantages which she has given you? Have you even paid the interest on the debt of gratitude, of love, you owe her? Have you paid her anything at all? If you have not, then what an opportunity for joy is yours—what an opportunity to invest in the future welfare of others; in the well-being of your State and Nation.

The President of the Alumni has sent out an appeal for funds—for support—for immediate action on the part of Elon's Alumni. All can give something—many can give much. What will your answer be? You can, will you? Elon's shock troops have been called into action. Are you a shirker, a slacker, a quitter, or are you coming to the front where, in the time of danger, the shock troops belong?

Are Elon's Alumni Nine Hundred Eighty Weak, or Nine Hundred Eighty Strong?

SUFFOLK LETTER.

The Christian Missionary Association of the Eastern Virginia Christian Conference held its fortieth annual session with the Waverly Christian Church December 8, 1931. The pastor, Rev. F. C. Lester, delivered a sweet welcome address and Rev. J. F. Morgan, pastor of Rosemont Christian Church, responded in the same spirit. Devotional service was conducted by Rev. P. H. Brown of Portsmouth. President Caviness presided and Rev. J. F. Morgan, secretary, made a record of the proceedings. Dr. W. M. Jay, pastor of Holland Christian Church, delivered the main address.

The roll was called and leaders responded by giving the names of members and the collection of dues for the year. The sum collected last year was $1,815.00 and the sum collected this year was $1,616.00, or only $199.00 less than last year. Considering the money stringency of this year, as compared with last year, the collection was something to be thankful for. Some more may come in after the regular meeting.

The Committee on appropriations voted $450.00 to Waverly Church; $450.00 to Christian Temple; $300.00 to First Christian Church, Portsmouth; $150.00 to Newport News; $100.00 to South Norfolk; $100.00 to Elm Avenue, Portsmouth; and $50.00 to Hopewell. The total appropriated was $1,600.00. One thing is plain and worthy of mention, and that is that church members give more liberally than in former years to benevolent causes, and there are so many organizations raising money that it requires thoughtful and prayerful consideration to know just how to divide up personal donations.

The Waverly Church is a splendid house of worship with modern and adequate Sunday School building in the rear, and all well equipped, and the Church and Sunday School in good working condition. The pastor seems to be doing a good work and devoted to his congregation. He serves, also, Spring Hill and Centerville. Fifteen preachers were present and one hundred and twenty-five others. A good dinner was served at forty cents a plate, and those who partook of the meal praised it as well as enjoyed it. The officers elected for the coming year were, Rev. H. C. Caviness, president; Rev. R. E. Brittle, vice-president; Rev. J. F. Morgan, recording secretary; and B. D. Jones, treasurer. Those elections were all re-elections.

One of the features of the session was an appealing address by Rev. L. E. Smith, D. D., president of Elon College. He spoke in the interest of the campaign to raise $50,000.00 as an emergency fund to meet present necessity and to maintain the standing and continue the educational work of the college. To meet the present need of Elon College calls for the united and liberal support of the more than thirty thousand members of the Southern Christian Convention. If one considers the magnificent buildings and equipment of the institution, and what it has done for the church, his loyalty will express itself in contribution. W. W. STALEY.

IMPRESSIONS BY THE WAY.

(Final Article of Series.)

Joseph and Mary took the Young Child and went down into Egypt. The pilgrim to the Holy Land will wish to include Egypt in his itinerary. There are some advantages in entering the Holy Land from that direction. From that direction Moses led the Israelites across the Red Sea and through the Wilderness to the Mountains of Moab, from whose summits he looked across the Jordan and the Dead Sea and glimpsed the Promised Land. On the other hand, Abraham entered the land from the north. You are shown the place on the acropolis of Aleppo, Syria, where the father of the faithful milked his cow. Thence he turned southwest and likely entered Palestine via the Damascus section on to Jerusalem. Since he loved the hills it is not likely that he went to the city of Damascus itself.

If Moses had been able to turn north after crossing the Red Sea and have entered the fertile plains at that time inhabited by the Philistines, the Hebrew nation would have fused with the aboriginal inhabitants and the world's religious history would have been very different. He was no match in military strength and strategy nor in economic and commercial acumen for the rich and powerful dwellers in those fertile plains. The Israelites needed the long schooling of the Sinai mountains and desert and of the wilderness, in order to make of them the nation fit to be the spiritual benefactors of the race. Oftentimes, hardships pay great dividends in character and vital piety. It was certainly so in Israel's history.

Joseph and Mary took their Babe on the ever-present donkey and no doubt spent weeks if not months in making the journey into Egypt. There is no good road for this trip even today and only during the World War was the present railroad completed. Before the World War travelers went overland from Jerusalem to Haifa or Jaffa and thence by boat to Alexandria or Port Said. A new highway is being surveyed or rather charted now, and some cars do go over the route, taking chances on finding their way through the desert. Donkey trails and camel caravan-routes, however, lead over the mountains and through the deserts and plains today just as in Joseph's day. It is difficult for us used to our Western domestic furniture to understand how readily Joseph and Mary could move over to Egypt for a rather lengthy sojourn without any preparation. Very likely all their earthly possessions could be carried on a donkey or on two donkeys at most. Hospitality is universal and gracious in that country, and Joseph could do some carpentry as he moved on.

If Joseph's trail wound through the mountains and across deserts and plains as our trail did, he had a delightful journey. The same Moslem guide who had made our stay in the Holy Land so worth while conducted us and a missionary from India to Egypt. Having been a student in the Mohammedan University at Cairo, Sayed Friad Imam, or Sir Heart Leader, was excellently qualified to make Egypt real to us also, as well as the historic places along the way, such as the birthplace and home of Samson, the valley of Elah where David slew Goliath, the Sinai range of mountains, Gezer, Lydda, Jabneel, Ashdod (Azotus) Gaza, the several fertile plains, and many other places of sacred association.

The sunset was beautiful over the Mediterranean along which we rode for nearly half the day. About dark we passed in a ferry boat over the Suez Canal and deposited ourselves in another train for Cairo. Soon we were passing through Piton and the land of Goshen. After a delightful rest in a modern hotel in this city of nearly 2,000,000 population we set out sight-seeing. Nine tenths of the people are Moslems and Mosques are everywhere. The most important one of the four hundred is that of Sultan Hassan near the citadel. We visit it and find many devout worshipers. We also visit the Moslem University, founded in 975, with its 15,000 students, or rather we visit the mosque in which the 11th and 12th classes, about 800 in all, are studying. Those in the other ten classes are in other mosques. The teacher sits on a raised seat. His pupils sit around him on the floor. He answers their questions and also questions them. How they learn anything is a marvel, since all eight hundred with some twenty teachers seem to be talking at once. On entering the university we must take off our shoes. In most mosques slippers are provided that slip over your shoes like a rubber. We also visit the American University maintained by the United Presbyterian Church, the Protestant Church, and the two museums of the city—the Egyptian and the Arabic. Of particular interest in the former are the contents of the tomb of King Tut as he is called in America. Some of the relics in this museum go back more than 6,000 years. We are not, however, permitted to see the mummies of the kings, which have been placed in a secret room. We were especially anxious to see that of Rameses II, the oppressor of the Hebrews.

We visit the land of Goshen, see the "traditional" spot where the infant Moses floated in his ark of bulrushes, drive out through the magnificent new section of the city called Heliopolis to view the obelisk, motor to Memphis or rather to the site which the excavator's patience had proved it once occupied, while there look upon the two huge stone statues of Rameses II, and motor on to the pyramid region. The chief pyramids are the three massive ones standing at Gizeh, the largest of which covers 13 acres of ground and rises nearly 500 feet high at its apex. Pharaoh Nouho built it by the forced labor of 100,000 men for twenty years. It was designed to be the burying ground for himself and his queen, and so contained only two rooms. The sphinx also is here—that combination of human head and lion body.

It seems so weird to look upon these massive pyramids. But so firmly did the ancient Egyptians believe that the soul will return to its body that they perfected the art of mummifying the dead and kings spared no expense of money and labor to erect places for the preservation of their own bodies. This understood, the pyramids cease to be a monstrosity and become an evidence in stone of the outstretching of the soul after God and the everlasting life. We now know a more excellent way, but we can honor them nevertheless in their devout striving after the divine.

Then one day 1934 years ago a poor carpenter and his wife arrived on the outskirts of Cairo with their precious babe. That babe was the answer to all the ancient longing of the millions upon millions who in that land had sought to understand God and failed. They were unaware of His presence or of the mission of His life. Yet He was and is still the way, the truth, and the life. The light shone in their midst, but they comprehended it not.

Today there stands a Coptic Christian Cathedral on the spot where Joseph and Mary are said to have dwelt while they sojourned in Egypt till the blood-thirsty Herod should die. The Coptic Church is the Egyptian Christian Church and is the most nearly pagan of any of the branches of our Christian faith. Today it is not far removed from Islam in its doctrines, by which it is literally engulfed. But you feel grateful that through the centuries with all the vicissitudes of war and fortune, and all the persecutions of pagans and Moslems, this Coptic Church has retained its vitality for us, if only a tradition, the spot where the Christ Child and His parents dwelt for a season.

We do not go to Luxor and Karnak, the region where the capital of Egypt was located after its removal from Memphis to Thebes, because most of the "finds" there are in the Cairo museum, except of course the remains of the great temples which are common enough in the Old World. We were told that they are well worth a visit, espec-

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

SUPPLICATION.

DECEMBER, 1931.

Jehovah, God, we praise Thee that in the blessed Trinity there is all power and might, all love and grace, eternal and universal communion; that Jesus, by paying sin's full price, became to all the world the never-dimming Day-star toward which His Church moves—all too slowly, we confess, because we hide and hoard the things that speed the Church's pace. Loose our gifts, O God, and make our direction as true and fixed as was that of those who followed the Star of long ago. And to Jesus' name forever be glory in the highest. Amen.

OUR BELOVED IN JAPAN.

Dear Dr. Atkinson:

Generally it is to be expected that a man who is put on the retired list shall cease from his labors and let his works follow after him. But since the Mission Board allows us to stay in Japan, we think it best to make hay while the sun shines, which is to say, that as long as my health continues, I shall carry on just the same as though no retirement had been mentioned. In consequence by teaching English I am able to return to the Board $54 a month. My teaching in the M. E. theological school if done by one of their missionaries, would cost them about $1,500 a year, but this is a gift to the cause.

I am teaching sixteen hours in the two schools, and with home teaching, Bible classes, etc., I am kept busy more than twenty hours a week. But in the Theological school the full time professors (Japanese) put in about twelve hours. I am sure that in your work, as is the case with all preachers and doctors, you give a lot of important service which is not put down in the profit account in your ledger. I think also that we missionaries have much opportunity to obey the command of our Lord to His disciples when He said, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

As to food the doctor has put me on a diet which excludes sugar and starches and all the eatables which may contain these things. My trouble is that when I am invited out to dine with some of our friends the white bread, potatoes, cake, sweetened tea and coffee, not to mention other things, puts me in an awkward position. Of course this gives me an opportunity to congratulate elegant gentlemen like yourself who are able to enjoy all the good things that those Southern cooks are able to prepare. It has been more than thirty years since I had a chance to taste some of their cooking, but the remembrance of it remains on my palate still.

We, my wife and myself, are feeling deeply thankful that the Lord has led us so far on our way. We have entered on the 40th year of our service in Japan. I passed my 74th birthday in October, but if feelings are the measure of how old one is, I feel as young as I did forty years ago. So I tell the schoolboys that I am 74 years young!

When we pray, we do not forget the self-sacrificing Christian men and women who by their prayers and gifts have sustained our work in this land, and with our present large fellowship in the gospel are extending their work and prayers throughout the world. May the grace, mercy and peace of our Lord be with you all.

Sincerely, your brother,

A. D. WOODWORTH.

THE FOOLISHNESS OF WAR.

(Every Sun reader will profit by perusing this article. It comes from Japan, a convert to Christianity. The writer is one of our own Dr. Woodworth's "boys," who writes: "I send you a copy of a speech by one of my boys at an oratorical contest. There were 12 contestants, and this one got third prize. Later, where there were 20 speakers, he outshone all and received first prize. Read what that Japanese student wrote and spoke.")

When we study the causes of war in the past, we find that some nations have wanted the lands and the property of the weak, and have fought to gain them. Napoleon had an ambition to be supreme in Europe and drenched the country with blood. The oppressed nations have rightly fought to maintain their freedom. Sometimes a man like Alexander the Great, has fought his neighbors for the pure pleasure of fighting and sheds tears because there are no more nations to conquer.

It is said by some foolish talkers that in the next war Japan and America will fight. What would happen in such a war? As America imports nearly all our tea and silk, she is our best customer. But Japan is one of America's best customers in buying cotton, petroleum, machinery, iron, and many important things necessary to our national life. The trade between Japan and America is about 40 per cent of our total trade. What advantage would it be to us to destroy our best customer even if we could? Shall we be richer by killing off our friends?

But we should consider the vast losses caused by war. Already Japan and America have great war debts which can not be paid in a hundred years. In the Great World War it is said that eleven million soldiers were killed, and, because of hunger, about forty million of the civilian population, generally children, the weak and the old, perished. It is said also that the unthinkable amount of three hundred and seventy billion dollars worth of property, which is a sum of money equal to the total wealth of the United States, was destroyed. Not only so, but all moral standards were broken down with a great increase of crime and immorality. Not only so, but because of these losses we have world-wide financial depression, and unemployment, while starvation and death stalk abroad in every land.

With the development of aeroplanes, poison gas and other weapons of destruction, the next war is bound to be much more destructive to life and property, great as those losses were. Gas so deadly has been discovered as to destroy the entire population of great cities.

But while inventors have discovered such terrible engines of war, made at great cost, these deadly engines may be destroyed in a moment. A warship costs fifty million yen, and a single torpedo may sink it. During the Great World War, the huge British liner, Lusitania, was sunk by a single torpedo, and eleven hundred and fifty-two lives were lost.

But we should remember further that rival preparation for war has often caused war. But between Canada and the United States along three thousand miles of boundary, there is not a single fort. Here there has been no thought of war for a hundred years. And war between these countries is regarded as unthinkable. Why should not Japan and America have thoughts of peace and lasting, unbreakable friendship?

The great Teacher, who lived two thousand years ago, taught us to love our enemies, to do good to them that hate us; to forgive the wrong done us; to be so non-combative as to turn the other cheek when one has been struck; that we should practice the golden rule of doing to others what we would like them to do to us.

We read in the Bible that the time will come when the nations will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, and when peace shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Does not the teaching of the great Teacher appeal to our highest ideals and to our common sense? Instead of cultivating the art of killing our fellowmen, should we not cultivate the qualities of world friendliness, look upon every nation as a brother, and help the weak to become strong, remembering that when we help others we help ourselves? May we not hope that some day the League of Nations may so change the minds of nations that there shall be a world parliament, that there shall be a United States of the world?

Among the ancient Greeks there was a torch race at night in which relays of runners took the torches from the hands of their fellows, carrying them forward to other companions, if possible, making the torches burn brighter than when they received them. We young men have received the torch of peace, of good will and brotherliness towards all men. Shall we not make it our greatest endeavor to hand down these ideals to the next generation so as to make our great country foremost in our love for peace with all men, and, hasten the day when wars shall cease?

I have often thought that the best of Christians are found in the worst of times.—John Bunyan.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE ELON ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Dear Friend:

Dr. Leon E. Smith has just taken up his duties as president of Elon College. As your Alumni President, I want to say that I have every confidence in his sincerity, his character, and his ability.

Like many other institutions—financial and educational—Elon is in a hard row of stumps in these crucial times. There are some people of wealth who are willing to come to the rescue of the college, provided that it can be shown that the Alumni are behind the college and are willing to support the new president.

This is my proposition: Let every member of our Alumni make some contribution to the college, and do this in the form of a Christmas gift. The enclosed envelopes are provided for that purpose. There is dire necessity for prompt action. Let your contribution be large or small as your wish and ability to pay shall dictate. I know of no better way in which to express our confidence in President Smith and his efforts to save Elon.

The new President's tenure of office is conditioned upon how promptly we rally to his support. Let us show him the faith we have in the work the college is doing by taking immediate action, for, let me again remind you, his hands will be tied when he attempts to tap sources of wealth unless it can be shown to these people that we are solidly behind him.

It is pleasing to note the deep interest that many complete outsiders are taking in the welfare of Elon at this time. An outstanding example of this is the action of Senator Josiah W. Bailey, who is giving absolutely free of charge his services as legal counsel for the college. It was largely through his efforts that the creditors of the institution were recently persuaded to grant us a moratorium until our finances could be rehabilitated.

It is my unshakeable conviction that Elon has made, and is destined to continue to make, a unique contribution to the welfare of mankind. But the growing indifference to the present plight of the college on the part of so many Alumni is a matter of deep concern to many of us. So let me urge all of you to respond to this appeal for a gift of confidence. The number of contributors is more important than the amount of the contribution.

Once, as a Hallowe'en prank, a boy stole my front gate. I did not remonstrate with him for fear he might take a fence. Should I write you again would you take offense (a fence)? Don't make this necessary. Please send your contribution (envelope) to C. D. Johnston, Treasurer, Elon College, N. C.

To all my old and personal friends I send love, and to all those not so numbered, I also wish this letter to convey my affectionate regard. I should very much enjoy a letter from each of you.

Wishing all of you a Merry Christmas, I am,
Faternally yours,

R. S. RAINEY.

P. S.—If you have contributed through the church, please disregard this letter, as F. C. Lester and S. C. Harrell will acquaint me with the action of all who so give.

EDUCATION NEEDS THE CHURCH COLLEGE.

The field of education needs the church college. These colleges are under no obligation to receive all who come to them. They stress not only high standards of scholarship but they insist that Christian character building is essential to true education and worth while leadership. They put quality before quantity. They are at liberty to open the Book of books, to teach the way of the Gospel and to show the youth in the class room and chapel how to live Christian lives by the standards of Jesus. In our Congregational institutions, at least, the colleges are free from political and ecclesiastical control. They are as free but no more so than the other church units within our fellowship.

If our church colleges are to abide, they must first prove by their Christian ideas, their standards of education, their strategic locations, and by the type of graduates they turn out that they have something to offer that is not contributed as sufficiently by the state institutions. Their instructors must not be sectarian. They must be scholarly men and women of faith and love and hope, whose classrooms recognize the good God of the universe. Their lives must have in them the spirit of the Great Teacher.

Our Congregational and Christian colleges have generally been true to the trust placed upon them by the church fathers. In proof of this, judge them by their fruit. In nearly every church of our order there are leaders who owe their inspiration to the wise counsels and the unobtrusive prayers of some professor or college mate in Alma Mater. To church-founded colleges in this materialistic age, we are to look more and more for our prophets, our poets, and our spiritual leaders.

We need not be jealous of our state and city institutions. They are doing a work far beyond the material ability of the churches and their colleges. Our only care should be that we do not turn all education over to them. A college classmate who has had experience in both forms of education, once wrote me, "The curse of the tax supported institution is politics; the curse of the church college is poverty." How delightful would be our tasks as college executives if only we had sufficient funds! A successful college president was once asked, "What do you consider the most essential thing in operating a college?" He replied, "Money. If you have money, any man can run a successful college." I am inclined to agree with the answer, if the president is wise enough to place the right men upon his staff. One thing is certain, if a college has ample endowment and does not lose it through mismanagement or poor investments or is old enough to have a loyal and sustaining alumni, that college will live. If we wish to perpetuate the ideals now dear to our church colleges, we must preserve them by material as well as by spiritual sacrifices. Both come from our friends within the churches with which we are affiliated. In the days immediately succeeding the war, when we were raising our great Pilgrim funds, we learned to our sorrow, not to depend upon the "friendly" brothers-in-law of the church. With few exceptions the self-sacrificing contributors were men and women of the church who somehow had caught the sacrificial spirit of the Man of Calvary.—From an address by President Edwin B. Dean, Doane College, before the Association of Colleges of Congregational and Christian Affiliation, Seattle, June 27, 1931.

What makes for happiness? Not great possessions or power, the outward and the material, for Joy comes from within. It is of the spirit. Here is the unfailing recipe—a faith in God and in men which results in unselfish service. There may be times when it is difficult to trust and serve. But not at this time, when we think of the Child of Bethlehem and hear the angelic chorus, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, goodwill to men." We have again the simple trust and the joyful, loving hearts of children.—Henry K. Sherrill.

IN GOD'S PRESENCE.

It was only a dream, yet so fraught with significance that it seemed real. One who had recently been called upon to give up a close relative by death, was speaking: "It must be such a shock to suddenly step into the presence of God." Another answered, "But we are always in His presence." That was all of the conversation, the dream was at an end and departed whence all dreams go.

God's presence was with Adam and Eve and when they sinned they tried to hide from Him but could not. The Psalmist says: "If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold Thou art there." So we are ever in God's presence, and to those who choose to do His will it is a blessed Presence for in it is fullness of joy; (Psalm 16:11); It shall go with us and give us rest, (Exodus 33:14); It hides from the pride of men, (Psalm 31:20); in affliction it saves, (Isaiah 63:9); It brings times of refreshing from the Lord, (Acts 3:19). It goes with us all through this earth life, e'en through the valley of the shadow of death and into the visible Presence of His glory. Yes, it is joy unspeakable and full of glory though now we see Him not, yet believing, we rejoice. (I. Peter 1:8).

A CHRISTMAS LEGEND.

Do you know why the holly has red berries?

A long time ago the trees heard a rumor that if a king should walk in their shade the first tree that should recognize him would become more beautiful than all the others. Now, it happened that outside the little town of Nazareth there grew a forest of big cedars, firs and oaks, and among them one little holly tree. One day a boy came out of the town and walked through the forest. Each of the big trees thought, "He is looking at me." But the little holly tree, as it watched him, forgot about itself. Many times the boy walked in the forest until the big trees became so accustomed to him that they gave him no attention. But the holly tree still watched him and said to itself, "Surely, if a king were to come he would not be so beautiful as this boy. He is always kind; the birds and animals are not afraid of him. I wish he were my king; I should like to obey him."

After a while the little boy no longer went to the forest. The holly tree missed him very much; but it thought about him and tried to be like him, and to do the things it believed he would want to do. It was kind to the birds and the animals. It spread its branches so that the birds could build their nests in them. It made little houses down among its roots for the small animals. The other trees thought it was not worth noticing, but it kept sweet-tempered and did not quarrel with them.

The little boy grew to be a man and traveled about the country, telling people about God and how man might please God by loving one another. But one day wicked men took him and put a robe on him such as kings wear, and made a crown of thorny twigs and placed it on his head. Then they nailed him to a cross and over his head was placed a sign which read, "The King."

A wonderful change now came to the little holly tree growing just outside of Nazareth. Among its dark green leaves little red berries began to grow until it was arrayed in a royal robe of scarlet, because, you see, it was the first of the trees to recognize the King.—From Tarbell's Teachers' Guide, 1920.

CHRISTMAS IS A PROMISE.

In a year when Christmas will be less a day for exchange of gifts among those who can well afford them and more a day, I trust, for giving to those in actual need, we may well pause and consider for what the festival really stands.

Primarily, is it not a day of promise? The world was not suddenly changed by the advent of Jesus. Rather, His principles, His point of view, His approach to life have gradually permeated society—but not so very thoroughly yet. They still offer promise, but only insofar as they are accepted and made vital by human beings.

The promise of Christmas is a promise of peace. Not simply peace among nations, important as that is, but peace among the people of each country—industrial, social, peace. The promise, however, is only to "men of good will," which means that no sort of peace is attainable without an honest interest in the welfare of others. Today, perhaps, "justice" is a clearer word than "god will." This Christmas is a time to commit ourselves to human justice in every relationship.

YOUTH LEADERS MEET AT ELON.

More than twenty young people of the Christian and Congregational church are expected to meet at Elon College during the Christmas holiday season. These young men and women will meet in the second annual leader's conference for the Southeast Convention. They will represent more than three hundred local churches, and will come from the fourteen conferences and associations of the church in the Southeast Convention.

Miss Lucy M. Eldredge, Assistant Secretary of Young People's Work of the Congregational-Christian Church, is expected to be present for this very important session of young people, who are called to represent their church. This meeting is sponsored by Youth Fellowship, the official young people's organization of the Southeast Convention. Herman Truitt, Glen Raven, N. C., is President of Youth Fellowship, and will be glad to confer with any who may wish further information about the meeting to be held December 28-30. Other officers of the organization are: Miss Lucille Mulholland, Shelby, N. C., and Mrs. Rosalie Tyndle, Southern Pines, N. C. Affiliated with these general officers are the officers of the Conference and Associated groups. It is expected that most of these officers if not all, will be present for this meeting.

Delegates to the meeting have been notified and should confer with Miss Priscilla Chase, Elon College, N. C., as to their plans for attending the conference. Any ministers or interested laymen are invited to visit sessions of the conference.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

DECEMBER 27, 1931.

SHOULD WE LEARN FROM THE EXPERIENCES OF OTHERS? WHY? HOW?

Scripture Reading: Hebrews 11:32-40; 13:1, 2.

How many mistakes do we avoid every day through profiting by the experiences of others? A child is naturally curious and constantly seeking new adventures. Some things he must learn through his own experiences, but many things have been learned for him. He need not learn that fire will burn by some painful experience. He can be saved the suffering that results from eating foods that are poisonous to the human system. Men in the field of medical science have given their lives to make discoveries that have saved the lives of thousands of their fellowmen.

The value of the experience of others is not limited to physical welfare. It extends into the moral and spiritual realms. Fortunately a young man does not have to get drunk in order to know the effects of liquor. The wrecks of humanity due to immorality of all sorts should save us from a like fate if we are willing to learn from their experience. On the other hand, our lives may be rich and abundant if we follow the experiences of those who walk in paths of noble living.

THE BIBLE IS A BOOK OF EXPERIENCES.

The Bible is the most valuable book in the world because it tells the story of the religious experiences of people seeking and discovering God and his will for humanity. Millions of lives through succeeding generations have been made happy and useful because they have learned from the experiences of these great souls of Bible times as they are recorded for us in the Book of books.

Sunday School Lesson

THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN EUROPE.

LESSON XIII.—DECEMBER 27, 1931.

SUGGESTED DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 11:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT: "The Kingdom of the world is become the Kingdom of your Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever."—Rev. 11:15.

Introduction.

A good wall map, or outline maps, showing the location of places in the various lessons of the quarter, will be of service in this review. The missionary message is a dominant factor in this series. We should be able to see the expansion of the field into Europe. It was through this stream of Christian influence that religion has come to us. Hence it was for us a doubly important decision when Paul and his helpers decided to cross into Macedonia. This launched the Christian religion in Europe. Up until this call, as far as is known, no one had carried the Christian message to the shores of Europe.

At Philippi, under very difficult conditions, a church was founded. Mistreatment and imprisonment of the missionaries did not stop their loyal faith nor kill the church. Later the members were able to aid Paul in the time of his own imprisonment at Rome. Paul taught us to rejoice, and could, himself, "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say rejoice."

EXPERIENCES MAKE GREAT PERSONALITIES.

All of us have known some outstanding personalities either through personal association or through books. What makes these people stand out above and apart from the masses? Some one will describe them as having had rich and deep experiences. That surely is the secret. It would be to our advantage to study these lives closely and discover what the experiences are that have made them great.

We shall find that some are great readers, who have feasted their minds on the literary heritage of the past. Others seek every opportunity to experience beauty in music, art, and nature. Rare souls like Jane Addams and Graham Taylor, have found their richest experiences through sharing their lives with others less fortunate than themselves.

WHAT HAS 1931 TAUGHT US?

We can see many things that 1931 has taught us. Surely, we have learned that we cannot continue to multiply the use of machinery which displaces human labor, and concentrate wealth in the hands of a few men and corporations, while thousands are thrown into unemployment and poverty, without disaster. Unless we are willing to use the highest type of intelligence, permeated with an appreciation of human rights and values, the future is dark, indeed, in this materialistic machine age.

Other topics that may be used for discussion are: "What the World War Taught Us," "Learning from Russia," and "What We May Learn from England."

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

Our Thanksgiving offerings are coming in very nicely. See to it that every member of your church and Sunday School has an opportunity to make a contribution. We want every man, woman and child in our church to give something.

We want every church to make an offering, to help these little children. It is your Christian duty to help.

Wake Chapel church was the first church to send us a truck-load of corn, peas, beans and potatoes. The good ladies sent us 8 chickens. That is fine. What church will be next to join? We need 200 bushels of wheat and corn. Make this Thanksgiving a real season for thanks and show your thankfulness to God for his goodness by helping those in need.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Retrace the events at Thessalonica and Berea, bringing out the use of the Scriptures. The golden texts are a good point of emphasis in the review of this quarter's work. Notice each golden text in its relation to the lesson.

The church at Corinth caused many difficulties to the Apostle. Its divisions and moral perversions caused him much anguish. But out of this situation came the valued Corinthian correspondence. These letters were of great value to the Corinthian church and to succeeding times. Wrestling with their problems inspired Paul to give us the matchless thirteenth and fifteenth chapters of I. Corinthians.

In the Temperance Lesson V, bring out the reality of conflict between flesh and spirit, self and others, law and freedom. Temperance consists in self-control in the adjustment of these situations of conflict. Man has always needed self-control as a governor for his action. Today, when social situations are so complex, people need temperance all the more.

The series of lessons takes us back to Ephesus in Asia Minor, where Paul's most extended efforts as a missionary were made. The work moved slowly at Ephesus but surely. This grew to be one of the most important churches of the first and second centuries.

Paul went back to Jerusalem carrying benevolent money to the mother church from his missionary churches among the Greeks and Romans. He hoped to close the breach that was widening between the Jewish and Gentile wings of the church. The great missionary was accused and made prisoner. He appealed his case and was sent to Rome. Dangers of travel and shipwreck did not dismay him. Prison chains and soldier guards did not prevent him from carrying forward the work to which he had been called as the missionary to the Gentiles. He can teach, preach, hold conferences and write letters. He wins converts and conducts a fruitful missionary work from Rome as a prisoner.

It is fitting that this series should contain two lessons from the Johannine literature. The vision of John on Patmos and the Christmas lesson from I. John. Notice the universal application of these lessons. They show the Christian religion reaching farther from its home base. The message has gone through Asia Minor and Greece, and reached Rome. It has found the Gentiles of the islands and far-away lands to be receptive to God's message of redemption. The Father of all has worked through the Saviour of all who call upon God through him. Ours is a missionary religion.

AMERICAN STANDARD BIBLES.

Authorized and Edited by American Revision Committee, and Published by Thomas Nelson & Sons.

These Bibles contain the Concise Bible Dictionary which forms the helps to these Teachers' Bibles. It supplies, in the most condensed and convenient form, all the latest information about the Bible, its writers, its language, the various versions, complete chronology, life of Christ, with harmony of the Gospels, life and travels of St. Paul, etc. The illustrations are reproduced from recent photographs, and truly illustrate the articles. The Combined Concordance is entirely new, and has been made expressly for the American Standard Version. It combines with the Concordance, Subject-Index, Scripture Proper Names, etc. The 12 Maps have been carefully revised and are beautifully colored. In making orders, give the number and price.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

PAUL'S MESSAGE TO THE ROMANS.

"If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."—Romans 10:9.

Paul is writing to the Christians at Rome setting forth the cardinal principles of the Christian faith. He foresees prophetically the conflict between spiritual and legalistic Christianity. In the first chapters He discusses "Justification by Faith" as a fundamental doctrine of Christianity. This is followed by a revelation of the fact that the ruin of humanity which had been wrought by the sinfulness of man was repaired by Jesus; and in the eighth chapter marks of a justified man through Jesus is pointed out. In the ninth to the eleventh chapters, He tells them that the doors are open to the Jews as well as to the Gentiles; that the rejection of the Jews was only temporary, but that it would last as long as their unbelief lasted. It is in this that He affirms the statement of the text which means that salvation is open to anyone that believes with all his heart, the Jew as well as the Gentile.

This text is Paul's defense against unbelief. It is the same thing which he told the Philippian jailor in his unbelief, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

This defense is followed by a practical application of salvation in chapters 12-16, in which salvation is shown to consist of renewed character, or, we might say, "Live the life" such as "Love," "Obedience" to law, freedom from the "works of darkness," and helping the weak and the poor.

Prayer—Dear Lord and Master, enable us to understand Thy word each day as we read it, and give us the spiritual vision to see clear through from life to salvation complete, which is in Thee, our Lord. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE APPROACH.

"Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people."—Luke 2:10.

The coming of Jesus into the world is the great event in history. Time is divided by it. It is the rallying point of the ages. With all this importance, however, it was not till the thirteenth century that the infant Christ and the manger came to have the place they now hold in the thought and affections of Christians, and this is said to be greatly due to the influence of Francis of Assisi.

It is long since the Shepherds discovered him and heard the voice of the Heavenly Messenger proclaiming, "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy," but the luster of that night has not passed away. It grows more brilliant with the years, until now, from all parts of the world the grand chorus resounds, filling the air with its message of joy and hope and faith and love, "Joy to the world, the Lord has come!"

Prayer—Dear Lord, prepare us to receive the message of the angels—May angels speak to us. Impel in us divine love, and help us to follow Him all the way. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE SHEPHERDS.

"The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen."—Luke 2:20.

There were many wealthy and prominent people in Palestine at this time, we are told. There were scholars of profound learning. There were even ascetic folk looking for Him and praying for the gift to see Him. But to none of these was the coming of Christ proclaimed. It came to humble shepherds. These were the men who passed their days in the silence of nature, and to the Jews this was to be close to God. They were simple, devout and reverent spirits, as most all folk are who live close to nature. It seems to have been to such as these that he was able to reveal Himself in amplest measure. And, is it not true that God has always chosen such spirits for His workers?

The Lord is manifested thus to the world. The people need Christ. They have sin, suffering, sorrow, they deeply need consolation and help. They are capable of Christ. They have the essential soul which renders them capable of Him and His gifts. Like the shepherds they may find him and rejoice, "glorifying and praising him," out of the depth of their experience.

Prayer—O Lord, give us day by day a new glory of the common scenes of Christ as they come to us in every day life. Give us new joy to fill our hearts opened to the Prince of Peace, the Saviour of the world. Amen.

THURSDAY.

THE PLACE.

"Let us now go over into Bethlehem, and see this thing that has come to pass."—Luke 2:15

It is generally supposed that these shepherds were residents of Bethlehem. Tradition, it seems, has fixed the exact spot where Jesus was born, but as to the spot where the message was received, it is said that it was "about a thousand paces from the modern village." On the other hand, the expression "in the same country" describes any circle within a radius of a few miles with Bethlehem as its center. They certainly were not in Bethlehem when they received the message, for they said, "Let us go to Bethlehem".

It is very difficult, often impossible, to fix precise localities of the sacred scenes of history. It would seem that God has wiped the most of them out, lest the world should pay them too great an homage, and lest we might think that one place is closer to heaven than another, when all places are equally distant, rather equally near. It is enough to know that somewhere in these lonely hills came the vision of the angels to the world and that we can know Christ unto our full salvation.

Prayer—Dear Lord Jesus, create a throne, a place, more and more in our hearts, where thou dost abide and will abide forever. Amen.

CHRISTMAS DAY.

FRIDAY.

THE TIME.

"For unto you is born this day . . . Christ the Lord."—Luke 2:11.

The highest meaning of the birth of Jesus is that he is God. From birth to crucifixion he was the Lord. God was revealed in him in every act and word.

It was much that there was born a Saviour—much that there was born a Messiah—much that he was man's Deliverer—much that there was born one who would turn everything into good. This was certainly good news to man. But that last word, "the Lord," crowns the wonder of the blessing, and lays the only possible foundation for the other two names.

Many try to repeat the angel's message and leave out the last word. They forget that this is the Lord. Then they wonder why there is so little joy in salvation. Let us be sure that unless the birth at Bethlehem was the incarnation of Deity, it would have called forth no angel songs, nor would it work any deliverance, or bring any joy.

It is related of a celebrated musician that, when asked to compose a National Anthem for the people of another country, he went and lived with them, studied them from within, shared their poverty, became one with them that he might become one of them, and was thus, and only thus, enabled to express their feelings in music. That is what we mean by incarnation—"God in Jesus."

Prayer—Dear Lord, we are not too often at the cross but we are too seldom at the cradle. Teach us to know more of Jesus and of Thee, more of Thy word made flesh in this Holy Child. Come Jesus live in us, God always. Amen.

SATURDAY.

THE GODLIKENESS OF MAN.

"We shall be like Him."—I. Jno. 3:2.

"Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God!" Behold what love he hath bestowed upon us that he should espouse our nature! Of all the noble things God has made, we do not know even one of them whose likeness or whose nature God has taken up nor allied himself to, as an actual person. But He does take up the nature and likeness of man; He has come into union with man. He must love man unutterably well and He must have great thoughts about him.

The fact that such an intimate union of the Divine with man, unveils the essential Godlikeness of man, and reveals that man's nature is capable of receiving Divine indwelling, that the fullness of God can dwell bodily in him. Christianity has often been accused of being gloomy. Where, in all our dreams, is there anything so radiant with hope as the fact of the Eternal Son of God dwelling within, and that he has said, "Here will I dwell, for I have desired it."

So we look upon the child Christ as born "to give the world assurance of a man," or as some one has said, "the idea of human nature." In Him is the dawn of a sun without a spot; in his life is a stream without a stain or a break in all its course. And "we shall be like Him."

Prayer—Dear Lord God, help us to look to Jesus the author and finisher of our faith, and to follow Him to where deeds are perfect loveliness, where tranquility is unbroken, where resolve finds fruition, and where words are bright and worn with pure love. Amen.

SUNDAY.

A KING POOR AND UNFAMED.

"The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head."—Luke 9:58.

Jesus was that poor from the date of His birth (which took place in a stall for cattle) to the day of His death. We are reminded by Stapford A. Brook that Jesus was as poor and as unfamed as the shepherds, yet all heaven was with Him. No trumpet flourish told of His coming, no Paul Revere rode from town to town to announce His Kingship. The world took no notice of the baby that was born in a manger. But far above where earthly glory has no praise and where earthly

REV. JOSEPH W. FIX, Preacher.

THE RADIANT CHRIST.

By DR. WILLIAM LOUIS POTEAT.

(Read Matthew 17:1-8.)

Some chapters of Christian history we could wish had never been written. One of them deals with the progressive shifting of the emphasis of Christian interest from life to logic, from conduct to opinion. One hundred and fifty years had not passed before Christianity had become a philosophy rather than a new way of living. The original aim of Jesus to make the will of God prevail in all human relations was largely lost in maze of theorizing, whose aim was to make a view of God prevail in all human minds. Standardized opinions repressed all others. The last four hundred years illustrates the same emphasis. Hence, the scientific crisis of the last century, regrettably revived in this; hence persecution for opinion's sake; hence, multiplied branches of Christianity with their debates and bitterness.

Another chapter of misfortunes traces the lapse of our religion from its simplest, most splendid most powerful, manifestation in the first century. That manifestation has been called the paradise of the regenerate, when Christianity was little more than a happy fellowship in the memory of Jesus seeking to make his dream a reality. But the gushing sweet water of Elisha's fountain falls shortly into the Dead Sea. Religion becomes a safety device for the emergency of death; restraint and resignation. Piety takes to asceticism, to be good you must be miserable.

Under the blight of this interpretation even the figure of Jesus grows somber and apologetic before the bright robustness of life. The original spontaneity and radiance of life. The original and inspired are obscured, if not lost. His authoritative interpreters would seem to have been old men, for something like the frost of age lies now on the high points of our religion. It has put consolation in the place where challenge originally stood, duty in the place of passion, precedent for freedom, repression for the spontaneous gushing of a living fountain, a stern and somber gravity for the note of joy with which the story of the good news opens and the note of triumph with which it closes.

We have but to read the Gospels afresh without prepossessions, with open and alert minds, to discover the dew of youth on all their bright pages and the radiance of the morning investing Christ's person and glowing in all his teaching. If we can see Him as He is, He will win us, young and old, learned and unlearned. But there is a mesh of circumstance to break through, a mist of metaphysics to penetrate before we can reach the historic Jesus. Once in His gracious presence, He will transform us into His likeness, win us anew to a boundless affection, and attach us to His purpose to redeem the world.

Did He not Himself say, "When I am lifted up from the earth I will draw all men to Myself?" Let me lift Him up before you. Though never so poorly, I would fain play the role of John, who, as he stood with two of his disciples, gazed at Jesus as He walked about, and said, "Look, there is the Lamb of God." The two disciples heard what John said and went after Jesus. Permit me to present Him to you, The Radiant Christ.

The Master has the radiance of youth. The first thing you notice about Him is that He is young. One of His biographers says that at the outset of His public career He was about thirty years of age.

In the solitudes where volcanic mountains guarded the communion of earth and heaven He had accepted the Divine appointment, had settled His aim and policy, and emerged like Moses from Sinai with His inward exhilaration breaking in light through all His person, so that John recognized Him by the heavenly radiance which settled upon Him. It never left Him. See Him rise out of the Jordan Valley to the hills of Galilee with the chrism of a high commitment still fresh upon Him, with a new enthusiasm shining in His face, electrifying His movement, glorifying His word from synagogue to synagogue.

And the announcement He made with the boldness and dash of youth. "The reign of heaven is near." How it rang all the bells of joy for all time round the world! With the boundless energy of young manhood, with superlative powers unjaded and under full command, with a heroism which foresaw all, He adventured all up to the gates of death, through the gates of death, to win us to Himself. Hear His own appraisal of His brilliant career. In His last recorded prayer He tells the Father, "I have glorified Thee by accomplishing the task set Me to impart eternal life. I have made Thy name known. I have conquered the world." He has no regret. He feels no disappointment. Here is no tragic defeat. This is triumph. And then He says, "Glorify Me." He does pray, "Destroy My enemies, gather My friends, find Me instantly a throne, set Me on it in splendor." Nay, the Cross is in His mind, palpably before Him, and He prays, "Make the Cross glorious. On it I win the world. From it I come to Thee." And the Young Man of Nazareth was never more radiant than then.

The Master has the radiance of joy. You will remind me of the contrary opinion authoritative and widely current, illustrated by the poets and artists of the world. That is precisely the impression which I wish to correct. But you will quote me the ancient prophet's description, "Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." I answer, the man of sorrows may be the man of joy. The fountain of tears and the fountain of joy are close together, and their waters often mingle. The eye that weeps, smiles. A great nature has great emotions, is capable of the deepest grief and the highest happiness. The face of the bloody agony in Gethsemane was the face that shone in rapture on Mt. Tabor.

But go to the record. The story of the good news opens with four songs. And why not? The first note of joy is struck in Mary's Magnificat, the second in the song of Zacharias, who pictures the new era as the opening of the gates of day on a dark world. Then follows the angel chorus at Bethlehem of glory and peace, and then Simeon, his patience at length amply requited, sings of the light of the Gentiles and the glory of Israel on the threshold of his career.

It is Jesus who awakens this chord of joy, and it vibrates throughout His life. The first word of the sermon on the Mount is makarioi, blessed, and nine distinct times joy is piled on unexpected joy for the sons of the Kingdom, as though the constitution of the new realm were laid on a foundation nine layers deep in joy. When critics complained that He omitted one of the standard expressions of the religious life, fasting, He replied that He was too happy in His friends and in His work to fast: He and His friends were like a bridal party. When critics wondered at His association with sinners, He said that rescuing lost men was a joy to make angels sing. This partnership with the Father to do His will is better than food and drink. This self-expenditure (Continued on page 15.)

It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength.

One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.

The size, 2½x4¼ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest

Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

pop-corn, chickens. It will be some time before we shall have to buy any more groceries. Words are inadequate to express our feeling of gratitude and appreciation for all these good things.

The most enjoyable thing about a pounding after all is not simply the eating, but the feeling of love and friendship which prompted the gifts. We are very thankful to these loyal, consecrated, Christian people for this concrete manifestation of their love and esteem. May the loving, Heavenly Father, who is rich in mercy, bless these good people, that they may be the richer because of their generosity.

power has no dignity, heavenly hosts were celebrating. All the courts of heaven praised God for the child for whom there was to be no shelter on earth. Have we joined our hearts and voices to that chorus?

"What means that star," the shepherds said,
"That brightens through the rocky glen?"
And angels answering overhead,
Sang, "Peace on Earth, Good-will to Men!"

So shall we learn to understand,
The simple faith of shepherds then,
And clasping kindly hand in hand,
Sing, "Peace on Earth, Good-will to Men!"

And they who do their souls no wrong,
But keep at eve the faith of morn,
Shall daily hear the angel-song,
"Today the Prince of Peace is born!"

ture for others is the pearl of great price worth everything else. Moreover, He had an invincible assurance of His ultimate triumph. No neglect, no stupidity, no organized hostility, cooled down His enthusiasm or terrorized His spirit. From out the shadow of Calvary He cries, "Be of good cheer. I have overcome the world."

Now, it is clear that Christ's mastery of untoward circumstances, His imperturbable peace and joy, of which He specifically speaks in His parting address, were native, inward. He was at peace with Himself. There was no conflict between His ideals and His habits. He made no compromise of His higher nature by pursuing doubtful courses. He never straddled or dallied. There was no moral lapse to plant thorns in His pillow, no cancer of a concealed disgrace to undermine His self-respect. With his own and the Father's approval, with unclouded faith in His enterprise of redemption, and passionate devotion to it, no one on our planet has even been so happy as Jesus.

And He radiated joy. He was not a planet, but a star. He was self-luminous. And His radiant joy kindled joy in others. "Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord." So it is today. When He comes out of the distance at which some of our teachers have set Him, when He walks forward out of the dimness and gloom, and we see Him as He is, we too shall be glad and own Him as the joy and inspiration of our life.

The Master has the radiance of godness. Roman law found no fault in Him. The enemies of His own nation who compassed His death preferred charges which were in reality badges of distinction. Keen-eyed criticism of the after years leaves His moral greatness without fleck or flaw. John Stuart Mill, who was not a Christian, declared that it would not be easy, even for an unbeliever, to find a better translation of the rule of virtue from the abstract into the concrete than to endeavor so to live that Christ would approve our life. In the same breath in which he says he is no more a Christian than Pilate was, Bernard Shaw admits that he can see no way out of the world's misery but the way of Christ's will.

Turn reverently the fair pages of Christ's own consciousness. You will read these two transcendent things—an intimate fellowship with the Father in which the two are one, and an unwavering sense of integrity and noble aim. Hear His challenge, "Which of you can convict Me of sin?" Show the lapse, if you can. Point out the flaw, the moment's infidelity, the taint of self-seeking or of pride. When did the nerve of devotion to my cause relax or the eye blanch before any threat of pain or peril? Oh, it is great to be young, to master circumstances by an inward peace, to have the gift of genius so charged that every contact flashes and the fit and final word leaps inevitably to the occasion. But, believe me, the top facet of this jeweled radiance is goodness. He is true because He is good. He is beautiful because He is good. He is Saviour because He is good. He is Master of men and times because He is good.—Christian Herald.

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

NEW TERM OPENS JANUARY 25th, and any student may begin the college work at that time.

DANIEL.

George Washington Daniel, son of Samuel and Lucy J. Daniel, was born July 17, 1857, and died at his home, Buffalo Junction, Va., November 19, 1931. Age 74 years, 4 months and 2 days.

In 1879 he was married to Martha J. Neal. To them were born five children as follows: Mrs. Bobbie Blanks (deceased), Mrs. J. M. Fuller of Buffalo Junction, J. Washington Daniel of Richmond, Va., J. H. Daniel of Portsmouth, Va., and W. Samuel Daniel of Nelson, Va. His companion died on April 17, 1921. Besides the children there are surviving fifteen grand-children and eight great grand-children.

Brother Daniel joined Hebron Christian Church about the year 1889, and remained a member till death. He was a man of a friendly disposition and gathered about him a great number of close friends.

Brother Daniel was an honest man, and a good citizen. He was devoted to his children and they to him.

The funeral was at his home, Buffalo

Junction, Va., conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Lee of the Baptist Church. The burial was in the Daniel cemetery at the childhood home of the deceased. The attendance was large, the floral offerings many and beautiful.

The Sun Wishes You A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year

Christmas Day

FREDERICK W. NEVE.

*The day returns again, the greatest day
The earth has seen upon her pilgrim way,
But still no single moment did she stay.*

*The world moves on with its affairs intent
And little thought of what this day has meant,
Or that Christ from the heavens came and went.*

*But still His thought is knit to His desire,
Nor is there any quenching of the fire,
Nor ever from His quest will He retire.*

*What is the day to Him as year by year
He sees the Day of Destiny draw near
When men shall be delivered from all fear;*

*When Love shall, like the sun, bless all the earth
And give to all mankind a second birth,
And yield to life its highest, noblest worth?*

*He waits serene till we awake and see
His vision of the earth as it would be,
If He could always count on you and me.*

—In Southern Churchman.

NOTES-PERSONALS

A very happy Christmas to all.

"It is more blessed to give than to receive." [This is proven by the fact that we frequently forget what people give us, but we never forget what we give others.]

There will be no CHRISTIAN SUN next week. This follows a long standing and quite universal custom of religious papers, thus giving their employees an opportunity of joining with the rest of the world in celebrating Christmas.

We learn with regret of the death of Mrs. W. C. Kirkpatrick, of Swepsonville, N. C., niece of Dr. W. W. Staley. Dr. Staley left Suffolk on December 9th, to attend the funeral, which was held the next day.

Rev. W. D. Harward, D.D., has sometime since changed his address from Windsor to Dendron, Va. Brother Harward is now in charge of the Dendron pastorate, in which, however, he is no stranger, as he served here some years ago.

Dr. F. G. Coffin, Columbus, Ohio, joins his good wife in saying to friends: "Christmas comes again to glorify common life and lift it into the realm of the hallowed. It bridges social separations in humanity, releases the world's frozen assets of kindness, stirs men to tender remembrance of their fellows, and spreads the spirit of Him whose birth it celebrates throughout the world. It is in this spirit that we wish your Christmas to be Merry."

Dr. L. E. Smith, after three weeks of exceedingly active service as president of Elon College, returned to his home to spend the holidays with his family at Norfolk, Va. Wherever Dr. Smith has gone in these three weeks, he has carried the message of Elon's needs and possibilities, and he is deeply impressed with the expressions of loyalty to the College, and the willingness to co-operate with him as president in undertaking the great task to which he has been called.

Rev. F. C. Lester has certainly done a most unselfish and notable work in the churches of Eastern Virginia during December in behalf of Elon College. Dr. C. H. Rowland is doing a similar work in the North Carolina and Virginia Conference, Dr. W. C. Wicker in the Eastern North Carolina Conference, and Rev. T. J. Green in the Western Conference. These men are giving freely of their time and effort in the movement to give every man, woman and child in their Conference an opportunity of expressing appreciation and loyalty and love for our Elon College, which now appeals to the deepest sense of love and loyalty of our people.

How is this for a longing to serve and also a word of cheer to the rest of us? "It seems to me that I do so little. I am now eighty-five years old and still lame from my broken hip, so that I am confined most of the time to my room. Yet I am hopeful and thankful. I can write pastors and other leaders as to our Purity work, and send out some of the Graded Purity Booklets. More souls are lost because of lust than because of rum." It is Rev. Albert Godley, Superintendent, World-Wide Purity Legion, writing from his sick-bed at Tenaflly, N. J. And then he adds: "I am much interested in Elon College and was impressed to write a brief article for THE SUN, which I hand you herewith. May God give great success to Dr. Smith and to the College. I believe He will do so, and I thank Him, the Giver of all blessings."

We are just closing the lessons for the past year taken from the Gospel of Luke, the Acts, the Epistles, and the Revelation. The first quarter of the New Year, 1932, studies the Gospel of John, the beloved disciple; the second quarter studies the book of Genesis; the third quarter studies the Era of Moses, and the fourth quarter crowns the year's work by a study of lessons on "Christian Standards of Life." Peloubet's Notes, postpaid, $2.00; Tarbell's Teachers' Guide, $2.00; Snowden's Sunday School Lessons, $1.35. Send orders to THE CHRISTIAN SUN, 1536 East Broad Street, Richmond, Va.

IT WILL BE EASY BY GOD'S PLAN.

$50,000 for Elon College by January 15th. It can be done, and more. "The tithe is the Lord's."

Just when God first asked it we do not know, but Abraham gave the tithe to Melchisedeck, B. C. about 1913. Israel practiced it, but seemed to have neglected it in the main, so that B. C. 397, Malachi told of their robbing God.

He promised much for them if they would "bring all the tithes into the store house."

Jesus commended the Pharisees, who tithed even the garden vegetables: "This ought you to have done but not to leave other things undone," said Jesus.

Churches that practice it prosper. They who do not, languish. All true pastors should practice and preach it, setting a right example.

Too few do so. In some churches, excepting a few spiritual members, not $2 out of a hundred is given. Keep urging tithing and $100,000 will come to Elon this year.

I have great faith in the new president. God bless him and the College greatly.

ALBERT GODLEY.

CULLED FROM MY LETTERS.

Dear Dr. Smith:

Although not a member of your denomination, I occasionally see a copy of THE CHRISTIAN SUN. In last week's issue I noted with much interest a very striking appeal entitled, "Will Our Laymen Follow?", which I interpreted to mean that they should come to the assistance of the College in this the darkest hour of her existence.

I was so impressed with this sketch that I deem it not only a pleasure but a privilege to send you herewith a small contribution. If the required amount is not eventually secured, it may be that I will be able to send you a little more later on.

Some years ago I had the pleasure of teaching with your Dr. Kernodle in the Collegiate Institute at Suffolk, which brought me into more or less intimate contact with your church and that I have not forgotten.

Dear Dr. Smith:

"Not what we give, but what we share,
For the gift without the giver is bare,
He who gives himself with his alms feeds three:
Himself, his hungering neighbor and Me."

I am breaking my almost iron-clad rule of spending before I earn. I have gone to the bank and borrowed this small sum in order that I may give at this time when it is needed and will help. Pledges are a fine thing in W. C. T. U., and a parole is often helpful to the recipient. But it seems to me this is no time to parole our obligations with pledges.

Good-will is a capital asset in any business, notably in a college. But a sustained morale means money. Hence this small donation to help yours—even at the expense of mine when the bills come in. It's a pleasure to send it.

If, at any time, I can be of service to you and the College, you know it will be my pleasure.

Dear Dr. Smith:

I want to assure you of my deep interest in the work and only wish that it were possible for me to do more in a financial way. If I only could I would make my donation hundreds where it can only be dollars.

THREE-S CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION.

Representatives from the Christian Endeavor Societies of Surry and Sussex Counties and Salem Church of Prince George, met at Dendron on August 23, 1931, to consider organizing a Christian Endeavor Union. It was decided best to have a public meeting at Dendron, on Sunday night, August 30, 1931.

The public meeting at Dendron was well attended by the members of the societies in the proposed Union, and many visitors. Mr. C. E. Barfield, of Newport News, ex-president of the State C. E. Convention, and Miss Atwood Graves, of Norfolk, president of the Tidewater District, gave short talks. The constitution drawn up by a previously appointed committee was adopted by the Union.

The first business meeting of the Three-S Christian Endeavor Union was held in Claremont Methodist Church on October 11, 1931. Each society in the Union was represented. It was passed at this meeting that we have a Fellowship Supper at Waverly on December 4th.

Every fifth Sunday afternoon was set aside in the Constitution as a regular mass meeting time for the Union. The first of these was observed on November 29th. The meeting was led by Miss Elizabeth Sharpe, of Waverly, president of the Union. An installation service for officers of the Union was conducted by Rev. C. E. Gerringer, of Wakefield. The banner was presented by Rev. G. E. Wunder, of Claremont, to the Oak Grove Society for having the largest number present, which was 30.

On December 4th, about seventy-five members and visitors of the Christian Endeavor Union came together for a get-acquainted-period at the Fellowship Supper in the auditorium and parlor of the Waverly Christian Church. Miss Elizabeth Sharpe acted as hostess and gave every one a warm welcome. Upon entering the auditorium we beheld a most beautiful sight. The decorations carried out the Christmas idea, even the stockings by the fireside were hung. Pep songs and yells, led by Mrs. Garland Spratley, were enjoyed by every one, these also pepped up our appetite for the delicious food served. Rev. C. E. Gerringer acted as toastmaster. Short talks were made by Rev. G. E. Wunder, Pastoral Counsellor of the Union, Mr. B. E. White, and Rev. F. C. Lester, of Waverly. Special music was furnished by the Salem, Dendron, and Waverly societies. Music was also furnished by a Waverly orchestra. After the supper a play-time hour was conducted by Mrs. Garland Spratley, this was the real get-acquainted-period of the evening.

The object of this Union is to increase the number of Christian Endeavor Societies in this territory, develop the mutual acquaintance of their members, to introduce the best methods of work, to serve the churches in appropriate ways and thus to make the Endeavorers more useful in the service of Christ.

We feel that this object is really being accomplished.
CATHERINE BARRETT, Sec'y.

CONGREGATIONAL NEWS

REV. E. C. GILLETTE, Editor; REV. F. P. ENSMINGER, and REV. M. J. SWEET, Associates.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS. The editors of this page extend to the readers of this paper their sincere good wishes for the Christmas season. May the Christmas joy this year be deeper, more vital and more enduring than ever. May we realize more than ever the real meaning of Christmas to the world, and may we have a greater passion for sharing that gift which the world so deeply needs today.

MISS PATTIE LEE COGHILL has had the pleasure of entertaining her mother, Mrs. S. F. Coghill, of Henderson, N. C., for a week's visit to Florida, visiting Jacksonville, Miami, Palm Beach, Lake Worth, and other interesting points.

THE NIAGARA, N. C., church has been supplied by Mr. Jefferson Canoy, of Country Life Academy. This is a small church with many people in the neighborhood, who enjoyed these services. Many winter visitors come here each winter, whose help in the church work is appreciated.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION of the Orlando District in Florida, recently met in Sanford and was largely attended. The Winter Park Congregational Society was awarded the banner for the largest attendance having twenty-two members present, and also the banner for having registered the largest percentage of its members. Walter Ward, of that society, was elected vice-president for the district for the coming year. Dr. Karl Lehman, well known in the Christian Endeavor world, and now a resident of Sanford, gave an address on "What Christian Endeavor Stands For."

THORSBY INSTITUTE.

The four officers of last year's Senior Class entered Piedmont College this year and are enjoying the college very much. One of these is especially helpful in musical lines as she is very talented. Besides these, there are four other graduates of Thorsby Institute who are attending Piedmont. One is a Senior, two are Juniors and one is a Sophomore.

An operetta, "Christian of Greenland," was given on November 14th, under the direction of Miss Jennie May Thoroman, head of the Music Department. A large audience was hearty in its appreciation of the operetta.

Thorsby Institute has an enrollment of 90 this year, of whom 57 are girls and 33 are boys.

Recently the school was very much pleased to have as a visitor Miss Helen Dizney, of China. She gave some very interesting talks.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION RALLY.

Following the ordination at Whitehall, Miss Annie Campbell conducted a Christian Education Rally of the South Georgia Congregational and Christian Churches. Worship service was conducted by Union Hill C. E. Society. Brief talks were given by several from the audience. State Conference Echoes were given by the registrar, Rev. M. J. Sweet. Rev. Alan Jones conducted an open forum in which many participated, the general subject being the question as to whether or not the Whitehall church building should be moved to the new highway several blocks away. The decision was in favor, if the money with which to make the move was available.

And then the young people of Whitehall gave a pageant, with credit, representing the medical missions in India.

Regarding the moving of this church, from standpoints it is a forward-looking movement. One man offers a large piece of land free. Members and friends of the church offer free labor. The ladies are working hard in many ways to secure as large a fund as possible for the purpose. At the present time plans are being made, estimates of cost are being secured, and pledges taken. It is not yet certain that the program will meet with financial strength sufficient to warrant the moving of the old building; but it is certain that now is the time to move, if ever.

THE ORDINATION OF ALAN JONES.

The ordination of Alan Jones at the Whitehall church Sunday, November 29th, was a great event in the South Georgia Association of Congregational and Christian Churches.

Mr. Jones comes from years of college and seminary preparation and a year in Germany at the University of Halle to a group of four churches entirely from choice. He rejoices in the conviction that his greatest service for the next five years will be right here among the kind of people he loves and for whom he is ready to give himself fully and completely.

The ordaining sermon was preached by a minister of the Christian church, Rev. W. C. Carpenter, pastor of three Christian, and one Congregational, churches. This is the first time in this Association such a thing has occurred. And the sermon struck a high note of consecrated appeal on the text: "Thou hast come to the kingdom for such a time as this."

At the close Rev. G. N. Smith, the minister who was active in the organization of this group of churches, Whitehall, Antioch, Union Hill and Friendship, and who, for over forty years, has been acting pastor of one or more of them all through the years gave a charge which touched the hearts of all in a peculiar way. It was not unlike an Elijah giving place to an Elisha.

The State Conference had appointed Rev. M. J. Sweet as chairman of this ordaining service, and he acted as Moderator of the meeting. Miss Annie Campbell had been appointed Scribe and read the minutes of the State Conference relating to this service. Rev. J. Millard Deen, former pastor of the Whitehall church, offered the invocation. After a brief word by the new pastor, Rev. Alan T. Jones, and the singing of the hymn, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," the benediction was pronounced, and greetings by the people were given to Mr. Jones.

Following the ordination service the people of the church served a bountiful dinner which was greatly appreciated. Whitehall had done itself proud in serving as a host to this body of church people.

THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

The first Christian Life Conference for the young people of East Alabama was held in November at Southern Union College, Wadley. Sixty delegates, representing the Christian and Congregational Churches of Roanoke, Lowell, Antioch, Pleasant Grove, Noon Day and Wesley Chapel, were present. The entire conference was characterized by a hearty spirit of cooperation and such enthusiasm as is seldom manifested anywhere.

The opening event, a general social held in the college auditorium, served to set all spirits right. A series of lively games conducted by Albert Appleby, music rendered by the College Glee Club, and stunts given by various groups made the evening a jolly get-together. The first and second teams of the college played a basketball game as the closing feature of the evening's entertainment.

Saturday's program was opened by devotions conducted by the New Home delegates, after which a short business session was held under the direction of Mr. Klein Hood, conference chairman. Dr. F. P. Ensminger, field worker for the Congregational and Christian churches, led a discussion on the topic, "How Can a Better Understanding Between the Young People and the Older People of the Church be Brought About?" Dr. Charles A. Mohr, of the college faculty, gave an able address on "Awakening Youth."

The entire conference drove at the noon hour to Carlton's pasture, where a picnic lunch was served. Stunts and games followed. In the afternoon the devotional service was conducted by Pleasant Grove delegates. Rev. E. H. Sperow, of the college faculty, discussed the religion of the younger generation in comparison with that of the young people of former generations. After this discussion the group repaired to the steps of the dormitory facing the sunset and joined in a beautiful vesper service led by the Roanoke delegates.

A very enjoyable banquet was served Saturday night in the auditorium of the college. Miss Marguerite Davison was toastmaster, assisted by Messrs. Milton White and Prentiss Thomas. The Glee Club added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion with various numbers and special features. A closing message was brought by Rev. Jesse Dollar, of LaGrange, Georgia, a former teacher at the college.

Despite the cold wind of Sunday morning, a large crowd assembled in Wadley Park at 6:00 o'clock, for a sunrise worship service conducted by the Antioch group, followed by a camp fire breakfast.

The Sunday services were held in the Christian Church of Wadley. The chief feature of the Sunday School was an address by Mr. W. C. Edge, who brought out the importance of Sunday School work. Roanoke and Antioch groups conducted a missionary worship service which was most effective. In the class period the young people discussed the young peoples' program in the church. The morning worship service was conducted by Mr. Milton White and the Wadley College young people. Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, President of Southern Union College, delivered a most inspiring sermon to the young people.

After a picnic dinner, served by the members of the church, an afternoon session was held. Five-minute talks were given by Dr. F. P. Ensminger and Rev. C. W. Carter. In the business session the minutes of the conference were read, discussion reports heard, and general business transacted. It was decided by the group to make an earnest attempt to hold a Summer Training School at Southern Union College in 1932, and to repeat the week-end conference. Mr. Klein Hood was re-elected chairman of the conference, and Miss Nina Kitchens was elected secretary. The award for the finest spirit was given to the group from Roanoke church. A short consecration service completed this most profitable and enjoyable conference.

Many thanks are due the officers of the conference, the people of Wadley who entertained the young delegates, and the members and faculty of Southern Union College, who worked so loyally to make this week end profitable to all.

PRINCIPLES OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

(1) The Lord Jesus Christ is the only Head of the Church.

(2) Christian is a sufficient name for the Church.

(3) The Holy Bible is a sufficient rule of faith and practice.

(4) Christian character is a sufficient test of fellowship and of Church membership.

(5) The right of private judgment and the liberty of conscience is a right and a privilege that should be accorded to, and exercised by, all.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The purpose of this Church is to cultivate a spirit of union among the followers of our Lord Jesus Christ of every persuasion, and to secure, if possible, the associate efforts of all true religious teachers in pointing the wicked to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The peculiar doctrines and tenets which have confused and distracted the Christian world are remanded to private judgment, and hence cease to be matters for debate, only in so far as may be necessary to prevent a sectarian influence from entering the Church.

This Church requires no compromise of faith on the part of any child of God in order to communion or fellowship; here, denominational distinctions cease to exist, and Christian love binds the brotherhood together.

The purpose of this Church will be consummated in the conversion of the world and the union of all Christians.

GOOD TIDINGS.

(Luke 2:1-14.)

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Cæsar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

(And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David);

To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

CHRISTMAS.

There isn't anything new in word or in thought about Christmas. Through the years we have been saying and thinking the best and highest about the season and the event. There is something new, however, and that is experience. The experience of the day and the season is ever new. This Christmas will bring novel experiences, full and fresh delights; and the joy of the day will be as fresh and fragrant as love and life. This is a holiday that childhood created, and childhood continues to give. The first thought in the mind on Christmas is the childhood of the world. Either the memories of our own childhood will come back to us on Christmas Day, and these will refresh and enliven us, or the children about us, our own, or our grandchildren, or the children of our neighbors, will cheer us with their presence, and gladden us with their laughter. It is a child's season. "A little child shall lead them." The birth of a child was the beginning of Christmas, and childhood has had its way in putting on the program of Christmas. This is why Christmas surpasses all other holidays and festive occasions. A Child gave it to us, and children make it sweet and joyous and happy for us. Our words and thoughts of Christmas are old; our experiences of Christmas are ever and always new.

For one day the manhood and womanhood of the world will lay aside their problems, their burdens, their trials and will become as little children, ready to rejoice and willing to share. We shall send our gifts to help the needy; we shall remember those in poorer circumstances about us than ourselves, and our utmost thought will be of others—"Giving to others," a token of our esteem, a symbol of our friendship and our love. We shall be glad because we have given. This is the season in which all of us seek to share what we have and what we are with others. Possibly, out of our need, even from our want, we will deny ourselves and send a love gift, the emblem of sweet friendship, to others. This is an experience that never grows old.

All ages and all classes come together at Christmas time. The served and the serving, the employer and the employee, the white, the black and the yellow, will have a good word and a token of esteem, favor and friendship for each other. Old age and youth, strength and weakness, health and sickness will express their interest in, and good wish for each other, and for a day the world will smile and will be glad. The child has brought this to pass, and it is, indeed, wonderful to contemplate, more wonderful to experience, and so in this season we get foregleams of a time to come, a taste of that which is to be. Friendship and not force, love and not compulsion, will rule and reign in the hearts of men, and the glad Christmas season, intensified and made perfect, shall be the season extending through the years and through all eternity. To that end and to that day the Christ Child is bringing us.

J. O. A.

THE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS.

We pass through the Christmas season with its merriment and its joy without contemplating its meaning. Bishop Anderson has declared that "the meaning of Christmas is that the greatest fact in the world is God—that He is good, not bad; that he is benevolent, not malevolent; that He is love, not hate; that He so loved the world that He gave, and since God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." A principle, not a theory; a life, not a law, gave us Christmas, and fills the season with its meaning. What a wretched world this would be without love; what a cold, frivolous thing life would be without friendship. Christmas means making an inventory of our love, counting our blessings in the way of our friendships. After the season is over, we will make an inventory of our goods, possessions, things. During Christmas we shall put on display that which our hearts feel, that which our lives rejoice in. The reason why Christmas means so much to us is because it reveals, life, manifests love, demonstrates friendship. At this time our gifts of glad words; smiles, hearty handshakes, or some object purchased with a few paltry dollars, will season and seal the bonds of our friendship and will tell to our loved ones that we love them. Have we so lived the past year as to win a friend? We will think of that friend this day, and our love will go a little deeper and our hearts will beat a little quicker because of that friendship. Have we enlarged the circle of our friends? Have we put others within the circle of our love and devotion during the year? We shall rejoice in them and be glad because of them, take stock of them and think of them now. This is the meaning of Christmas. It is life's celebration of love.

As we celebrate this season of love, rejoice in this time of manifested friendship, we will be grateful to Him Who is the Giver of every good and Who is Himself the very incarnation of love. In giving gifts we shall remember that there is one gift worthy of Him Who gave His best for us, and this gift can be given by rich and poor alike; the gift of our hearts to Him. As we give help to the needy and show our love for those about us, we acknowledge our allegiance to Him Who gave us His Blessed Son as a Babe in Bethlehem, and thus began the first Christmas Day. The meaning of Christmas is the message and meaning of love.

THESE TIMES.

We are members one of another, and if one member suffer, all members suffer with it. So wrote the Apostle, and so these times declare. Time was when an honest business, wisely conducted, helped all and hurt none. That may not be true today. Some as honest men as ever lived, conducting business according to the highest moral standards, and according to the best business wisdom may now fail and bring hardships to hundreds and suffering to thousands. Time was when a merchant who failed in business failed because he was too lenient with his customers, too indulgent with those about him, had a heart bigger than his head, or failed because he was dishonest and was overtaken in his double dealing. Such is not the case today. The honest business man of your acquaintance, the wisest business head, the safest business hand, may lead you, and a wide circle of other innocent citizens into suffering and need over night. Time was when a bank failure, for instance, meant robbery, poor banking methods, indulgent loans, misappropriation of funds, short-sighted investments. Such is not the case today. Some banks manned by as honest hearts, and as wise heads, as can be found in the nation, may go to pieces over night, or in an hour, and hurt an entire community. Banking institutions flourishing this hour with millions of money piled up in their vaults, owing not a debt that they could not pay on demand, with every item of bookkeeping and dealing, straight and square, may go down in the crash and without warning. Time was when lack of business destroyed institutions. In these times, the most thrifty business may go to pieces in an hour to the regret and to the hurt of a community. Surely these times are teaching us, at any rate, that if one member suffer, all members suffer with it. That which seems to be the wisest of investments today, may turn out tomorrow to be foolish and unsafe. That which is today the soundest and seemingly the safest institution, whether it be merchandise, manufacturing, banking, or what-not, may turn out tomorrow to be failure, and that not by any fault of those in charge, but by depreciation of values no one could foresee, and the slump in prices of commodities that no one could foretell and over which no one seems to have control. We are, at least, learning that society is a unit, that things are transient and that possessions and prosperity may pass in an hour from the strongest hand and the mightiest mind. Our world, in these times, is learning that it cannot put its trust in possessions. "That which is visible passeth away; that which is invisible abides." J. O. A.

THE ELON CANVASS.

The campaign to raise $50,000.00 for Elon College in her present emergency is worthy and well spoken of. The news comes from pastors and people throughout the Convention that they are willing to do their best, and will do so. The campaign has not gone far enough to tell what the outcome will be, but some have begun to send in their contributions and others their pledges. Dr. Smith says if all will give as they have expressed their willingness, the results will be all that can be desired. Not a pastor appealed to has declined his services, and many are giving their time gladly and gratuitously in urging their people to help. All of us realize that the future of Elon hangs in the balance. It can be saved and must be. We cannot excuse ourselves by saying "times are hard." Neither can we excuse ourselves by allowing the other one to do our giving for us. Excuses now will not pay bills, meet the requirements of creditors nor pay the salaries of those who have worked on faith and promise. If any reader of this should have a dime or a dollar that can be spared, send it on to help save Elon College. We cannot wait for time to get better; we cannot wait for others to do our giving for us. We must sacrifice together, if we are to save, and share together, this greatest of our Church assets. Let every one who can possibly spare $100.00 or $1.00 send it to the Treasurer of this Special Fund, C. D. Johnston, Elon College, N. C. It is needed now and will serve a most noble purpose. J. O. A.

The papers report a recent robbery on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho. Jesus' story is reproduced in every feature except the ministry of the Good Samaritan.

A Day of Giving.

Today is Christmas Eve. When you read this message Christmas Day may have come and gone. Was it a merry Christmas? It may not have been in the usual sense of the word, for depression stalks in the world and in our land. The world is facing a crisis such as it has not faced for years. But it may well have been a Happy Christmas, for God's people cannot be otherwise than happy on that blessed day.

Christmas Day is a day of giving: "Unto us a Child is born; unto us a Son is given"—God's Christmas Gift to the world. Christmas Day is indeed a day of giving, for on that day God, who loved the world, "Gave His only begotten Son." And on that day, in His memory, we give gifts to those we love.

The writer was talking to a salesman who was in his office recently, and the topic turned upon pleasures and their cost, then toward Christmas and giving. In the course of the conversation, my friend had this to say:

"I was coming out of a store, arms loaded with toys for my boy, when I saw a 'newsie' standing just outside the door. He asked me to buy a paper, and I stopped to talk to him, and found that he had at home a brother just a year younger than my boy. I asked what Santa was going to bring them for Christmas, and was told that Santa might come that year. On Christmas morning, I went to his home and carried with me a 'kiddiekar' that my boy had outgrown. You should have seen the joy in the little brother's face when he found it was his own. Other things that happened last Christmas have faded from my memory, but the joy of making this little child happy has been with me all the year."

The joy of Christmas comes in the giving. The greater the giver's sacrifice, the greater the need for the gift—the greater the ultimate joy in his giving.

Will you not, at this Christmas time, when Elon needs your gifts, sacrifice, if need be, that Elon may continue to live and to grow?—that Elon may, in turn, give gifts to our Ministers, our Laymen, her Alumni? Will you not share in the joy of helping Elon bring closer the Kingdom of Him who was the first of all Christmas Gifts?

SUFFOLK LETTER.

Rev. H. S. Hardcastle and family—wife and two children—left Suffolk the last of July for St. Albans, Vermont, to spend August on a vacation. Brother Hardcastle was not well when they left Suffolk, stopped in Dover, Dela., with his parents on the way, and went to the hospital as soon as they arrived in St. Albans. He remained in the hospital for more than four months and then returned to his father's home in Dover, where they have remained until the present. His family has kept well and been in close touch with him all the time. He had a slow fever that was followed by heavy night sweats that weakened him very much. He has regained loss of weight and strength up to the point that he plans to return to Suffolk with his family and be in his home on Christmas Day; and we sincerely hope he will be able to come.

Five months is a long time for a pastor to be absent from his pulpit and his flock; but I have occupied the pulpit and visited the sick, during his absence. Many, many questions have been asked by the people of the city, as well as our own congregation, as to how he was "getting on." These questions have been answered as well as information would enable one to answer. Now that they hope to be in their home on Christmas Day a new and grateful feeling has come into the heart of Suffolk; and the congregation will give them a welcome beyond any welcome they have ever received; and, no doubt the appreciation on their part will meet the welcome halfway.

Sickness is bad for any one, but it seems worse for a pastor who loves his work. But they say that "experience is the best teacher," and a hospital may be as good a school as a seminary. Education is not all received in colleges and seminaries, for a sick room is a school, life is a school, and the lessons learned in these schools are less intellectual, mathematical, historic and philosophic lessons; they are lessons that touch the heart, awaken sympathy and prepare, for more useful service. In fact, man never knows his friends in the true sense, until he passes through affliction. It is suffering that binds human hearts together and reveals who are our friends. It was the cross that brought Jesus Christ, as the Saviour of mankind, in close touch with mankind. Had there been no cross there had been no Christian ministry. The resurrection was the victory over death for Jesus and His victory is the foundation of human faith and human hope. "Tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope." Rom. 5:3-4. Many people, who complain all the time would be benefitted if they could visit others who are really sick or in real want. They would return to their homes almost forgetting their own troubles, their own pains and needs. The religion of the Lord Jesus Christ is a real experience in regeneration and all along the spiritual conflict. "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in His throne."—Rev. 3:21.

W. W. STALEY.

CHRISTMAS QUESTIONS.

As the Christmas season draws near people are prone to ask various questions of each other concerning the observance of the day of days. "What are you doing this year?" is one of the first questions which we hear. It seems to have become a custom to make of Christmas a day of feasting and frolic; the bigger the feast the better the celebration and the gayer the frolic the greater the enjoyment. But that first Christmas day when the baby Jesus lay in his bed of rude boards there was no feasting and frolic as the shepherds knelt in adoration. The sacredness of the angels' song had put a holy quietness upon their hearts and they thought not of feasting; their joy was complete when they went out to tell others of God's great gift to mankind. What are we doing to make of Christmas the most blessed day of the year? May we think of the sad hearts and the homes where sickness and want are rife and share with them the gifts which God has given us for spiritual and temporal needs. Then will we get the joy that will remain with no regrets or heartaches.

"Are you ready for Christmas?" It seems as though this question can only be answered by asking more questions. Amid all the rush and care which seem so attendant upon getting ready for the Christmas season, do we take time to get our hearts in tune with the song that the angels sang? It is true that our hearts should ever be in tune, but some times when there is so much to do in so short a time and so little to do with, perhaps, does the song of peace and good will seem far away? O, may we have room in our hearts and minds for the Christ-Child, not letting Him be crowded out because of any trifling things of time, for He alone can make us live for eternity.

"What will you give?" Even in this period of depression, people are buying gifts for others when they themselves lack many of the essentials of life. Many of the gifts will last but a day and will not bring a sense of peace and good will. Among many there will be a rivalry which surely takes away the joy of Christmas; others will give because they have already received. God sent the first Christmas gift to earth, not because we gave anything, but because He loved us. There is no gift which will equal His gift, for heaven was robbed of its most precious possession when the Christ-Child came to be the Saviour of men, born in humility that all might receive. May we follow in His footsteps, giving ourselves in humble service rather than costly gifts which will soon pass away. That which is given in Jesus' name and for His sake will never die.

"What did you receive?" The last question is answered according to the answers to the other questions. With hearts prepared for the advent of the Christ-Child, our giving will be according to His will and His will is not grievous; the gifts which we will receive will be the precious fruits of the Spirit: Love that is immeasurable, reaching up to God and out to our fellowmen; Joy that is beyond compare, not only for one day, but for all time and eternity; Peace that the gold of earth cannot give, nor for lack of which can not take away: the great gift of God's love. Love, joy, peace; what greater gifts can we wish to receive? May all we do this Christmas time be as unto our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ and his glory.

AN OBSERVATION.

It was my privilege last Sunday night to attend the Christian Endeavor Society at Mt. Gilead church. The society was organized at the close of the revival meeting the first week in September. We organized a society two or three years ago but when winter came, owing to the condition of the church building, it was thought best to close the society. But some of the young people were not satisfied without a Christian Endeavor. Acting upon the suggestion of some of them, I called a meeting of the young people and the Christian Endeavor was the result. The membership enrolled was forty, and the average attendance since then has been thirty-seven.

Brother A. L. Strickland was elected president and song-leader. The Juniors and Seniors work together in such a spirit of enthusiasm as I have never observed in any other meeting. At the program last Sunday evening the attention given was good, and every one whose name appeared on the program was present, and responded eagerly. As I observed in that meeting, I felt that there could be many other such societies if it were not for the disposition to apologize for the lack of leadership. Leadership is an essential need, it is true, but the fact that the efforts in service are needed should overcome some of these ideas and let the young people have a chance.

E. M. CARTER, Pastor.

DENDRON, VA.

My work since the annual Conference has been in this field, composed of three small churches: Dendron, New Lebanon, Union (Surrey Co.).

When we left here nine years ago, Wakefield and Burton's Grove were in this field. So the work is much lighter, these churches being close together and I'm not supposed to undertake a heavy work now.

The great Dendron Mills, which was the life of the community, industrially, are no more, but we find a spirit of determination among the people to carry on in the work of the church, though necessarily, in a smaller way.

We are not among strangers, as I have served one of these churches as pastor before for twelve years. We appreciate the kindness of the folks here in asking us to come back. Knowing of my handicap on account of affliction which came to me five years ago. But we find them sympathetic and this is encouraging to us, and makes us hopeful in our desire to help them in the way of Christian living. Anyhow, we are happy to still have a little part in the Master's service.

Sincerely,

W. D. HARWARD.

SAYS PROHIBITION IS WINNING.

"It appears that the drive against prohibition has turned into a device for staging non-mandatory smoke screen referenda under which small time politicians can run for office and avoid discussing real qualifications," says the Rev. Howard M. Hoge of Loudoun County, Va., in an address before the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Prince George County, Va., at its quarterly meeting December 11th, in the First Baptist Church, Hopewell, Va.

Dr. Hoge further declared that the campaign to smash prohibition, state by state in last twelve months had proved to be a "farce." "Nothing was repealed or modified—not even a medicinal liquor law—as a result of the wet drive in the 41 state legislatures that met.

"Nearly 7,000 legislators considered 115 wet measures and adjourned without modifying or repealing one line of any prohibition law."

Dr. Hoge further told his audience "The only successful wet measures were eleven in number from six states only, calling for referenda on the 18th Amendment, or asking Congress to call Constitutional Conventions, and these are indirect and non-mandatory."

"The law of progress in all crime prevention is cooperation between and among the officials and with and from the citizenry."

OPTIMISM SHOWN FOR ELON.

Optimism marked an informal meeting of representative men and women interested in the campaign "to save Elon," held during the noon hour in the basement of the First Christian Church. Ladies of the church served a luncheon.

While leaders are set for a start of the campaign to raise $50,000, and they do not believe it will be a difficult task once citizens realize the worth of the college to the community, it has been decided to wait until after the holidays to start in this county.

Dr. L. E. Smith, newly seated president, who talked briefly during the hour, believes that men and women of the denomination, and outside of the Christian denomination—especially in Alamance county where the college is "universal" rather than denominational—are becoming aroused to a new conception of the value of the institution.

Ministers of the Christian church in the Southern Christian Church area, have pledged to the new president their active support and co-operation. Dr. Smith is pleased with the attitude of many creditors of the college he has interviewed, set forth by them generally in the spirit of a desire to assist in solving the financial problems to the end that the institution may go forward to greater service in the education of youth.

"Many who have been no more than lukewarm, or indifferent toward the college, now have a new vision of its possibilities," Dr. Smith stated. His reference was, of course, to leaders within the Christian denomination.

Dr. Smith made a report on a recent informal gathering of faculty members and citizens of the college town, when faculty members who have labored without their pay for some time, pledged $2,561 and other citizens $416, a total of $2,977. He is confident that the total will be raised from $3,500 to $4,000 when all have an opportunity to make a pledge.

The meeting was opened by Dr. G. O. Lankford, local pastor, who called upon Dr. W. R. Potter for the invocation, and later, after expressing thanks to those attending, outlined the purpose of the meeting as in the interest of the college, an institution which has meant so much to the community, state, and other states.

It has been explained that the $50,000 which those interested in the salvation and future of the college are now trying to raise, is a call upon the Southern area and not locally restricted. It is for immediate or emergency needs.

R. Homer Andrews, mentioned as a possible general chairman for Alamance county, recalled that Alamance county made flattering offers to secure the M. P. College, finally located at High Point; offering acres of land and thousands of dollars. "If we could do that," he said, "why not get busy and do something for what we have in our possession—and build it up?" Dr. Andrews does not believe the small college is a thing of the past, but on the other hand, believes it an important medium of education, whose mission is to turn out boys and girls to better citizenship.

"The mental, moral and spiritual value of the small college is greater than the congestion of the larger universities," T. J. Mitchell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, stated during a brief talk. He believes the smaller college offers the opportunity for the better development of personality and character.

J. M. Atwater and Jack Browning, presidents of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, spoke briefly pledging their support to the movement to remind Alamance that she must do her part when called upon. Those in the meeting were agreed that when citizens are called upon, when they are aroused to the importance of the campaign, they will respond freely and wholeheartedly.—Burlington Daily Times (Dec. 10).

MISSIONS

REV. J. O. ATKINSON, D. D., Secretary.

SUPPLICATION.

DECEMBER, 1931.

Jehovah, God, we praise Thee that in the blessed Trinity there is all power and might, all love and grace, eternal and universal communion; that Jesus, by paying sin's full price, became to all the world the never-dimming Day-star toward which His Church moves—all too slowly, we confess, because we hide and hoard the things that speed the Church's pace. Loose our gifts, O God, and make our direction as true and fixed as was that of those who followed the Star of long ago. And to Jesus' name forever be glory in the highest. Amen.

OUR WOMEN IN MISSIONARY WORK.

(The editor of "The Christian Sun," who is also Mission Secretary, should have written about our women of the Southern Christian Convention what the editor of the Western Christian Advocate has written about the women of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He could not have written it as well as it is written, but he could have felt it, and his language allowed could have expressed it just as truly and as deeply about our women as the Advocate editor has about the Methodist women. The very same facts apply in both cases except, of course, the total figures with which the editorial concludes. We trust that every "Christian Sun" reader will take notice and read.—J. O. A.)

The work of the Methodist women in the field of foreign missions is a marvelous romantic story. We hear so much of what they are doing that we do not fully appreciate their consecration. Neither do we value as we should the marvelous results they are producing. The work of The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society demonstrates decided devotion, deep consecration, and unusual ability in the work of organization and administration.

Recently Mrs. Thomas Nicholson, president of that organization, in making her report before the annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions, gave us to understand the spirit in possession of the women of our church. There is to be no cut on the field. There is no pessimism. There is a great faith in Christ. There is no evidence that the women of our church believe that their enterprise is under the control of the economic pressure of the day. They believe that their work goes forward under the pressure of the presence of the Holy Spirit. They have not moved into the land of Egypt, where the taskmaster's lash of economic production drives them forward under the burden of distress. They have come to live in the land of promise wherein their resources are not drawn from the soil, but from the stars. They lift up their hands to receive the "given-down" blessings from Him whose concern never leaves them without the precious promises of the Holy Scripture that His work is not of the earth, but of God. This is why we discover the spirit of our women to be extraordinary, in that it manifests a deep dependence upon Jesus Christ and the leadership of the Holy Spirit.

This organization has appropriated this year $2,178,845 for its work. There is no deficit. There is no cut. The secret of their success is to be found in the hidden places where a woman finds strength to bear her burden and light to solve her problems.

MISSIONARY PROGRAMS.

JANUARY, 1932.

MRS. W. M. JOY, Editor.

WOMAN'S SOCIETIES.

PROGRAM II.

"Our Commissioners for Service—The Hands and Feet."

Worship Helps.

Hymn—"America, the Beautiful," or "Oh, Beautiful My Country."

Scripture Reading—Isaiah 46:6-12; 49:8-13.

Prayer—That we may acquire the "mind of Christ" so that we may feel that all men and women, everywhere, of every race and color, are members of one family of God the Father.

Introductory talk by Leader—Last month our program was based on the General Council, which is the "head" of our united denomination. This would be of no use without "hands" and "feet" to carry out its dreams of service and today we are to consider the Home Boards as the hands, and the American Board as the feet in this work of world service and world friendship which we generally know as Missions.

First Speaker—"The Home Boards."

Special Music.

Second Speaker—"The American Board."

Questions for Discussion.

1. On the map, describe roughly the work of the American Board and the work of the Home Boards.

2. Indicate the work of the Christian Churches.
3. What share of the work does our church have?

4. What are the primary motives for the missionary enterprise today?

Hymn—"Send the Light."

Mizpah—Benediction.

For this program you will read a copy of the little booklet, "Our Congregational-Christian Body at work." Also the map of Congregational Home Missionary work and the missionary map of the world, or other maps, on which to indicate areas of our missionary activities. Any of these materials may be secured by addressing the Commission of Missions, 14 Beacon St., Boston, Mass. The booklet is only 10c.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES.

"GOD AND THE CENSUS."

Theme—"The Lasting Gift."

I.—Business Period.

II.—Study Period.

Chapter IV.—"The Churches Must Still Educate."

1. Let the leader use pages 44-77 as an introduction to chapter.

2. Where the Church Fails—A member, pp. 447-48.

3. The Unreached Army of Children and How the Church May Reach Them—A member, pp. 49-53.

4. The leader should bring the chapter to a close with this as her thought—"Seek Them Where They Are."

III.—Worship Period.

1. Call to Worship.

2. Hymn—"Another Year Is Dawning."

3. Leader—The greatest gift the world has ever known—God's gift of His Son—is an everlasting gift, for does not John 3:16 say: (Read). (Here make a few comments on the subject.)

4. Prayer.

5. Solo—"Across the Sky the Shades of Night."

6. Offertory.

7. Hymn—1st verse: "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."

WILLING WORKERS OR JUNIORS.

TOPIC—"OPEN WINDOWS."

Theme—"God's Children in Africa."

I.—Worship Period.

1. Opening Song Response—"Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Hosts."

2. Memory Verse—"If any man serve me, let him follow me; that where I am, there shall also my servant be."

3. Song—"I've a Story to Tell."

4. Prayer (for the boys and girls of Africa.)

II.—Study Period.

1. Chapter III.—Open Windows.

(a) Have pictures of Africa, and encourage the children to talk about the people and their customs.

(b) Story Period.

Leader may divide chapter into two parts and appoint some one to tell each part.

(c) After the Story—Ask questions about main points, and encourage the children to talk about the story.

2. Song.

3. Benediction.

Poster III. White cardboard for background and red heart cut from cover paper. Cut windows and hinge them with gummed tape so they will stand open. Paste in window a picture of group of children. Write on poster: "Open the windows of your having a heart in center of poster. Omit the word 'heart,' and at bottom write, "And Make Friends."

PRAYER WILL SAVE ELON.—

The slogan adopted for the Elon College campaign at the suggestion of Rev. F. C. Lester, who has worked so zealously in the Eastern Virginia Conference is, "We Will Save IT," but the question immediately arose as to how we will save it. We certainly do not hope to save Elon College by money alone. The first and most important means by which we can save our college is by getting in intimate touch with our Father in whose name the college was founded by consecrated men and women. Prayer brings us into communion with the God of love, wisdom, and power. If the entire church will live in communion with God while the campaign is on, He will do wondrous things for us and for the college. When we consecrate ourselves to Him in prayer and bring the needs of the college to Him daily while the campaign is on, we shall find ways and means by which we can contribute of our means to the college without impoverishing ourselves in earthly means. Every contributor to the emergency fund will be greatly enriched in spiritual life. Without prayer we shall fail, but with prayer we shall win in His name.

CHRIST WILL SAVE ELON.—

Prayer will bring us to Christ and make Christ real to us. We shall see in Him the spirit of sacrifice, self-denial, self-giving and with our consecration we shall consecrate what He has committed to us for His glory and we shall use it to glorify His name. The college was born in prayer and faith and hope and love. It has been nurtured with the tears of the saints and consecrated to God and the Christian religion in the preparation of consecrated Christian leaders in pulpit and pew. Its history and the service it has rendered already has demonstrated to us the imperative need for such an institution for the education of our young people for Christian service. Christ has honored our sacrifices and service by giving us intelligent leadership in our churches. Christ himself was pre-eminently a teacher among men and His office as teacher is mentioned in the Scriptures much more frequently than His office as preacher. The followers of Christ were called disciples, learners, in their preparation for the work of the Kingdom, and it is the duty of the Church to carry on His work in the teaching of His followers in this age to combat paganism, infidelity, heresy and false doctrine wherever found. Christ would have us sponsor an institution in Elon College to carry forward the great work He began among men. It is the avowed purpose of our new President to make Elon College render a service distinctly Christian in education by recognizing Christ as the Great Teacher who shall guide those who teach in the institution.

OUR GOOD WILL WILL SAVE ELON.—

One of the greatest needs of the college now is the good will and loyal support of all these whose lives have been blessed by the institution. Without the good will of our people, without their loyal support, without their prayers, without their self-denial and sacrificial love, their money would mean little in the present crisis and future history of the college. Our President craves a growing constituency whose love and loyalty, devotion and consecration, prayers and self-denial are continuously increasing as the strength and support of the college. The large donations that have been made in other years for the establishment of the college have made it possible to accomplish what has been done and their support will increasingly be a blessing to the institution; but the great need that will ever be with us is the love and devotion, sacrifice and loyalty, spiritual energy and enthusiastic consecration of the great mass of our membership including the children as well as those of maturer years. Parents should rear their children with the one thought of giving them a Christian education at Elon College. They should see to it that Elon College is made just such a college as will be best suited to their needs in Christian preparation and fitness for the greatest success in education, personality, Christian character. With our President who is committed to these ideals and whose ambition and determination is to give the young people who are educated under his administration the academic education that can be given in a church college under the most careful Christian management out of a rich experience as student, minister and Christian leader. The environment at Elon College will be such that the ideals of Christ and the Christian religion will function in the growing life and character of the student-body. Christian companionship will be inculcated between teachers and pupils, the spirit of the campus, the classroom, the church services, the social activities, the personal contacts and other relations will be free and easy, parental and wholesome, democratic in spirit and happy in fellowship. Elon College community, faculty and student body will be like a great family with the most joyous fellowship. Under such conditions the best that is possible in young life will be called into expression in the development of character.

OUR GIFTS WILL SAVE ELON.—

The urgent need of the college now is to meet the financial obligations that have grown to be a burden in this time of financial depression, and we must unite our efforts, our money, our service, our prayers, our good will, or loyalty and our devotion to the college until these urgent demands are met and the college is not embarrassed financially. Every friend of the institution should now take this occasion, and pledge his good will to the President, his faith in his administration, and pledge of loyalty by assisting in the campaign that is being carried on now to raise $50,000 to tide the college over this time of need and save the college for all future time to the service of the education of the young people of the church. Our equipment for a small Christian college is unsurpassed in many respects and our greatest task now is to pay the obligations we owe and fill our institution with an increasing number of students until we have reached the full capacity of the equipment.

OUR PATRONAGE WILL SAVE ELON.—

The cooperation of the entire church in sending the college patronage from every Christian home from which young people attend college will greatly help the institution to render larger and fuller service to the denomination. It should be our ambition to see as large a number of our young people patronize the college of their church as possible. Other churches train their young people from early childhood to plan to acquire their collegiate education at the college of their church for the advantages that they receive, not only in the academic work of the classroom but also the acquaintances and contacts which they make with the Christian leaders with whom they will be associated in the church when they return from college to the field of active service for the church. There may be those who will enter college this spring that should enter Elon and our people should render every possible help to the college in increasing the patronage.

UNITED COOPERATION WILL SAVE ELON.—

If we will cooperate in all these things for the college that every true member of the church should love and support, there is no question about the results that will follow. The church may not have as great constituency as some other churches in this part of our communion, but others have several colleges to support, and they are supporting them with their money and their patronage. If we will be as loyal as others are to their colleges, we shall be able to meet every need of the college and win success in our undertaking with the leadership that the church has chosen in the person of our President. We should be as true to the needs of our college as we are to the needs of our own home and then we shall show the true Christian cooperation.

Not of the starlight,
O Young Mariner,
Down to the haven,
Call your companions,
Launch your vessel,
And crowd your canvas,
And ere it vanishes,
Over the margin,

WORSHIP.—The following program, prepared by Zalia Harbaugh of Lima, Ohio, appeared in our young people's church paper, The Sunday School Herald, last year. It is hoped that its appearance here will enable it to reach many of our churches who do not have that paper.

Prelude—"Follow the Gleam" and "I Would Be True."

Call to Worship—Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait.

Hymn—"Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Scripture—(The readers stand on opposite sides of the room, and read alternately.)

First Reader—Psalm 9:1-4; 10.

Second Reader—Psalm 27:1.

First Reader—Psalm 121.

Second Reader—Psalm 119:18; 33-40.

First Reader—Acts 16:9, 10.

Second Reader—John 21:15-17.

Hymn—"Follow the Gleam."

Story—Several years ago, an earnest young man went to one of our Eastern schools. He had ability and talent. Many opportunities were offered to him and in many of them he would have received wealth and honor. But Howard Arnold Walter had heard a call, had seen a "gleam," in his early youth which made him discontent with mere wealth or fame and started him on a far quest for the way God had planned for his life. Upon graduation he went to Japan for a year of service, and while there he sent a short poem as a gift to his mother. He returned to Hartford Theological Seminary in New Haven for his graduate work. When his course was about completed, he was given the opportunity to accept work in a large and wealthy city church. But his quest did not seem to lie there. And he went out to India, and there gave his life for suffering men and women. He served gladly and he served well. He followed the gleam to the end. Howard Arnold Walter died in 1918, after a life of rich service. He wrote a number of things, but he is best known for the poem which he sent to his mother. The poem was set to music, and has been sung as a promise and a prayer by hosts of young people:

I would be true for there are those who trust me,
I would be pure for there are those who care;
I would be strong for there is much to suffer,
I would be brave for there is much to dare.

I would be friend of all—the foe, the friendless;
I would be giving and forget the gift.

I would be humble for I know my weakness,
I would look up, and laugh, and love, and lift.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR NOTES.

JANUARY 3, 1932.

WHAT JESUS TEACHES ABOUT TRUTHFULNESS.
(Consecration Meeting.)

Scripture Reading: Jno. 8:32; 18:37; Matt. 5:37.

All through the history of the world and through all scientific discoveries and discoveries in nature and of natural laws it has been found that God always stands for truth, and that His great plan has been a true one. What great calamities would have overtaken the world long ago if God had not used truth as the basis of His plan for the world. Human experiences down through the ages have been but revelations of the truth of God.

Not only did God use truth as the foundation for the world, or worlds, that He made, but His word is truth. He has always done what He said. He has kept His promises to the sons of men, and He still keeps them today.

Christ came to bear witness to the truth of God. He revealed this during His trial before Pilate. Those who are of the truth, He says, will understand what He means.

The most blessed thing about truth is that it is a safe basis for everything. True knowledge satisfies our minds, true actions make us and others happy. Truth makes men free in their thinking and actions. It takes away fear and dread. It gives poise and personality. Christ says in John 8:31-32 that those who abide in His word shall know the truth, "and the truth shall make you free."

Benediction:

Lord, thou art our dwelling place

In all generations.

Before the mountains were brought forth,
Or even thou hadst formed the earth and the world,

Even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.

So teach us to number our days,
That we may get us a heart of wisdom.—Amen.

JANUARY 10, 1932.

WHAT SHALL I DO WITH MY MONEY?

Scripture Reading: Luke 12:13-21; 15:11-19.

In the first place it is well to consider in just what sense the money is "mine." How did I get it? From whom did I get it? How many things do I need to buy with it? Will there be some left for other things I might like to do?

How I spend my money affects my own life. By learning to spend money I am building habits that will likely cling to me the rest of my life. Is it my privilege to spend undue amounts on movies, soda fountain drinks, clothes, tobacco, etc., even if the money is mine? Is the risk I run in habit-formation too great, or should I carefully plan how I shall spend my money in order that in later life I can spend money more wisely?

How I spend my money affects other people. Suppose I get all I can from Dad just to spend as I wish. Do other members of the family have to do without their money because of my eagerness to have the money I want? Do my habits of money-spending make me dependent upon the help of others who may extend me credit? What right have I to their help if I am not paying my own way? Are all those concerned by my methods of spending my own money getting full "value received" in exchange for the money I handle? Do I share with others who may be in need?

Sunday School Lesson

By REV. S. A. BENNETT, Elon College, N. C.

THE SON OF GOD BECOMES MAN.

LESSON I.—JANUARY 3, 1932.

LESSON TEXT: John 1:1-18.

GOLDEN TEXT: "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father."—John 14:9.

Introduction.

This quarter we take a series of lessons from the Gospel of John. It will be a good opportunity for young people and adults to make a more intensive study of this book than ever before. Let us study carefully the exalted appreciations of Jesus so beautifully expressed in this Gospel.

In the Beginning.

The book starts like Genesis, and affirms that the Word or Logos of Greek philosophy, was with God before the creation of the universe. This divine Word was the creative force—notice the first chapter of Genesis. The reason, edict, or word of God is described as the creative agency—"And God said." God's word of command is expressed and creation is accomplished. In the beginning this divine Word of God was utilized in bringing the universe into being.

John the Baptist.

"There came a man, sent from God, whose name was John" (verse 6). The Gospels agree that John the Baptist gave the opening message of the Kingdom. He came bearing "witness of the light." Feeling the spirit of the prophets, John came as an Elijah from the wilderness. He called upon his fellow Jews to repent and make ready for the coming of one greater than himself.

Jesus, the Light.

Jesus is the greatest gift God has given to men. He is referred to as the "light which lighteth every man" (verse 9). Jesus brought light and love to the people of his time. The gospel narratives are aglow with the radiance of his kindly life among the peoples of his time. The passing of nineteen centuries has not dimmed the light. It grows brighter with the passing of the centuries and the growth of his kingdom. He is also the Word or Logos of God.

The Word Became Flesh.

"And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us . . . full of grace and truth" (verse 14). This is a great verse. God's Word, God's Logos, God's Reason or God's Spirit became flesh. The Spirit of the Eternal God so completely manifest in the historical Jesus that he is appreciated and recognized as the Christ, the Anointed One. This gospel does not tell us just how the wonder is wrought, but testifies, "For of his fulness we all received, and grace for grace" (verse 16).

Law and Grace.

"The law was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ" (verse 17). The law and the prophets prepared the way and laid the foundation for the kingdom as practiced and preached by Jesus and his followers.

Father and Son.

The conception of deity is very important in determining the conduct of devotees to religion. An immoral god cannot inspire his devotees to moral virtue. Jesus exemplified God as a loving Father. "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him" (verse 18).

Men have longed to see God. Jesus so completely lived the Spirit of God that he could say, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father" (Jno. 14:9). Of no other could this be truly said. The supreme example of God's life has been shown to man in the life of Jesus.

Christian Orphanage

Dear Friends:

I guess I am a poor scribe. In my report last week I intended to say my good friend, J. M. Darden, donated to the orphanage two (2) bags of shelled peanuts, but the man who set the type got it two hundred bushels. I guess our readers thought we would have plenty of peanuts for the winter. Our children are very fond of them and appreciated the peanuts very much.

Our good women, who always come to the rescue of the Orphanage, when we are in need, have already sent us enough hens to give the children a good Christmas dinner. We can always count on the good women—I wonder how our good men are getting along making up our two hundred bushels of wheat? We are still counting on the men for this wheat.

We have the meat. The Orphanage has already killed ten hogs that averaged 368 pounds, and thirteen that averaged 276 pounds, making a total of 7,266 pounds. We still have ten to kill. We have the meat, if some one will furnish bread.

We are still hopeful of our Thanksgiving offering. While it is not coming in as rapidly as we would like to see, we still have several weeks yet to count on. We will close our books for 1931 in January, and hope all who have funds in hand for the Orphanage will forward same to us at once, so it will count in this year's work.

Our little children are looking forward with much delight for "Santa" to come. We trust they will not be disappointed.

FAMILY ALTAR

CONDUCTED BY H. E. ROUNTREE
One of our Chaplains in the U. S. Navy.

"O Lord, I beseech thee, let now thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name, and prosper, I pray thee, thy servant this day."

MONDAY.

THE BIBLE'S MOST SUBLIME SENTENCE.

LESSON: Gen. 1:1.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

This is a sublime sentence. It is not only the first sentence of God's Word, but it covers all that could have been meant in the beginning of things. We are told, and by the revelations of science we understand, that this statement does not refer to any particular point of time. Please observe that the expression is precisely the same that is found in the first verse of John's Gospel, the difference being the use of the verbs, the first referring to the creation of the universe and the latter referring to the "Word as existing truth from all eternity." When the beginning was, we are not told. It may have been millions of years before. In fact the best authorities tell us that the word "Beginning" in the original was plural, and referred to more than one age previous to that.

There is another sublime passage in God's Word comparable to this. "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth are passed away." This was John's vision. It was the last of God's revelation of things to come. So there shall come a time when all that is now, shall pass away and new things shall come. And the Bible, which begins with a story of the grandeur of beginnings, also closes with the majesty of other new beginnings.

"This is the one far off divine event toward which the whole creation moves" which Tennyson referred to. This is the one great transition for which Jesus seeks to prepare us all. And when righteousness takes the throne we may expect it.

Prayer—Dear Father, it does not matter to us the particulars about things that have been. We wish to be right in thy sight now, and prepared to meet thee, whether in the acts of life or in the judgment to come. We offer ourselves unto thee this day. Help us, O Holy Spirit, to so live. Amen.

TUESDAY.

THE MARRIAGE FEAST.

LESSON: Rev. 22:17.

"And the spirit and the bride say, come."

Christ prepares his people for the new things to come in a parable of the marriage feast, describing who are to be there. "Whosoever will." Whosoever will take up his cross. But the cross is not without its crown, and Jesus leaves us not without this hope. This last scene of the Scriptures is a part of that revelation. It moves us like some great concerto in which we hear the great swelling of triumph as it emanates from the great white throne and from all the hosts that are there. The message says, "Come." Rightly interpreted, it is the great coming of Christ to the world and it is the invited coming of the world to Christ; and blessed are they who, upon hearing the invitation, say, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." "Prepare to meet thy God."

Prayer—O Father, with the call to "Come," most bountiful Lord Jesus, give us the will to come. Suffer us not to make ourselves as Dives, but enable us to join us to thyself. Quench our thirst, and make us to lie down in green pastures with thee forever. Amen.

WEDNESDAY.

THE NAME OF JESUS.

LESSON: Matt. 1:21.

"Thou shalt call his name Jesus."

We are told that in the beginnings names were given persons as a memorial of some circumstance connected with the birth, or descriptive of character, or expressive of some hope the child might attain. The latter might be most inappropriate for such might end up in shame. Solomon said that some beautiful names were borne like a "jewel of gold in a swine's snout," the symbol of qualities of which they are wholly destitute.

If it had been left to man to name the babe of Bethlehem, what do you guess it would have been? Fortunately, it was not left to man. The Father of all heaven and earth, whose right it was, named him, and he gave him a name to express His divine purpose in all heaven and earth. That name is so simple that the simplest child might lip it, and yet it is so great that it is above every other name.

A man by the name of Richard Rolle has said: "If thou wilt be well with God and have grace to rule thy life aright; and come to the joy of love, fasten this name Jesus to thy heart so that it will never come out of thy thought. Keep it. It is joy in thy ears, honey in thy mouth, and melody in thy heart."

"Jesus" means Saviour, and in that salvation we come into actual righteousness, holiness and good. This is the ultimate purpose of God.

Prayer—Dear Father, give us Jesus and set us right. Subdue our lives into harmony with thy will. Cover us with thy robes of righteousness. Make us free from wrong. Make us free as Jesus was free, and all praise and glory shall be thine. Amen.

THURSDAY.

CHRIST'S PARTING CHARGE.

LESSON: Matt. 28:19.

"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

This charge was the last message of our Lord to the disciples, given at a time when they were assured of his resurrection and when they could worship him as they had never done before.

This message has something to say about the nature of God, the ministry of God's church, and the condition of the membership of that church. It is the one passage of all Scripture that is the charter of the enterprises of the church, a guide to the work of the church, a feeder to the courage and enthusiasm of the soul of the church, and a test of the success of the church.

The resurrection had taken place and this had marked the acceptance of Christ's work, by the Father, and revealed the triumph in which that work had ended. It is the crowning event of his life by which he arose to the full right and power to save. It was the unqualified assurance that he was able to inspire life and to make it victorious in all those of his children who would believe and follow him; a life by which he would elevate them unto Divinity.

Look into any life which has been shaped and fashioned by a living faith in Jesus and you will see this promise fulfilled. We are challenged to make full trial of him.

Prayer—O Lord, give us, thy servants, a deep conviction of our hope in Christ, and give us thy abiding presence throughout. Amen.

FRIDAY.

POWER OF WITNESSING.

LESSON: Acts 1:8.

"And ye shall be witnesses unto me."

The book of Acts, written by Luke, takes up the thread of the story of Christ at the point where the Gospels dropped it. Its message is that the earthly ministry of Jesus is to be continued in the hearts of the people to the end of time. Christ's ministry had been ushered in with his own baptism for that ministry, and now a like event must occur to the church for its ministry. This came in the form of the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and the promise was that that baptism would make its members witness for him. As his baptism was followed by his ministry in Galilee, so the baptism of the church was to be followed by a simple testimony of him in the world. This baptism was accompanied by three promises: "Ye shall receive power," "The Holy Ghost shall come upon you," and "Ye shall be my witnesses."

We may ask ourselves that which Paul asked his church: "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" "Am I his witness?" "Am I letting my light show my confidence in my Master?" "Am I a connecting link between some soul and God?" "Am I walking in obedience to God's word, being a "doer and not a hearer only?"

Prayer—O Lord, baptize us and send us into each day's life as it is in Jesus—aglow in our hearts and lives. Help us to rely on thee for the accomplishment of Christian experience beyond our vision, and to attempt great things for him. Amen.

SATURDAY.

"For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."—Rom. 1:16.

It is not enough to be sent forth as witnesses. We must "put on the whole armour of God," get rid of our timidity and speak out.

Paul yearned to impart to his people the spiritual gift with which he was endowed. He had in his keeping the truth which, as he believed, belonged by right to every human being, and he felt that he was a debtor until all rights were satisfied; and his creditors comprised the world. He was a true witness. He declared that he was ready to preach the Gospel at all times and to everybody. Even "in Rome," he says, the place where he was beheaded for preaching. "I am not ashamed."

It is thus that the theme of the Romans comes to light, which is, "The Gospel, the power of God unto salvation of every one that believes." Paul's life embodied the divine life and the divine efficiency, which saves every one that believes. However sublime that is, it is not beyond the attainment of us. We wonder why we do not attain it. Can you tell?

Prayer—O Lord, enable us to feel the responsibility we have because we know thee and because we know thy Gospel and thy saving grace. So endow us that we may be sure of our ground and fear not to daily let our light shine. Amen.

SUNDAY.

THE SUM OF SAVING KNOWLEDGE.

LESSON: I. Cor. 2:2.

"For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified."

If we were to sum up in one word the success of the Gospel as it was in Paul's life, we would say, it is "Determination." "I am determined."

These appear to be the words of one who had weighed the matter well and knew whereof he (Continued on page 14.)

"CROWDING OUT CHRIST."

By REV. J. E. McCAULEY, Richmond, Va.
Scripture Lesson: Luke 2:1-21.

TEXT—"Because there was no room for them in the inn."—Last part of verse 7.

Christmas is usually the most joyous occasion of the year. It is the happy season when the young and the old join with each other in thinking and acting for others. Its very nature is a spirit of giving. At this time we celebrate the greatest gift of all ages, God's gift of His Son to the world. Thus we see that Christmas is more than the celebration of the birthday of an individual. It is more than the festivities of big dinners or material gifts. It is the celebration of God's gift to the world which brought earth and heaven together.

The greatest thing in connection with the Christmas is the story of the New-Born King; the living Christ. The account as given by Luke furnishes a background for one of the most beautiful pictures in all the world. In this account, we see that God was not irrespective of the human side of life. We see the Babe born of Mary with all the innocence and purity of a new-born babe. We see in this, one of the most beautiful and joyous occasions that ever comes to an earthly home. There is nothing that will so touch the human heart and draw upon the heart strings so effectively as a beautiful baby. There is nothing in human relations that will inspire pure, high and noble thought quicker than the association with a sweet baby. So important was the coming into the world of God's Son on this first Christmas that the heavens were bedecked with His glory.

The stars shone with unusual brilliancy. Especially did one shine so bright and with such a rich lustre that the wise men from Persia were able to follow it all the way to Judea until it hung over the cradle of the infant Christ. The occasion was so important that the heavens opened and the angelic choir came to the shepherds on the plains of Bethlehem and sang the heavenly Christmas carols. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men."

As soon as the angels had gone, the shepherds came and found the Christ. Thus we see the beauties of the first worshippers. But mingling this beautiful story of the coming of the Christ and the spirit that such a Christ has given to the world, there is one of the saddest notes known to the human race. He was crowded out at His birth, crowded out in life, crowded out in death, and crowded out now.

Christ is being crowded out of America.

The public, or even my own church members, will have a tendency to challenge this statement when I say Christ is being crowded out of our American life. But when I say that already more than 85 per cent of the people of this good land of ours profess no relation to Him whatever, then there is ground for my contention that Christ is being crowded out of America. It should be alarming to the Christians of our nation when we hear the fact that out of the thirty-seven million young people between the ages of ten and twenty-five years, only twelve million are receiving any religious instruction. There is reason to feel that Christ is being crowded out of our nation.

The large cities are playing an important part in crowding out Christ. Commercialized amusements on the Sabbath have no place for Christ. Sunday baseball, football, golf and moving pictures have no place for Christ, as a rule. There are few people, if any, who are loyal to the church of Jesus Christ, who habitually patronize these things on the Sabbath. Today and tonight, while we worship here, there will have been more than fifteen million people who attend the moving pictures. We sometimes hear it said that one of the troubles with the Christian world is there are too many churches, especially in our cities. But at this good hour if all the people of our city should have decided to go to church, only one out of every three could get into the churches of our city. Furthermore, during the day, there are hundreds of business men who are behind closed doors working on business projects. They have crowded out Christ. They have no room for Him in their inn; no time to worship Him.

In much of the education of our land, Christ is crowded out. We know that the funds collected by the State cannot be used to pay a worker who will teach and tell about the most beautiful character, the greatest Teacher, yea, the Savior of the world. On the contrary, four of our States absolutely forbid our Bible being read in the schools. Other States require a certain number of verses to be read but will not allow any comments to be made. There are other States in which it is optional.

Some of our State universities and endowed universities have so crowded out Christ that one wonders what is to be the outcome. Some would defend such public education on the grounds that they are seeking the truth. This should be held in mind—that God is truth, Christ is truth, and besides them, there is no truth. Seeking truth by crowding out the giver of truth. What a tragedy!

In one of the outstanding institutions of our country during the year of 1927, a smoking room was equipped for girls. But in that same institution there was no room for prayer, for Bible study or for Christ.

Christ is often crowded out of music. In this I mean the type of music that is written and used. According to one of our leading magazines some time ago, a large amount of music sold each year is jazz. Seventy-five per cent of the jazz music purchased is bought by the high school boys and girls. The effect such music has upon them is an appeal to the animal nature. At a zoo some time ago, an experiment was made with a jazz orchestra playing for the animals. While this jazz music was being played, the animals raved and seemed wild. But immediately upon the swing into the sacred hymns, they were peaceful and quiet. Christian folk, we cannot afford to crowd Christ out of our music. One man has said: "Let me write the songs of a nation, and I care not who writes her laws. I will rule the people." Another said, "Let me write the hymns of a church, and I care not who writes her creeds. I will govern the church." Let me hear the music in your home and I can tell you something of the interest in religion in that home.

Christ is crowded out of current literature. This fact does not have to be argued from the standpoint of the daily newspaper. I am not personally acquainted with a daily paper that is not hostile to prohibition. I do not know of one that does not give more publicity to crime and dastardly deeds than it does to the higher ideals of life. A clear illustration of this was a few months ago when Dr. Greenlaw passed away. I do not know of a man who had done more for the public schools of the South than he had. He was professor of English Literature of the University of North Carolina, for a number of years. He worked out a system for getting the literature before our high schools at a minimum cost. But when he died, a little space was given down in spoke. He speaks with no hesitancy or tremor in his voice. He seems to know what he believes. And his life is shaped up accordingly and nothing can deter him. Thus he went forth the preacher that he was, preaching as if God was standing right by his side. That ought to be a wonderful inspiration to any one.

One who speaks this way must discard elements of diction and rules of oratory and drive simple and plain hammer blows with the sledgehammer of truth. One who lives right must take equally as stalwart a stand in all the issues of life. Satan must be crushed under foot. The crucified Saviour must fill the horizon of the mind and heart. We live in a world of a thousand illusive ways, and for us, who desire practical wisdom for the conduct of life, we do not need a map to show us the way, but we do need the light of Jesus to guide us into all truth.

A story comes to us from Joseph Parker:

"You are going down to the assize, my Lord?" "Yes." What do you think you will do with the remarkable series of frauds committed some time ago?" "I do not know." What do you think you will do with that case of forgery, the most elaborate and intricate piece of business I ever heard of in all our criminal jurisprudence—what do you think you will do with it?" "I do not know." "Why, are you going down to the city in a loose mind?" "No." "What have you resolved to do, then?" "One thing; I have determined nothing but one thing." "What is that, my Lord?" "That the law shall be administered and justice shall be done." That is what Paul said.

Prayer—Dear Father, make us thin own. May we never falter in what we should do for thee. Amen.

one corner of the paper, telling of his death. On the same page a picture and a column was given about some one who had committed a crime.

An experiment was made in one of our Southern cities some time ago concerning the type of magazines mostly used. A committee went to thirty-four stands and asked for the best sellers. When they had completed their investigation, it was unanimously agreed that only one out of the thirty-four was fit to go into a home.

If Christ is crowded out of education, music, and the literature of the home, is it any wonder that He is crowded out of the American home life? We are too busy to have family prayers, too busy to read the Bible, too busy to worship the New-Born King or the Christ, who gave us Christmas. There is no better way to teach a child to pray than to let that child see you pray. There is no better way to teach a child to worship than to let that child see you worship. There is no better way to bring Christ into the home than to make room for Him in our own inn.

I do not contend, or feel, that we have crowded Christ out intentionally. Neither did the Jews. But we have done so unawares. We can easily become victims of circumstances. But with a loving heart, I warn you lest He should be crowded out until it is too late.

We may now turn to the beautiful and joyous part of the message again. Can there be peace and good tidings during these days? Yes, if we will open our hearts and let Christ come in. He will come into our Inn just as it is. Then, just as heat expels cold, so will He expel all jealousy, envy, strife, hatred and indifference to His Father. He will bring the greatest Christmas unto us that we have ever known. He will enable us to share with others in just as rich a lustre as He shared with us. He will make each day throughout the year seem as though Christ were here again.

"Oh, if I had only known,"

Said the keeper of the Inn:

"But no hint to me was shown,
And I didn't let them in."

"Yes, a star gleamed overhead,

But I couldn't read the skies,

And I had given every bed

To the very rich and wise."

"And she was so poorly clad,

And he didn't have much to say.

But no room for them I had,

So I ordered them away."

"She seemed tired, and it was late

And they begged so hard, that I

Feeling sorry for her state

In the stable let them lie."

"Had I turned some rich man out

Just to make a place for them,

'Twould have killed, without a doubt,

All my trade at Bethlehem."

"Then came the wise men three

To the stable, with the morn,

Who announced they'd come to see

The great King who had been born."

"And they brought Him gifts of myrrh,

Costly frankincense and gold,

And a great light shone on her

In the stable, bleak and cold."

"All my patrons are now dead

And forgotten, but today

All the world in peace is led

By the ones I sent away."

"It was my unlucky fate

To be born, that inn to own;

Against Christ, I shut the gate:

Oh, if I had only known."

Howard Arnold Walter suggests many lessons from the past in this message in verse, and he challenges youth everywhere to follow the gleam in future: "to seek . . . but not to yield."

Meditation.

Silent Prayer—While pianist plays softly, "I Would be True." While heads are bowed let the leader continue by reading softly and prayerfully the poem, "Christ Has No Hands But Our Hands."

Prayer.

Response (Softly)—

"Into my heart, into my heart,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus;
Come in today, come in to stay,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus."

"Out of my heart, out of my heart,
Shine out of my heart, Lord Jesus.
Shine out today, shine out for aye,
Shine out of my heart, Lord Jesus."

Talk—"Followers of the Gleam."

Hymn—"I Would Be True."

Closing Prayer—"And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands, establish thou it."

Holman Jewel Testament

INDIA PAPER ONLY—Size 2½x4½ inches x¾ inch
The JEWEL is the latest and most attractive Pocket Testament made.

The TYPE is black, bold and larger than that in the famous Vest Pocket edition, and the book itself is smaller. It is printed exclusively on the famous Holman India paper, noted for its opaque quality and unusual tensile strength. One advantage of this India paper is that the leaves do not cling together.
The size, 2½x4½ inches, is so small that the book practically fits the palm of the hand.

The GEM TESTAMENT has been steadily growing in popular favor ever since its first appearance.

In size, 3¾x4½ inches, it is not much larger than the Vest Pocket. It is also the only Testament of its size with large bold type and pronouncing text.

The edition on India paper is ideal, and we know of no better gift at the price than one in the finer bindings.

MARRIAGES

DUNSON—BASSETT.

At my home, Roanoke, Ala., Saturday, December 12th, at 4:00 p.m., I united in marriage Mr. Leroy Dunson and Miss Avis Bassett, both of Roanoke, Ala. The groom is a successful dairyman. He is a member of the First Christian Church, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Dunson, who have been active members of the Christian Church a great number of years. The bride is an orphan. By her sweet spirited character and energetic disposition she has won a great host of friends. They are both of the younger set. Their future seems bright. They have the good wishes and prayers of their many friends that they may have a long happy life together.

OBITUARIES.

DENSON.

Whereas, the death angel entered our community on October 15, 1931, and took from our midst one of our most faithful and loyal members, Mrs. Lucy A. Denson, and carried her spirit to the throne above;

Be It Resolved, That we, the Ladies' Aid Society of Burton's Grove Christian Church, offer these resolutions of respect as a tribute to the memory of our loyal co-worker.

That we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

That we extend to the entire family our heartfelt sympathy and point them to the God she served, realizing that they have lost a kind and affectionate mother, and the church and Ladies' Aid Society a faithful member.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, a copy to "The Christian Sun," for publication, and a copy be put on record of the Ladies' Aid Society of Burton's Grove Christian Church.

Signed:

MRS. C. A. BRITTLE,
MRS. GEO. S. BARRETT,
MRS. H. J. STEPHENSON,
Committee.

FRANCIS.

A Beautiful and Radiant Life.

Rev. Edward Francis went to be with the Lord, November 28, 1931, at Ames, N. Y. He held pastorates covering 53 years in three conferences, namely: Merrimac, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, and the New York Eastern. Three of his children are in mission work in Japan.

He felt his pastoral work was a spiritual task and hence became a man of prayer. He had unshaken faith in the Word of God and seemed to live in its atmosphere. His great joy in serving Christ and his deep spirit of sacrifice made a lasting impression. He found it a pleasure to sacrifice for the work of the Lord, often going without the comforts to give more. His heart was as broad as the Kingdom of God. After his retirement he engaged in intercession for missions, which seemed to ripen his intimate fellowship with the Lord Jesus. He frequently quoted:

"And if our fellowship on earth
With Jesus be so sweet;
What heights of rapture shall we know
When round the throne we meet?"

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom, has removed from among us, our friend and sister, Mrs. Emma Taylor, we, the members of Linville Christian Church, offer the following resolutions as a tribute to her memory:

Therefore, Be It Resolved: First, That in the sudden going of our sister, our church and community have sustained a great loss, but we realize that our loss is her gain.

Second: That we extend to the family our sympathy and commend to them the Christ, who can sustain and comfort them.

Third: That we hold in grateful remembrance her aid in the church and all its organizations.

Fourth: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy sent to "The Christian Sun" for publication, and a copy be placed upon the church records.

ELON COLLEGE

AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

of the

CONGREGATIONAL CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OF THE SOUTHEAST

WHITLEY MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM BUILDING.

ELON COLLEGE, founded by the Christian Church in 1889, has fully justified the faith and hope of its founders during its 42 years of operation. Its graduates from the four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree, number 980, now living, 122 of whom are in the Christian Ministry and full-time Christian service. The majority of these are members of our own denomination. In addition, 449 are in educational work and are an active influence in the lay leadership of the Christian Church.

THE CHRISTIAN EDUCATION BUILDING, and the definite religious atmosphere of the College, provide the very best facilities available for training for religious leadership, and offer the Church its finest opportunity to train the young people of the denomination to assume active leadership both in the ministry and laity of the local churches.

NEW TERM OPENS JANUARY 25th, and any student may begin the college work at that time.

WILKINS.

In the passing of the late Mr. J. D. Wilkins, Union Christian Church, Union Ridge, N. C., lost one of its valuable members and a strong pillar. The community has indeed suffered a loss and many friends join in prayer and sympathy for the bereaved family. Mr. Wilkins was prominent in civic and church affairs as well as being a strong home and family man. We shall miss him in our community and in our church.

MRS. W. H. G.

JOHNSON.

James Beale Johnson was born February 26, 1872, near Fuquay Springs, Wake County, North Carolina, and departed this life November 27, 1931. He was a son of the late lamented John Lewis Johnson and wife, and a member of a family of eight, and is the second of the family to pass away. His brothers are Hon. K. B. Johnson, Rev. J. Lee Johnson and Seaton Johnson, all of Fuquay Springs. His sisters are: Mrs. W. H. H. Jones, Mrs. W. Z. Atkinson and Mrs. Ella Johnson Smith, Fuquay Springs.

In 1902 he was married to Miss Della Ragsdale, who died in 1912. On August 18, 1915, he was married to Miss Mamie Garrison Cheek, of Durham, and to this union were born two sons, James Lewis and Thomas Cheek, who with the wife, survive him.

In early years James Beale made a profession of faith in Christ and united with Wake Chapel Church, in which church he remained an ever faithful and active member until death. He was widely known in the business world, and for several years was a trustee of Elon College.

He had a host of friends, and no man more richly deserved them, for he had all the elements of a Christian gentleman entering into the make-up of true friendship. He was liberal in giving to his church, to all its enterprises and to charity. He was a gentleman whose character was without blemish, a Christian whose conduct was without question, a friend whose sincerity was without bounds.

Being a man of tireless energy, of strong constitution, of a dynamic determination and being engaged in large business, and having heavy obligations, he literally laid down his life for his friends whom he loved as he did his own soul. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

The funeral was conducted from Wake Chapel Church on Saturday P. M., November 28th, in the presence of a large concourse of loved ones, neighbors and friends, and beautiful flowers covered, while they made sweet and sacred, the mound under which he sleeps. The services were in charge of Dr. C. H. Rowland, Greensboro, and the writer of these lines who never had, and never expects to have, a truer, better friend.
